Britain Gives In

By Joseph Driscoll.

London, Nov. 9.—The British government today rejected finally all plans to partition Palestine into separate independent Jewish and Arab states.

In an effort to devise some compromise scheme, short of partition, which will end the present civil war and permit Jews, Arabs and Christians to live in peace as neighbors under the British flag, Downing street is arranging a round table conference of Jewish and Arab leaders before Christmas, if possible.

The conference will be presided over by Prime Minister Chamberlain and Malcolm MacDonald, colonial and dominion secretary.

Unable to Set Boundaries

The decision is generally construed as a striking reversal of British policy and an almost complete surrender to the Arabs, who launched a civil war against the Jews and the British administration to prevent cutting up of Palestine.

In July, 1937, a royal commission headed by the late Earl Peel, proposed a scheme of partition under which independent Arab and Jewish states would be established, while other areas, including the holy places, were retained under mandate by Britain. A second commission, headed by Sir John Woodhead, was later sent out to Palestine to work out the boundaries for such a partition.

To Seek Agreement

The long awaited report of the Woodhead commission, published today, deals a knockout blow to the earlier commission and its work. The four members of the Woodhead commission advised unanimously against the adoption of the Peel plan, but were unable to agree on an alternative.

The conclusion of the commission is that it is unable to recommend any partition boundaries which will afford "a reasonable prospect of the eventful establishment of self-supporting Arab and Jewish states."

Huge Armistice Celebration Begins Tonight

Greatest Since War Battle to Be Re-enacted President to Participate

One of the greatest Armistice celebrations since the end of the World War will begin in Washington tonight and continue until Saturday morning.

With veteran organizations taking the lead, churches, schools, and various patriotic societies will join in the colorful program.

The District's 90,000 public school children will join the celebrants, in the Board of Education's recognition of the day as a legal holiday.

"Black-Out" to Feature

A re-enactment of the Battle of Cantigny, first victory of the American troops acting alone in the World War, will usher in the ceremonies tonight at 8 o'clock. Staged in North Sligo Park near Silver Spring, Md., the "battle" will be sponsored by the Cissel-Saxon Post of the American Legion.

Bombing planes, war tanks and 600 troops from the National Guard and antiaircraft guns and searchlights from the 260th Coast Artillery will participate. A "black-out" of the area during the program will be a feature.

The Forty and Eight Society and the Jewish War Veterans also will have Armistice eve programs. National officers who have arrived for the annual Armistice pilgrimage to Arlington will be their guests.

President to Lay Wreath

Stephen Chadwick, national commander of the American Legion, and Gen. Frank Hines, director of the Veterans' Administration, will be among those honored at the Fort, and Eight dance at the Wardman Park Hotel. Among speakers at the Jewish Community Center will be Dorey Worth, National commander of the Jewish veterans, Malvina Freeman, National auxiliary president, and Leo A. Rover, former United States District Attorney.

Army Studies Cremation of 2 Fliers Here

A special Army board last night was investigating the crash which killed and cremated two Army fliers when their pursuit plane went into a spin, narrowly missed two houses and smashed to earth in Anacostia, 2 miles from Bolling Field.

The dead were Col. Leslie MacDill, 49, of the War Department general staff, who lived at 3105 Cathedral avenue northwest, and Private Joseph G. Gloxner, of First Staff Squadron, of Reading, Pa. Both were instantly killed.

Maj. Charles P. Prime, chief investigator, said last night that eyewitnesses had given conflicting reports regarding engine trouble. Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald said he would postpone decision on holding an inquest into the deaths until he had received the Army report.

Trouble With Motor

The BC-1 pursuit plane piloted by Col. MacDill took off from Bolling Field at 9:36 a. m. Three minutes later it crashed on S street, a block away from the busy intersection of Good Hope road and Nichols avenue.

Accounts pieced together from numerous eyewitnesses indicate that something happened to the motor, and Col. MacDill tried first to get back to his field, and then with death staring him in the face aimed his plane for a narrow space between two houses in order to land on Thirteenth street, headed for an alley.

The plane cut down telephone and power wires, knocked down a pole, clipped off tree limbs and plunged into the earth between the curb and street in front of the home of Robert Thompson, 1807 Thirteenth street southeast.

The plane immediately burst into flames, settled back on a parked car. Burning gasoline flowed down the street and destroyed three other parked cars.

One civilian came within 10 feet of being killed in the crash. That was Clarence W. Ohm, plumber of 1612 W street southeast. He had parked his car directly across the street from the crash, and was just getting from his car when the plane struck.

Flames Leap 50 Feet

Both bodies were burned beyond recognition by the flames which leaped as high as 50 feet. One of the bodies was thrown from the fuselage, while the head was torn from the other. Firemen fought half an hour with water and chemicals.

Louis Fiedler, mechanic, and Harry Rosenthal, manager, of Mandell Chevrolet garage at Thirteenth street and Good Hope road, and Earl Hazel, of 1235 U street southeast, rushed to the plane with fire extinguishers. The heat drove them away. Fiedler's face was scorched.

The street at the time of the crash was deserted except for Ohm. Few people were attracted by sound

Stocks Climb After Rebuff To New Deal

Best Day in Year Business Tide Soars Housing Boom On Doubles 1937 Pace

By William V. Nessly.

The stock market soared yesterday as it had not done in more than a year, following the New Deal setback in Tuesday's voting, while the Nation looked forward to continuation of the business advance that pre-election uncertainty had not quite restrained.

The New York Stock Exchange had its first more-than-3,000,000 share day since October of 1937, as numerous issues advanced from $1 to $4 a share, buying orders clogged the wires and the ticker tape fell well behind trading. Foreign buying orders were mixed with those pouring in from all over this country.

Home Building Doubled

At the same time Federal Housing Administrator Stewart McDonald announced here that the outlook for continued residential construction activity during the winter and early spring was still further improved by the October report of FHA operations. Small home mortgages selected for appraisal in the month, the report showed, amounted to $97,467,205, an increase of 117 per cent over October, 1937. Mortgages accepted for insurance totaled $64,627,149, which was a gain of 82 per cent over the same month of last year.

This followed publication of a National Industrial Conference board report that gains in employment in manufacturing, trade, distribution and finance, agriculture and construction featured the addition of 729,000 workers to the Nation's pay rolls in September, as compared with August.

RFC Offers Funds

From the better farm-income standpoint, the Agriculture Department said the possibilities of finding new markets in South America for surplus wheat in this country would be surveyed by Frank Theis, Kansas City grain dealer who formerly was connected with the department. The situation in Brazil, Chile and other countries to the south will be studied.

Jesse Jones, RFC chairman, announced that the RFC would supply any additional funds that might be required by the Commodity Credit Corporation to meet loan commitments. "Banks and others acting as lending agencies in making Commodity Credit Corporation loans

New Deal's Machine Wrecked in Congress

Gaps in Committees Faithful Worst Hit Five Lost in Senate Insurgency Certain

By Sidney Olson.

A horde of Republican "muscle-men," who have just finished kicking the New Deal around all over the country, will descend on Washington in the next few weeks to sit down in Congressional seats formerly warmed by Democrats.

With nine new Senators and almost 80 new Congressmen added to the G. O. P. ranks in a historic overturn, the full strength of the opposition will reveal itself only when all the hot-eyed Democratic conservatives who survived the President's purge line up in the way of the New Deal.

Most notable in the recapitulation is the fact that five Democrats who had compiled the most perfect records as full 100 per cent New Dealers will not answer the roll call January 3 in the Senate. These are Senators F. Ryan Duffy, of Wisconson, the former railroad conductor, who answered "yes" to every single New Deal measure; James P. Pope, of Idaho, likewise; George McGill, of Kansas; Herbert Hitchcock, of South Dakota, and Fred H. Brown, of New Hampshire, the utilities foe.

One other, John Milton, of New Jersey, was practically a silent member, but could be depended on by New Dealers in the vote.

Outstanding also is that Pope and McGill were co-authors and promoters in the Senate of the latest version of Secretary Wallace's crop control program. Pope lost in the Democratic primaries to Representative D. Worth Clark, who styled himself a conservative, and it is

G. O. P. Leaders Expect Control By Coalition

Expect to Block New Deal Radicals Look for Aid From Conservatives Party Takes Over 11 Governorships Gillette Hard-Pressed in Iowa

By Robert C. Albright

A Republican minority grown mighty overnight bulked large yesterday in the North, East and West and larger in its challenge to New Deal supremacy and 1940 control of the National Administration.

Early this morning the election score stood:

Senate seats definitely gained—9.

New Republican Governors—11.

Diminished Democratic majorities in House, Senate and State administrations still held, but New Deal Congressional domination was threatened by coalition prospects on crucial tests.

Alarmed at what he called a "decided setback" for progressivisim, Mayor LaGuardia of New York, former liberal Republican now aligned with the American Labor party, announced a conference in Washington next week with liberal leaders of three parties.

To Form Liberal Program

LaGuardia said Gov. Frank Murphy (Democrat), of Michigan, defeated for re-election in Tuesday's balloting; Senator La Follette (Progressive), of Wisconsin, and Senator Norris (Republican), of Nebraska, will attend.

"A well-defined, clear concise Progressive program will be discussed," LaGuardia said.

Gov. Murphy, close personal friend of the President, who twice went to his defense in the Michigan campaign, early yesterday conceded defeat to former Gov. Frank D. Fitzgerald, Republican.

La Follette's brother, Philip, co-leader of a National Progressive third party movement, was unhorsed in his try for a fourth term as Wisconsin Governor by Julius P. Heil, Republican.

Meanwhile, late returns from Indiana indicated an unexpected upset in defeat of Senator Frederick Van Nuys, anti-New Deal Democrat and court plan opponent. Raymond E. Willis, Republican, was outrunning Van Nuys, who had McNutt machine support.

A Republican threatened another conservative Democrat in the Iowa farm belt. Senator Guy M. Gillette, who escaped a Democratic purge in the primaries, led former Senator Lester J. Dickinson, bitter New Deal critic, by only 1,589 votes, with six precincts unreported.

Only in New York and California, where Democratic Senators and Governors were elected; Illinois, where a new Democratic Senator came through, and in Maryland and North Dakota Democratic governorship victories, was the outcome heavily against the Republican trend.

Overnight the election apparently signaled either a retreat from extreme New Deal policies, or a combination of anti-Administration Democrats with a reborn Republican minority to check any left-wing advance.

The Senate gains apparently already clinched included Connecticut, New Hampshire, New Jersey, Ohio, South Dakota (including one short term seat); Wisconsin, Kansas and Oregon (where a short term Republican was elected as well). Each of the three Republicans seeking Senate re-election in North Dakota, Pennsylvania and Vermont was safely returned.

In the remaining 21 Senate seats on the off-year election block, Democrats were certain of 19, with two others still doubtful.

G. O. P. Governorship Gains

Governorship gains, placing Republicans in a position to build State organizations for a 1940 Presidential try, included the key States of Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Michigan, Ohio and Kansas; Wisconsin, the La Follette party stronghold; Minnesota's Farmer-Labor chair, and Colorado, Connecticut, Idaho, Iowa, Oregon, Rhode Island and Wyoming. Republican Governors were returned to three chairs already held by the G. O. P., New Hampshire, South Dakota and Vermont.

Democrats overturned Republican State administrations in three States, California (for first time in 44 years), Maryland and North Dakota, and held remaining Governors. Most significant Democratic holdover was Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, who squeezed to slim victory over enterprising young Thomas E. Dewey in New York.

But New Deal exultation in Lehman's triumph was dulled as Gov. Frank Murphy, of Michigan, close personal friend of the President, conceded defeat. It was further blunted by red-haired, furnace-throated Superior Court Judge Arthur H. James' governorship victory in Pennsylvania, and the Ohio rout of New Deal Senator Bulkley by Robert A. Taft, Buckeye prospect for the Presidency.

Some comfort was gleaned by the Democrats in definite retention of good party majorities in House and Senate, but they were not the sprawling majorities of the 1934-36 New Deal crest. Next session's Democratic regime is subject to upset in extreme tests by right-wing bipartisan coalitions.

As returns wig-wagged "slow down" on the New Deal's forward course, the stock market moved upward in a bullish swing, Republican leaders hailed a rebirth of a "two-party" system, and Democrats spoke with caution.

Postmaster James A. Farley pointed out that some falling off in large Democratic pluralities was anticipated and referred to the "substantial majorities" still held by Democrats in Senate and House. He denied the electors had given a rebuff to the President.

"I think the outcome justifies the statement that the country as a whole is still strongly behind the humanitarian policies of President Roosevelt," Farley said.

Chairman John Hamilton of the Republican National Committee said his party now is thinking more of "responsibility than victory" and forecast "a new day in American politics that will be for the benefit of the entire Nation." The election, Hamilton said, reflected determination by the voters "to put an end to constant experimental legislation which has held back economic recovery and kept the country in hubbub."

Former President Hoover interpreted the results as "the beginning of the end of this waste of public money, these policies of coercion.

McNinch Quits Soon to Return To Power Post

Resumes FCC Purge 3 Employes Ousted Dalberg Added to List

By James D. Secrest.

Chairman Frank R. McNinch abruptly resumed his purge in the Federal Communications Commission yesterday over the protests of a minority of his colleagues and at the same time he disclosed he was planning to return to the Federal Power Commission shortly in compliance with the President's wishes.

As forecast in The Washington Post, McNinch forced through the immediate dismissal of Davis G. Arnold, chief examiner, and G. Franklin Wisner, press relations chief, both civil service employes, and added a third, whose name had not heretofore been on the purge list, Melvin H. Dalberg, an examiner.

He abolished the examining division of the FCC in a move to centralize authority under the commission, which he controls by a majority.

The division, which up to this time had a quasi-judicial character, was placed under the legal division now headed by William J. Dempsey, 32-year-old protege of Thomas G. Corcoran: Dempsey was made chief counsel following the purge last month of Hampson Gary.

The action was taken in a brief interval of a regular commission meeting as minority members protested they had not been given previous notice of the sweeping reor-

O'Conor Boosts Lead; Tydings Gets Landslide

Hot Fight for House Five Democrats Win Byron Barely Ahead

By Edward T. Folliard

Herbert Romulus O'Conor, a young Democrat with the habit of victory, was fortifying his triumph in Maryland's gubernatorial race as late returns came in yesterday, piling up a lead that approached the proportions of a landslide.

Running ahead of Gov. Harry Winna Nice in the counties as well as in Baltimore, O'Conor had a lead of 60,494.

The Free State voters, seemingly determined to emphasize their resentment over Roosevelt Administration efforts to "purge" him in the primary, gave Senator Millard E. Tydings a record-breaking majority along with a third six-year term. His lead over Judge Oscar Lesser (Republican) was 164,348, and still growing with 285 precincts to be heard from. The previous Maryland record was held by President Roosevelt, who tried to end Tydings' potential career. In the 1936 landslide President Roosevelt got a majority of 158,000.

One of the few Republicans to escape the Democratic avalanche in Maryland was Walter Johnson, the old Washington fireball pitcher, who was elected county commissioner in Montgomery County. He didn't win as easily as he threw a dollar across the Rappahannock in emulation of George Washington, but

Inquiry Started In Crash Killing Md. Judge's Wife

Easton, Md., Nov. 9 (AP).—J. Wesl Thompson, coroner of Queen Annes County, started an investigation today of the death of Mrs. William Mason Shehan, wife of the chief judge of the Circuit Court of Talbot County, killed in a collision of automobiles last night.

Thompson said an inquest would not be necessary but that the hearing would be held in Centreville Monday night to obtain details of the accident.

Mrs. Shehan's son, Mason, suffered minor injuries in the collision.

Funeral services for Mrs. Shehan will be held at her home in Easton Friday afternoon.

Groom's Mother Is Married to Bride's Father

Frostburg, Md., Nov. 9 (AP).—Mrs. Cecelia Agnes Troutman didn't do any weeping as her son said "I do" before a Frostburg minister—she said "I do," too.

And with the words Johnny Troutman was married to Evelyn Marie Winebrenner, his mother to the bride's father, Roy Raymond Winebrenner, 43, of Frostburg.

The double romance all began when Johnny, 25, began traveling across the mountain from Sand Patch, Pa., to court Evelyn Marie.

Their parents became acquainted. Then the mother and son or father and daughter made trips together.

The two couples went to the Troutman farm at Sand Patch for their honeymoon.

Mrs. Troutman's first husband died in 1937, Winebrenner's first wife last January.

Turkey's Dictator, In Coma, Weaker; Death Is Denied

Istanbul (Thursday), Nov. 10. (AP).—President Kemal Ataturk early today passed through a major crisis which was so serious it had been rumored he already was dead.

A promised midnight official communique which many had feared would announce his death, however, said the founder of modern Turkey was weakening further and his condition remained critical. He had lapsed into unconsciousness.

President Ataturk was stricken October 17 with recurrence of a liver illness, but had improved until last night. He is 58.

U. of Va. Staff Doctor's Body Found in Quiet Woodland Lake

By the Associated Press.

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 9.—The body of Dr. John Henry Neff, 51, nationally known urologist of the University of Virginia medical faculty, was found tonight in Paynes Lake, about 14 miles east of Charlottesville. His disappearance Tuesday night started a search in which 400 students, townsmen and faculty members joined.

Tracks leading directly from his automobile across soft ground directed searchers to the body in 10 feet of water. His hat, wallet and car keys lay on the bank of the 4-acre lake, situated in a thickly wooded section.

W. N. Hannah, Commonwealth's attorney of Fluvanna County, and other officers found two sealed envelopes in his tan coupe.

One was addressed to his wife and the other to Dr. John Lloyd Newcomb, university president.

Quints 'Play' With Ether Mask, Awake Minus Tonsils, Adenoids

By the Associated Press.

Callander, Ontario, Nov. 9 (Canadian Press).—The Dionne quintuplets, one by one, mistook an anesthetic mask for a plaything today, dozed off without a murmur and had their tonsils and adenoids snipped out.

The operations were performed by Dr. D. E. S. Wishart, a Toronto specialist, while Papa and Mama Dionne waited against the contingency of blood transfusions in case of hemorrhage. The parents' blood had been found to be of the proper type, but the contingency never arose.

First came Marie into the improvised surgery, followed by Annette, Cecile, Yvonne and Emilie, now 4½ years old.

A current of air was blown across the ether mask to prevent the children from "gagging," as they toyed with it. This somewhat slowed up the effects of the anesthetic.

Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, physician to the quintuplets since their birth, said they came through "in fine condition." He remained in the background during the three and one-quarter hours required lest the fell before former Kansas Gov. Clyde Reed, a man with a long record of opposition to any form of crop control whatsoever.

Bitter Battles Face New Deal In Congress

Congress

Observers, putting these situations together with the extremely narrow-squeak victory of conservative eDmocratic Senator Guy M. Gillette in Iowa over former Senator eLster J. Dickinson, a Republican opponent of everything labeled progressive, came to the direct conclusion that there will be high times and hot debate about the farm problem in the next Congress.

Havoc in House

The slaughter was nothing less than terrific as voters shoved straight Republican ballots into the boxes everywhere. The leader of the House minority Progressive bloc, Representative Gerald J. Boileu, of Wisconsin, widely esteemed as one of the hardest working of all legislators, lost his seat. Representative A. H. Greenwood, of Indiana, and Representative Byron Harlan, of Ohio, both Democratic members of the pivotal House Rules Committee, were decisively whipped by Republicans.

Earlier they had lost their chairman, the once Democratic John J. O'Connor, of New York. The Rules Committee mantle therefore will be draped on the plump shoulders of Representative Adolph J. Sabath, of Illinois, oldest member of the House in service, a 1000 per center who survived the ballot box attack of the Republicans.

The country swung to the right so far and so fast that Administration observers here were groggy last night. The sensational unpredicted victory of roly-poly Raymond E. Willis, Indianapolis country editor, over Senator Frederick Van Nuys, conservative Indiana Democrat—the man to whose aid nationall prominent Republicans came from all quarters of the country when it appeared he would be "purged" because of his opposition to the President's court bill—came with literally stunning force.

It could be said, noting that Republicans in many States were progressive candidates who vowed to uphold and even go farther than the New Deal, while in many others the candidates were out-and-out reactionaries and proud of it, that it didn't matter to the electorate what the candidate stood for as long as he was a Republican.

Barkley's Grip Nominal

Word came from Senator Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky, Administration majority leader in the Senate, that he would put his leadership to a test vote before the convening of Congress. At this time it did not appear that Democrats, whatever their views, will challenge his post since, as several have put it recently, his leadership will be in name only.

Observers could not help but draw a moral from defeat of Senators Van Nuys in Indiana and Lonergan in Connecticut, and from the close victories of Gillette in Iowa and of Clark in Idaho, to the effect that even conservative Democratic opposition to much of the President's program did not seem sufficient to the voters.

As important as any factor to consider in studying the next Congressional makeup is that the committee post mortality, politically speaking, is high. No longer will the New Deal have a powerful majority on each committee to approve a measure drafted downtown. No longer will they be able to crush any opposition by sheer weight of numbers. Compromise inevitably will prevail.

Take a look at the issues to come before the newly elected Congress:

Numerous proposals for sharp and anti-New Deal revision of the Wagner labor relations act.

Overhaul of the crop-control program and study of Secretary Wallace's proposal for the sale of agricultural products to the needy at bargain prices.

The inevitable annual tax law, with the possibility that higher income taxes may be sought, while revision, elimination or continuation of undistributed profits taxes and various excise taxes will be debated with heat.

Defense to Be Issue

The almost-certain Administration request for upwards of $300,000,000 as an emergency budget for strengthening of army and air forces, plus further funds for authorized fleet expansion.

Complete revision of the neutrality act, to be proposed by the President and the State Department.

Submission by the President of a new Government reorganization measure to replace the one shelved by the last Congress.

Proposals for sharp increases in old age pensions, an issue nationally debated in the elections.

Rehabilitation program for the railroads, to be suggested by the President along lines approved by rail management and labor.

Not even the Democratic senatorial victories—two in New York and one in California—could cheer up Administration leaders here. They were universally glum last night.

Ballot Held Rebuke to New Deal Radicals Chance of Third Term Regarded as Spiked

Editorial comment by some of the Nation's newspapers on Tuesday's election follows:

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH (Ind.): So sweeping were the Republican victories that it is clear the country, after six years, has evinced a trend toward conservatism in national policies.

CHICAGO DAILY NEWS (Rep.): It means the end of the silly talk of a third term for the incumbent in the Presidency."

NEW YORK SUN (Ind.-Rep.): This was no local upswing, but a movement everywhere in evidence of such proportions as to serve notice on the New Deal of a profound change in public opinion which as yet may be only in its first stages.

PORTLAND (OREG.) JOURNAL (Democratic)—It was an admonition (to the New Deal) to put on the brakes. Incidentally it closed the conversation about a third term for Mr. Roosevelt.

TACOMA (WASH.) NEWS-TRIBUNE (Independent Republican)—Significant was the heavy Republican vote in the Middle West and the several Republican victories which proved conclusively that the farmers are tired of the bungling of the agriculture problem.

BIRMINGHAM (ALA.) NEWS (Independent Democratic—It . . . ought to be a warning to Democratic leaders that the voters of the Nation are watching, and have not been altogether pleased with the way things have been going in the last two years.

NEW YORK DAILY NEWS (Independent): . . . Will the various major New Deal reforms be repealed? . . . We think not. The people are too much in favor of them."

THE KANSAS CITY STAR (Independent Republican)—The outcome will put new enthusiasm into the Republicans and make them again a vital force in national affairs. The defeatist attitude is gone. The party should emerge a fighting organization with a real hope of victory in the Presidential election of 1940.

DALLAS TIMES-HERALD (Independent) — "The general election, like the primaries of the summer, clearly revealed that the Nation is turning away from the more radical phases of the New Deal."

DENVER POST (Independent) It will be interesting to see what kind of mandate President Roosevelt will find in the returns.

NEW ORLEANS STATES (Independent Democrat): Yesterday's Congressional and State elections show that the American people are tired of being fed on alphabetical soup.

NEW YORK TIMES (Democrat, Independent): That the results of the elections constitute a sharp reverse for the Roosevelt Administration is undeniable. American opinion has moved forward to a new point of view primarily because of the unremitting pressure he (Roosevelt) has brought to bear and his ability to dramatize the issue.

SALT LAKE CITY TRIBUNE (Independent): The election had the wholesome effect of restoring the two-party system to our National Government. It should provide a check against impusive executive action.

ST. PAUL DISPATCH (Republican): The Farmer-Labor Party has been wrecked on the same issues which inspired its own beginning and its very founders are driven back to the Republican Party, where they found against the principles of Minnesota liberalism.

ICC Prescribes Labor Rules Over Dissent

Decides in Rail Merger Mahaffie Disagrees Fears Confusion

By the Associated Press.

The Interstate Commerce Commission overrode the dissent of one member yesterday and wrote labor-protective provisions into railroad merger and lease decisions.

The majority disregarded the contention of Commissioner Charles D. Mahaffie that the ICC was without jurisdiction "over the compensation and expenses of railroad employes."

Subject to compliance with specified labor provisions, the commission authorized the Louisiana & Arkansas Railway Co. to take over control of the Louisiana, Arkansas & Texas Railway Co. and merge the properties.

In another order containing similar labor safeguards, the commission authorized the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway Co. to lease the properties of the Chicago, Rock Island & Gulf Railway Co.

In each order the commission stipulated that retained employes should not be forced to accept positions at reduced compensation for a five-year period; that dismissed employes be given compensation in proportion to the length of their service, and that employes required to change the place of their employment be compensated.

Commissioner Mahaffie dissented in each case in regard to the labor provisions. He said:

"I think it is a bad and dangerous policy for a commission, such as this, to undertake to regulate matters of social welfare without clear statutory autority. Such a policy can lead only to confusion and misunderstanding."

Mrs. Nixon Renews Five-Year Battle For Divorce Here

Mrs. Annette Pauline Nixon yesterday renewed in District Court her fight for the last word in the divorce litigation that has raged since 1933 between her and Capt. Thomas Hay Nixon.

Capt. Nixon sued for divorce in 1934 in Gettysburg, Pa. He charged cruelty. Mrs. Nixon, who lives at the Wardman Park Hotel, sued for divorce here in 1934. She charged cruelty also. Capt. Nixon obtained a decree in the Gettysburg court.

The Gettysburg court set aside Capt. Nixon's divorce on Mrs. Nixon's contention that her husband was not a resident of Pennsylvania, but the Pennsylvania Supreme Court reinstated the decree.

Argued before Justice Bailey yesterday was Mrs. Nixon's plea that he treat the Pennsylvania decree as void and give her the divorce for which she sued in 1934. Justice Bailey took the question under advisement.

LaFollette Sees Need of Third Party Proved N. Y. Guards Voting Machines, May Recheck

By the United Press.

Milwaukee, Nov. 9.—Gov. Philip P. La Follette, defeated in his bid for an unprecedented fourth term, said tonight that results of the national election "prove more than ever the vital necessity for a new national movement."

LA FOLLETTE

Wisconsin boters rejected La Follette's new party, National progressives of America, and swept Republicans into power for the first time since 1930.

La Follette tonight said he would devote his full time after next January to building his National Progressives.

"A few years of practical demonstration will again show the incapacity of reactionaries to meet the problems of our day."

He said his third party would become the rallying point for liberals and progressive throughout the Nation.

Reno, Nov. 9 (AP).—Two fractured ribs failed to keep Senator Pat McCarran from his Reno office last night to hear election returns which apparently assured him of re-election.

McCarran, returning here from a final campaign trip, was injured yesterday when his automobile collided with another. He said he did not expect to be confined to a hospital. He was re-elected.

Harrisburg, Pa., Nov. 9 (AP).—The right of a Republican district attorney to rpesetn charges of corruption in Pennsylvania's Democratic administration to a Dauphin County (Harrisburg) grand jury was upheld today by Judge Paul N. Schaeffer.

Gov. George H. Earle, one of 14 high Pennsylvania Democrats named in the accusations that grew from last spring's primary, was defeated in yesterday's election for the United States Senate.

Attorney General Guy K. Bard had challenged the right of District Attorney Carl B. Shelley to direct the grand jury investigation, charging he was actuated by political motives, but was overruled today.

Representative Herbert B. Cohen (Democrat), chairman of the House Committee, declared he had "no doubt the Republican-inspired charges" against Earle and his associates "deefated the Democrats in Pennsylvania's State election."

New York, Nov. 9 (AP).—Mayor LaGuardia today ordered an additional eight-hour guard over all city voting machines due to the closeness of the gubernatorial vote.

Howard Cohen, president of the board of elections, said the precautions were taken because of possibility of a new check being asked.

Los Angeles, Nov. 9 (AP).—Gov. Frank F. Merriam today appointed Thomas M. Storke, publisher of the Santa Barbara News-Press, to fill the unexpired term of United States Senator McAdoo, who resigned.

Storke is a close friend of McAdoo and although a Democrat, supported Gov. Merriam for re-election on the Republican ticket.

McAdoo's term expires January 3, at which time Sheridan Downey, Democrat, will begin a six-year term.

Honolulu, Nov. 9 (AP).—Sam King, Republican delegate to Congress from the Hawaiian Islands, apparently was re-elected today over Democrat David Trask, a territorial Senator. The majority of territorial offices were won by Republicans.

U. S. Scientists Use X-Ray to Uncover Mineral Structure

The X-ray was used more than ever before by Federal scientists last year to uncover secrets in minerals which might lead to advancement of the Nation's program for conservation of natural resources, Director W. C. Mendenhall, of the Geological Survey, said yesterday.

In his annual report to Secretary Harold L. Ickes of the Interior Department, Dr. Mendenhall said:

"Increasing attention during the past year has been given to chemical mineralogy, with special consideration of the internal structure of minerals. It is now possible to show that the physical properties of a mineral depend not only on the kinds of atoms composing it, but also on their role and arrangement in the crystal—features that can be determined by X-rays."

Merry Fahrney Denied Rehearing

Chicago, Nov. 9 (AP).—The appellate court today denied Merry Fahrney's petition for a rehearing of its decision October 26 voiding a Circuit Court divorce decree—and leaving the patent medicine heiress with two legal husbands.

The ruling reiterated the court's refusal to approve her divorce here last February from Baron Arturo Berlingieri, of Italy, after which she took husband No. 4, Count Oleg Cassini, of Russia.

Her attorney announced he would take the case to the State Supreme Court.

Zoning Board Approves 3 and Kills 2 Appeals

One Decision Deferred Rifle Group Winner Gas Station Allowed

The Board of Zoning Adjustment acted yesterday on six appeals approving three, denying two and delaying action on the sixth case.

A request by the National Rifle Association for permission to use the building at 1234 Sixteenth street northwest for its national headquarters as an educational institution was approved.

Mary L. Hutchison and Lloyd F. Slack were granted permission to establish a gasoline service station at 2824-26 Pennsylvania avenue northwest.

An appeal of W. C. Zimmerman for a variance to permit extension and inclosure of the rear first-floor porch at 5004 Arkansas avenue northwest also was approved.

The board denied the appeal of Neshan G. Hintlian, Inc., for permission to use a portion of the rear of 77 U street northwest for the storing and cleaning of rugs and carpets.

Although the appeal by J. Lee Kolb for permission to establish a gasoline service station at the southwest corner of Reservoir road and Wisconsin avenue northwest was withdrawn by the applicant, the board went on record disapproving the project.

Action was deferred by the board on the request by W. C. and A. N. Miller for permission to establish a gasoline and automobile service station at 4866 Massachusetts avenue northwest.

Decisions on eight cases heard yesterday by the board will be announced next Wednesday when the third meeting of the body is scheduled.

Culbert Olson Hints He Will Free Mooney

Backed Move in 1937 Was State Legislator Has Claimed Perjury

By the Associated Press.

Los Angeles, Nov. 9.—California's new Democratic Governor-elect, Culbert L. Olson, strongly indicated today he will pardon Tom Mooney, who has served two decades in prison on conviction of bombing a San Francisco parade in 1916 in which ten persons were killed.

Olson reaffirmed his belief in Mooney's innocence. He said his views had not changed since he supported a State legislative attempt to pardon Mooney by resolution in March, 1937.

Asked if this meant he would pardon Mooney, Olson smiled and said:

"Well, that's a matter of your own conclusion."

Olson pointed out that he told the State Senate he was convinced Mooney was "convicted on perjured testimony and false evidence" and did not believe Mooney guilty.

Labor and liberal groups, including many prominent writers, have championed Mooney's cause for years, contending he was merely a martyr of prejudice against organized labor. The case has been fought through the State and United States Supreme Courts several times in various proceedings, and has been before various California Republican Governors.

In his 1934 Democratic campaign for Governor, Upton Sinclair, veteran Socialist writer, declared his first official act, if elected, would be to pardon Mooney. Sinclair was defeated, but Olson won the Los Angeles County State Senatorship on the Sinclair ticket.

Olson said today he expected to advocate modified angles of Sinclair's program of production-for-use for the unemployed.

Marine Corps, 163 Years Old, Gets Congratulations

Messages praising the "untarnished record that dates from the birth of our Nation" yesterday were extended to Maj. Gen. Thomas Holcomb, commandant of the Marine Corps, upon the 163d birthday of the corps, by Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations.

"Many of our citizens know something of your brilliant World War achievement," Admiral Leahy wrote. ". . . but few realize that the success of the Marine Corps in action is, in the main, a result of the rigorous peacetime training that those in authority have insisted upon through the years. This efficient preparation attained by officers and men of superior military character make for instant action in emergency and success in the field."

Gen. Malin Craig wrote the Marine Corps commandant that from intimate battlefield contact during the World War "arose within the Army's ranks full appreciation of the courage of individuals, devotion to duty and loyalty to country which has so highly imbued the United States Marine Corps throughout its long and inspiring history."

Gen. Yount to Head Air Corps Unit

Secretary of War Woodring yesterday announced the transfer of Brig. Gen. Barton K. Yount, commander of the Air Corps Training Center, Randolph Field, Tex., to duty here as director of the training division in the office of Maj. Gen. Henry H. Arnold, chief of the Air Corps.

Lehman Orders Probe In Asylum Deaths

New York, Nov. 9 (AP).—Two investigations were ordered today into the "wrong medicine" deaths of three inmates at two State hospitals.

Gov. Lehman requested a detailed report on two fatalities at the Rockland State Hospital for the Insane, and Dutchess County District Attorney John R. Swartz investigated the death of an inmate at the Harlem Valley State Hospital, described by a medical examiner as resulting from a "wholly accidental" administration of a wrong medicine.

A little group of lifeguards, gathered in the bow of the lifeboat Zeemanschoop (Seaman's Hope), are shown risking their lives to save the crew of the stricken motor lugger SCH-102, wallowing in a stormy sea outside the harbor of Scheveningen, Holland, after being tossed against a pier in a gale. A rushing wave threatens to smash the lifeboat against the sinking fishing boat, which is alongside the lifeboat in the background. Three men were drowned and 11 rescued

General Bradman To Retire Dec. 1

The voluntary retirement, effective December 1, of Brig. Gen. Frederic L. Bradman, now president of the Marine Corps Equipment Board, Quantico, Va., was disclosed yesterday by the Navy Department.

A native of Newark, N. J., Gen. Bradman, during a 40-year military career, has served in the Spanish-American and World Wars, in Cuba, the Philippines and Puerto Rico. He took part in the occupation of Vera Cruz, Mex., in 1914 and served in Nicaragua from 1930 until 1932.

Gen. Bradman commanded the Marine Barracks here.

Dewey Will Help Prosecute Irwin For Easter Deaths

New York, Nov. 9 (AP).—After sleeping 11 hours, Thomas E. Dewey returned to work as district attorney today and began preparations for his part in the murder trial of Robert Irwin, the "mad sculptor."

The prosecutor said he would aid Assistant District Attorney Jacob Rosenblum in prosecuting Irwin, accused of slaying Frank Byrnes, a roomer; Veronica Gedeon, photographers' model, and her mother, Mrs. Mary Gedeon, on Easter morning, 1937.

Only three jurors had been chosen Monday when the trial recessed over Election Day until noon Thursday.

Elections Put New Faces on D.C. Committee

Kennedy Seen as Head Rep. Jenckes Trails D'Alesandro Makes Bid

The House District Committee will present many new faces as a result of the defeat of a half-dozen or more members in primaries and in Tuesday's election.

Succeeding Representative Palmisano, of Maryland, as chairman probably will be Representative Kennedy, also of Maryland.

Three, possibly four, Democratic members of the committee were defeated in the elections.

Representative Virginia E. Jenckes, of Indiana, the only woman member, was trailing last night, while the election of Representative Arnold, of Illinois, was uncertain.

Representatives Bigelow, of Ohio, and Allen, of Delaware, both Democrats, were defeated.

As there were two vacancies on the committee when the last Congress adjourned, the number of places to be filled will be at least a half-dozen, since several of the members re-elected probably will be in line for preferred assignments.

Chairman King of the Senate District Committee was not up for re-election, but he has indicated he may resign if national affairs absorb most of his time next session.

The Senate committee will have a vacancy due to the death of Senator Copeland (Democrat), of New York.

The only bid for a place on the House District Committee so far has come from Representative D'Alesandro (Democrat), of Maryland, who defeated the chairman, Representative Palmisano, in the primary.

Election-Day Toll In Kentucky Is 9

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 9 (AP).—The death of Kelly Mosley, 20, in Owsley County today brought to nine Kentucky's election day toll. Two others were slain in the same gun battle that took young Mosley's life.

Harlan County listed four dead, and Bell and Todd counties each reported one fatality.

It was the bloodiest election day in Kentucky since 1933, when 18 were slain.

Belated Return Increase Gains Of Republicans

Politics

political corruption and undermining of representative Government." The man who relinquished the White House to Roosevelt in 1933 said a "reinvigorated Republican Party is now in position to join effectively with the anti-New Deal democracy to check these policies in the Congress and thereby contribute to restore employment and agriculture, to re-establish confidence in business, and above all to restore faith in America."

Alf M. Landon, of Kansas, 1936 Republican Presidential candidate, said thousands of Democratic voters joined in a "protest against the Roosevelt policies which were wrecking their party and their country."

Senator Arthur H. Vandenburg, of Michigan, named yesterday by Farley as a probable Republican Presidential candidate in 1940, said he "marveled that such a victory could be won against Santa Claus." Vandenberg called it "a significant but sobering victory for Republicans, for Jeffersonian Democrats, for constitutionalism and for free enterprise."

Hails G. O. P. Majority

"The rubber stamp days are over," said Representative Joseph W. Martin, jr., of Massachusetts, chairman of the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee and the man generally favored to succeed Representative Snell (retired), as leader of the strengthened House minority. Martin said Republicans in the 35 contest States "polled more than 50 per cent of the total votes cast, making it the majority party at the polls."

Defeat of C. I. O.-indorsed candidates in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan and other States where the old C. I. O. sit-downs still echoed, was labeled a sharp setback for John L. Lewis labor policies by American Federation of Labor rivals.

President William Green of the American Federation of Labor called it proof "overwhelming that the American public is sick and tired of the tactics and philosophy of the C. I. O."

"The C. I. O. and its political dummy, Labor's Nonpartisan League, were routed in the election on all fronts," said Green. "The voters turned against every candidate who gave aid or comfort to the C. I. O. leadership, even in States where the C. I. O. concentrated its campaign."

Congress Battles Certain

What election results will mean in terms of next session legislation remains to be appraised, but on such issues as Government reorganization (which peak Democratic majorities were unable to enact), on spending, business tax measures, Social Security financing, Wagner act changes and WPA administration, conservative coalitions in House and Senate will bid strongly for control.

The issue of politics in relief, given new significance by the Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee investigations, appeared certain to reverberate in a right wing attack on Harry L. Hopkins and his Works Progress Administration.

of the plane until it exploded because Anacostia residents have become accustomed to low-flying planes.

Heard Body Plop

Ohm related that because of a broken gasket on the exhaust pipe of his automobile, he heard nothing until a plop which suggested to him falling of a human body. From his parked car he heard a scream and saw a body on the pavement before an explosion "like a 16-inch gun" shot up huge clouds of black smoke and flames.

Still shaking from his experience last night he said, "It was the most horrible thing I ever saw. I thought the world was coming to an end. I have felt so bad all day I couldn't clean up the brains splattered on my car."

Col. MacDill was a graduate of Hanover College, University of Indiana, and the Army War College. He leaves his wife, Mrs. Marilla Augusta MacDill, and two daughters, Katherine Rose, 14, and Rose, 11.

Col. MacDill was first commissioned a second lieutenant, Coast Artillery Corps, in 1912. By time of the World War he had been promoted to captain of Air Corps. Overseas he organized the Aerial Gunnery School at St. Jean de Monts, France.

In 1920 he was graduated from Massachusetts Institute of Technology and held several commands until 1930 when he came to Washington in the Plans Division, Office of Chief of Air Corps. After attending the Army and Naval War Colleges, he returned here in 1934.

The bodies of both men are being held at Walter Reed Hospital.

Walton League Maps Campaign To Purify River

Plans for a campaign to clean up pollution of the Anacostia River were adopted last night by the Izaak Walton League at the Raleigh Hotel, following a report on the league's pending suit against the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission and the Washington Suburban Sanitary District.

Joseph Janousek, chairman of the league's legal committee, reported that hearing on a motion by the sanitary commission to dismiss the league's suit is scheduled to be heard in District court Tuesday.

The league, along with two other plaintiffs, one of whom was said to be a child who contracted typhoid fever after wading in a branch off the Anacostia River, is seeking permanently to enjoin the sanitary commission from permitting emptying o f sewerage into the Anacostia River just over the District line in Maryland.

Members last night instructed Attorneys Janousek and Robert C. Handiwork to continue the fight for a temporary restraining order against the sanitary commission, pending a hearing on the plea for a permanent injunction. Janousek said hearing on the latter prayer cannot get on court calendars for another two years because of congestion.

Ruhland Deplores Ban on Syphilitics

The syphilis sufferer who keeps up his treatments faithfully and is therefore non-infectious is no menace to society and should not be discriminated against in any way, Dr. George C. Ruhland, Health officer, said last night.

Addressing the District Medical Society, he deplored the practice of discharging employes found to be suffering from a venereal disease. In addition, he stressed the fact that most syphilis cases among children and many among adults are innocently acquired.

Dr. Ruhland praised the local medical profession for its part in making diagnosis and treatment possible for a greater number of Washingtonians.

60,494 Lead Fortifies O'Conor Victory

Maryland

it was remarkable that he, a Republican, could win at all.

After a thrilling ding-dong battle, W. D. Byron (Democrat) of Williamsport, forged ahead of A. C. Stewart (Republican) of Frostburg, in Maryland's sixth Congressional district. Stewart was leading when Montgomery County came through with a 5,000 majority for Byron.

Byron's apparent capture of the seat held by Representative David J. Lewis, who lost to Tydings in the primary, gave the Democrats all six Maryland seats in the House.

Shocking as was O'Conor's whopping majority to the Republicans and surprising as it was to even most Democrats, was in line with what the 42-year-old Governor-elect had predicted, while pessimistic camp followers were wallowing in gloom. O'Conor's estimate of victory, announced before the balloting started, was 55,000.

Gov. Nice, seeking to be the first Republican Governor to win a second term in Maryland, conceded defeat early yesterday and wired O'Conor "heartiest congratulations." Nice, the third Republican Governor in Maryland's history, rode into office in 1934 when the voters revolted against giving the late Albert C. Ritchie a fifth term.

"Marrying Parsons" Losing

It was clear Tuesday night that the voters had smashed the lucrative practice of the "marrying parsons" in Elkton, and later returns tended to confirm this. With returns from 737 of the 1,288 precincts, the vote was 38,764 to 29,134 in favor of a law requiring a 48-hour interval between the taking out of a license and the marriage ceremony itself.

This would wreck Elkton as a Gretna Green, since the town's charm for romantic couples has been the willingness of the officials and parsons to issue licenses and tie knots at any hour of the day or night.

Couples who like the Elkton style of marriage still have a month of grace, Assistant Attorney General Charles T. Leviness 3d having set December 8 as the effective date of the new law.

Marylanders voted down constitutional amendments for a graduated income tax and a State lottery, the vote in the first being 54,682 to 43,449, and in the second 67,795 to 52,975. This was on the basis of returns from 737 of the 1,288 precincts.

Prince Georges County, which has long been a haven for professional gamblers, voted in favor of legalized lotteries.

A third constitutional amendment, providing for an additional judge on the Eastern Shore, was winning by a 2-to-1 vote.

In yesterday's post-mortem of the gubernatorial race, the chief topic was O'Conor's spectacular run on the Eastern Shore. Both sides waged a dirty campaign there. On the one hand, O'Conor's religion was exploited, and on the other Nice's friendliness toward the colored race. What undoubtedly hurt Nice, however, was the indorsement of him by the C.I.O. John L. Lewis and the C.I.O. are poison to the Eastern Shore, a fact that was thoroughly demonstrated in the case of David J. Lewis.

Whereas Nice was expected to carry seven of the nine Eastern Shore counties, it was O'Conor who was ahead in seven, with Nice leading in only two. These were Dorchester and Somerset.

Throughout the State, O'Conor was leading in 16 counties and Nice in seven. These, besides Dorchester and Somerset, were Allegheny, Garrett, Calvert, Charles and Harford.

With 1,037 out of 1,289 precincts reported, the vote was: O'Conor, 251,0003; Nice, 190,509.

The vote for United States Senator in the same precincts was: Tydings, 285,102; Leser, 120,754.

All Democratic candidates for State offices were elected by smashing majorities, and the Democrats maintained their iron grip on the State Legislature.

At the outset of the campaign, O'Conor advocated a constitutional amendment forbidding a Maryland Governor to succeed himself, and presumably he will have the Legislature initiate such an amendment in the next election.

Two things had the Democrats worried before the election, an undercover campagin against O'Conor and the attitude of Mayor Howard Jackson, whom O'Conor defeated in the primary. One day it would be reported that Jackson would help O'Conor, and the next day it would be reported otherwise. Jackson did get in and pitch toward the end, but as it turned out O'Conor could have won without his help.

The O'Conor organization, which includes National Committeeman Howard Bruce and William Curran, now dominates the Maryland political picture, and the Jackson organization would appear to be in eclipse.

Chest Pledges Are $183,316 For First Day

Special Unit Ahead Government Next Goal Is $2,127,000

Volunteer workers in the Community Chest's annual campaign for funds held their first meeting yesterday and reported $183,316 pledged by 6,357 contributors. The goal is $2,127,000.

The workers, representing every religious, racial, social and economic group, were enthusiastic and hopeful as they gathered in the Willard Hotel and heard reports on the big drive to help the unfortunate and underprivileged who must be helped through member agencies of the Chest.

The special assignment unit, led by Chairman Frederick M. Bradley, reported the largest sum, consisting of 182 pledges for a total of $93,380, or 16.03 per cent of its quota. Reports for this unit were made by Chauncey G. Parker, jr., Maj. David S. Barry, Mrs. Charles A. Goldsmith, Dr. Arthur C. Christie, Newbold Noyes, Andrew Saul atnd Mrs. Reginald Huidekoper. William J. Flather, general campaign chairman, reported for one of the unit's committees.

Mrs. Goldsmith Honored

To Mrs. Charles Goldsmith went the honor award, donated by a local florist, of flowers for her achievement in obtaining the largest number of increases in the pledges she reported for her committee of the special assignment unit.

From Metropolitan Unit, reporting contributions in the house-to-house solicitation, as well as from business firms having less than 15 employes, came the report, made by Chairman W. W. Wheeler, of 877 pledges obtained, totaling $15,381.30, or 7.6 per cent of the Metropolitan Unit quota.

Report of the largest number of pledges and the second largest total for the first day's results came from the Governmental Unit, for which Alvin W. Hall, chairman, reported 3,840 pledges, totaling $39,605.54, or 4.96 per cent of the unit's goal.

For the Suburban Unit, Randolph Leigh, chairman, giving results for but two of the five suburban areas which are joining in the Greater Washington Community Chest campaign, reported 97 pledges totaling $1,279.05, or 1.97 per cent of the total suburban quota. Arlington and Fairfax were the two areas heard from.

Capital Unit Reports

Herbert L. Willett, jr., director of the Chest, announced the results reported Tuesday evening in a special meeting of the Capital Unit, which is conducting solicitation among those of the colored population not reached through the Group or Special Assignment Units, as 127 pledges totaling $572.39, or 5.2 per cent of the Capital Unit's quota.

Quotas of the six soliciting units, which make up to the total campaign goal of $2,127,000 for Greater Washington, are as follows: Metropolitan, $201,000; Group, $468,000; Special Assignments, $584,000; Governmental $798,000; Capital, $11,000; and Suburban, $65,000.

Mrs. James L. Houghteling, who as co-chairman with Alvin W. Hall in the Governmental unit, heads the special gifts committee of that unit, states that the members of her committee are Mrs. Hamilton V. Bryan, Mrs. Elbert K. Burlew, Mrs. Wayne Chatfield-Taylor, Mrs. Preston Delan, Mrs. Charles Edison, Mrs. Ralston, Mrs. Robert H. Jackson, Mrs. Charles Jones, Mrs. Basil Manly, Mrs. W. R. Munroe, Mrs. Richard C. Patterson, Mrs. Frederick G. Richards, Mrs. Richardson Saunders, Mrs. George Otis Spencer and Mrs. Edwin M. Watson.

Four Units Far Over

Four Governmental unit divisions achieved results far beyond their assigned quotas, Chairman Alvin W. Hall pointed out.

The Community Chest yesterday faced possibility of a tie-up in its hospitalization fund as Director Willett, charged that contribution pledge "riders," distributed by the Citizens Committee for Medical Freedom, would result in a "boomerang" which would deny Washington's neediest persons of Chest aid.

Purge

ganization and asked for time to study it. They also urged in vain that the ousted civil service employes be given a hearing as requested by Arnold.

Voting with the chairman were Commissioners Eugene O. Sykes, Thad H. Brown and Paul Walker. Commissioner Norman S. Case, who complained loudly against the ouster of Arnold, voted with the majority on Wisner's dismissal.

Commissioner T. A. M. Craven, after a futile plea to the chairman to give the commissioners time to consider the proposed reorganization, voted against all motions, as did Commissioner George Henry Payne.

"I regret that the majority of this commission desired to terminate the services of men who have long and faithfully served this Government as well as this commission," he said. "In my opinion the men discharged were efficient and honest."

"I regret that, in view of the ramifications of this action, those individual commissioners who were taken by surprise were not accorded the courtesy to study the proposals at greater length. . . .

"I voted 'no' with respect to the abolition of the examining department because I felt that grave questions of procedure involving undesirable control of the nation's communications system might be involved and because I felt that long Government service and excellent record of efficiency should be recognized by this commission.

"Moreover, I felt that these men should be given an opportunity to be heard by the commissioners prior to their severence from service. Likewise I am concerned with reference to the effect on civil service in Government by action such as that taken taday."

Yesterday's FCC action widened the rift that has been growing steadily within the commission since McNinch inaugurated his purge and assured a Congressional airing of the whole affair early next session.

McNinch would not say whether he planned to return to the Federal Power Commission before Congress convenes, but it is understood that he intends to do so.

When questioned at a press conference, he indicated he stood ready to recommend a shake-up in the commission itself should President Roosevelt ask for his advice. He denied, however, that he might advocate a single administrator in lieu of the seven-man bi-partisan commission.

Didn't Consult President

"I do think there are distinct advantages in the centralization of authority," he said, "but I believe that the work under the present set-up would be too much for one man."

The diminutive FCC chairman stated that he had not consulted President Roosevelt on his reorganization plan. He insisted, however, that he had been given free rein by the President when he was appointed more than a year ago.

Arnold and Wisner were ousted with but two hours' notice, their service to be discontinued as of 4:30 p. m., although they were allowed accumulated leave.

While Wisner had not decided whether or not he will seek an appeal from the commission's action under his civil service rights, observers familiar with the civil service act said he had recourse to the commission or to the courts as his job was abolished as a subterfuge.

The subterfuge, it was pointed out, lay in the fact that his duties were assigned to a new employe, M. L. Ramsay, who will be directly under the supervision of McNinch. His tenure, however, is only for a 90-day period, and he was lent by the Rural Electrification Administration.

"The action of the commission came as a gerat surprise to me," said Wisner, a veteran newspaperman who once worked in the Washington bureaus of the New York World and the Baltimore Sun.

"At no time has the chairman indicated to me he contemplated such action. I paid no attention to rumors that he was after my scalp since at a recent press conference he said he did not plan to disturb civil service employes."

12 Years in Civil Service

Explaining that he had been under civil service for 12 years, his services starting back to the founding of the old Federal Radio Commission, Wisner added:

"My record at the Civil Service Commission led me to believe I would be protected from arbitrary actions. It is evident in this case civil service broke down completely and the law was ignored by circumvention. No one under civil service henceforth can feel secure."

Arnold, who had been with the commission since its inception, attacked the McNinch move to abolish the examining division, pointing out that it "puts the judicial work of the commission directly under the authority and control of the legal department, which in many matters represents the opposition."

Scoffing at the suggestion the examining division was inefficient, he pointed out the commission has approved approximately 92 per cent of the examiners' reports.

Frequently, Arnold said, he had made proposals to the chairman regarding improvements in the division only to have them disregarded.

"The chairman from time to time has had talks with the press, which have been mimeographed and distributed," he said, "and from them I have endeavored to get some word from the chairman as to olicy . . .

"Good Salary for Republican"

"The civil service regulations provide no protection whatsoever in a case of this kind. The fact that the person concerned has military preference and years of faithful service are of no avail.

"If, through a whim, as in this case, one man having dictatorial power over a number of men, desire for any reason to eliminate a person, he can do so regardless of the consequences to said person.

"If I were employed by a corporation outside the Government, I would automatically be entitled to a hearing before an agency of the Government."

Arnold, in recounting how his resignation had been demanded by Chairman McNinch early last week, said that when he complained that a $5,000 job in the Veterans' Administartion offered him was insufficient, McNinch commented that "in these days that is a very good salary for a Republican."

Arnold received $7,000 at the FCC.

Under the new commission set-up any employe, according to McNich, may be assigned to a job of holding a preliminary inquiry, after which the record will be submitted to the commission without recommendation for action.

McNich said that under the old system, which is still followed by other governmental commission, "persons have inferred the commission has political motives when sometimes it over-rode the recommendation of an examiner."

While stating that the reorganization was on the whole completed, he intimated a few more personnel changes may yet follow.

One of the FCC subordinate officials how was marked originally for the purge, T. G. Slovie, the secretary, apparently has escaped the ax for the time being because of his political influence on Capitol Hill, where he formerly was secretary to Representative Jacobson (Democrat), of Iowa.

Trenton Youth Slain, Girl Attacked And Shot by Thug

Trenton, N. J., Nov. 9 (AP).—Fictional murder on bleak Duck Island as portrayed by Ellery Queen in his mystery novel, "Half-Way House," was overshadowed today by the real-life slaying of a youth and the attack-shooting of his 16-year-old girl companion.

The youth, tentatively identified as Vincenzo Tonzello, 20, of Trenton, was shot through the neck last night when he resisted hold-up demands of an assailant who approached Tonzello's coupe parked on the island which Queen used as a setting for his murder thriller.

Miss Mary Mytovich, also of Trenton, lay near death in a hospital today. She told police a colored man shot her escort when he refused demands for money, then criminally attacked her, shot her and fled.

may rely upon this commitment for their take out," Jones said.

The New York Stock Exchange opened with a bang yesterday morning with news of the election trend, and its tempo increased as further returns intensified the right-wing character of the voters' reaction. The upsurge continued in the afternoon and prices closed at their high for the day.

Such stocks as Du Pont, Bethlehem and U. S. Steel, Chrysler, New York Central and other rails, American Waterworks and Consolidated Edison, among the utilities, were traded heavily and made pronounced gains.

Rail and utility bonds displayed strength and commodities, including wheat and cotton, rose moderately.

The FHA reported property loans of 53,594, with a value of $22,367,119, in October, the highest monthly volume since the amended national housing act went into effect last February.

The October figures carried the total gross business transacted by the FHA since its establishment in 1934 over the $3,000,000,000 mark.

For the past eight months, the period during which the amended FHA program has been in effective operation, mortgages selected for appraisal totaled approximately $777,000,000, an increase of 80 per cent over the $435,000,000 selected in the same months of 1937. In the same period this year, mortgages accepted totaled $500,000,000, an increase of 51 per cent over the $330,000,000 accepted in the corresponding period of 1937.

Employment Gains

The National Industrial Conference Board, breaking down its reported employment gains, said that industrial employment rose 3.2 per cent, as 479,000 workers were added; extraction of minerals showed the largest percentage gain, with 5.1 per cent, 35,000 workers, and manufacturing had the greatest single advance in volume, as 316,000 workers joined the 9,251,000 it already employed. The construction industry hired an additional 100,000 persons, and transportation 28,000, while the only decline occurred in public utilities, in which the loss was only 0.2 per cent.

The board said that while industrial prices have risen with improved business conditions, a study shows that the prices of 11 out of 12 principal farm commodities were much lower in September than the September average for the years 1923-25.

Philadelphia, Nov. 9 (AP).—Attorneys for Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City told the United States Circuit Court today "disorder, riots and bloodshed" might result if an injunction curbing the city's right to ban meetings were enforced.

The court reserved decision on their request to set aside an order by Judge William Clark which gave the C.I.O. and allied organizations equal meeting privileges with other groups.

Nazis Burn Synagogue As Rath Dies

French Agency Closed
Dessau Riots Break Out
Jews' Expulsion Seen

By the United Press.

Berlin, Nov. 9.—Enraged Nazis today burned a synagogue and forced the closing of the French Tourist Agency in Berlin as the government warned all Jews that they would suffer for the death of Ernst von Rath, minor Nazi diplomat shot in Paris by a 17-year-old Polish Jew.

Indignation mounted after word reached Berlin that the 32-year-old Rath, third secretary of the German embassy in Paris, had died from two bullet wounds inflicted by Herschel Grynszpan.

Reichsfuehrer Hitler sent a telegram of condolence to Rath's parents, condemning "the cowardly assassination."

Disorders in Dessau

In addition to the burning of the synagogue at Hersfield and the anti-Semitic demonstrations outside the French Tourist Agency here, disorders broke out in Dessau.

Authorities, describing the Dessau demonstrations as "spontaneous," said the police were sent into action "for the protection of the Jews."

The Berliner Tageblatt warned the Jews that their "new blood guilt is monstrous" and called for "complete defense against the incitement to murder in the service in the Jewish cause."

Rath, nephew of the late German ambassador to Paris, Roland Koester, died in the Alma clinic despite the efforts of Hitler's personal physician to save his life. His parents were at his side when he died.

Rath Joins Martyrs

Hitler rushed his personal physician, Dr. Brandt, and Prof. Georg Magnus, of the surgical clinic of Munich University, to Paris by special airplane immediately after the shooting Monday.

As Nazi anger mounted, and with key German publications threatening merciless retaliation, Rath was being cast in the role of a Nazi martyr, in much the same manner as Horst Wessel and Wilhelm Gustloff. Gustloff, a Nazi agent, was slain in Switzerland in 1936 by a Yugoslav Jew named David Frankfurter.

Only a few hours before Rath's death Hitler had announced his elevation to the rank of legation counsellor, first class, as "recognition of his devotion to duty at the risk of his life."

Reprisals Promised

Later, the foreign office spokesman said that the young career diplomat's death was "a sacrifice to service."

Rath, in Paris only three months, previously had suffered serious illness while in the diplomatic service in Calcutta, the spokesman said.

"The death of Rath will not alter our position, but our indignation is strengthened," the propaganda ministry said.

"The fact cannot be disguised that the purpose of the murderer and the people behind him was to kill Rath.

"It is only natural that the steps which the German government has in mind will not act for the benefit of the Jews."

There were strong indications, as Nazis in the streets put into action the anti-Jewish torrents in the press, that the government contemplated the expulsion from Germany of all foreign Jews.

Various retaliatory measures, including bans on Jewish publications and meetings and Jewish attendance in primary schools, already were under way.

French Take Precautions

[The French government took measures to cope with any intensification of anti-Jewish agitation.

[Foreign Minister Bonnet extended the condolences of the government, which was reported to have decided on measures to reinforce its surveillance of foreigners.

[The conservative press, while not indorsing violent anti-Jewish attacks, insisted that measures be taken to prevent a repetition of any such incident as the shooting of Rath.—Editor's note.]

Japan Closes Pincers on Hunan Region

Hankow Army Gains
Canton Forces Resisted
500,000 Chinese Battle

By the United Press.

Shanghai (Thursday), Nov. 10.—The Japanese drive to clear the Canton-Hankow Railway was making headway today despite strong Chinese opposition, and it appeared that a great new battle was developing along two fronts—north of Changsha, capital of Hunan Province, and south of Henyang, Chinese divisional headquarters in South-Central Hunan.

Two large Japanese armies, split into many columns, were participating in the operation. The first, a part of the forces which captured Hankow, was moving southward on both sides of the railway in North Hunan and had taken a dozen towns. Its vanguard, however, had been pushed back from the immediate vicinity of Changsha. The second army was moving north from Canton.

The Japanese reported Chinese Gen. Chiang had more than 500,000 men in the Changsha-Henyang zone.

Henyang is the apex of a strong communications triangle, the right leg of which is the Canton-Hankow Railway, the left leg a branch line running into Kwangsi Province, and the base a line running northwest along the Pearl River from Canton to Wuchow and thence to Kwailin, Kwangsi capital.

The Japanese already control the southeastern angle of the triangle, through their occupation of Canton, but have not yet been able to clear the Pearl River as far as Wuchow, an important military base, where Gen. Pai Chung-Hsi and Li Tsung-Jen have an estimated 200,000 well-trained Kwangsi Province troops.

Italy Approves New 'Aryan' Code of Law

Individual Subordinated
IntermarriageForbidden
Orphans State Wards

By the Associated Press.

Rome, Nov. 9.—The Italian cabinet today approved the first section of a revised civil code incorporating the new Italian racial theory of "Aryanism" as rejuvenating along Fascist lines Italy's ages-old "Roman and Christian juridical traditions."

This was the first of three sections of the new civil code and dealt largely with family relations.

Although the code was not published, the cabinet's communique indicated that:

Individual rights would be subordinated increasingly to the general welfare of the state.

Marriage between Italians and "non-Aryans" would be forbidden.

The government would interest itself directly in the upbringing of orphans and illegitimate children to insure their training in Fascist ideals.

Jews would not be permitted to adopt or act as guardians of Aryan children.

The communique said the cabinet would approve further racial laws tomorrow.

(The cabinet's action supplemented sweeping anti-Jewish decrees promulgated by the Fascist Grand Council October 7, and made to apply to persons both of whose parents were Jews, persons with Jewish fathers and "Aryan" mothers and persons whose parents professed the Jewish religion regardless of race.

(Under one of these decrees marriages between Italian "Aryans" and persons of "African, Semitic and other races" were banned.)

The government "absolutely prohibited" the use of foreign names—such as Hollywood and Florida—for places of "public spectacles" (entertainment) in Italy.

One night club previously had changed its name from "Hollywood" to "ABC" in anticipation of the decree approved by the cabinet.

Many dancing places have used such names as "Washington," "Florida," and "Columbia."

its revised policy, reneges on its previous indorsement of the Peel plan and accepts the view of the Woodhead commission.

The Chamberlain government, according to the white paper, decided that the "political, administrative and financial difficulties involved in a proposal to create independent Arab and Jewish state inside Palestine are so great that this solution of the problem is impracticable."

While the British will "continue their responsibility or the government of the whole of Palestine," they still face the problem of restoring law and order. Believing that the "surest foundation for peace and progress in Palestine would be an understanding between the Arabs and the Jews," Britain will try to promote such an understanding by inviting representatives of the Palestinian Arabs and of neighboring Arab state, on the one hand, and of the Jewish Agency on the other, to confer as soon as possible regarding future policy, including the question of immigration into Palestine.

Invitations to Parley Sent

The Jewish agency is the organization with which Britain deals under the terms of the League of Nations mandate.

It will not be so easy to select the Arab delegates. Invitations have gone out to Palestine and certain other Arab countries—Irak, Transjordania, Saudi-Arabia, Syria and Egypt.

The Grand Mufti of Jerusalem, who has been directing the rebellion from his exile in Syria, will be barred, together with his chief henchmen, as Britain, in inviting Palestinian Arabs to the conference, reserved the right to "refuse to receive those leaders whom they regard as responsible for the campaign of assassination and violence."

This prohibition may possibly result in a boycott of the London conference by the Arab countries. It will be remembered that the Arabs in Palestine refused to co-operate with the Woodhead commission.

ADD I—

Britain May Decide

If the conference is boycotted by the Arabs, or if i tis held but no agreement is reached, Britain announces it will make its own decision as to the future of Palestine.

The best information is that, in place of partition, now abandoned as useless, the British are toying with the idea of some sort of cantonal government to give both Arabs and Jwes home rule and protection of their civil and religious rights. The cantons would be linked together by a separate federal government, controlled by Great Britain, which would retain domination of the defense forces, the oil pipelines and the economics and finances of the country.

It may be taken for granted that the British are determined to intensify their grip on Palestine, rather than loosen it. Control of Palestine is vital to safeguard the British position in the eastern Mediterranean, in the Red Sea and in India.

The abandonment of partition, if followed by the conversion of Palestine into a federal government ith home rule for Arabs and Jews, fits in with the Arab peace plan brought to London several weeks ago by the Irak foreign minister. This plan also calls for stoppage of Jewish immigration, so that the Arabs may preserve their 2-to-1 majority over the Jewish population.

Jews Stand Firm

The Jewish Agency for Palestine tonight served notice that it can be a party to further discussions "only on the basis of the Balfour declaration and the mandate." The Woodhead report is rejected as a basis for negotiations. The Woodhead commission is accused of disregarding Britain's obligation to facilitate the establishment of a Jewish national home in Palestine.

"Grave apprehensions" are voiced regarding the British invitation to neighboring Arab states to send delegates to London. "Those states," according to the Jewish agency, "have no special status in regard to Palestine. Insofar as they are members of the League of Nations, their rights are no greater than those of other states members of the league, or of the United States of America."

2 Clashes in Palestine

Jerusalem, Nov. 9 (AP).—Revolt-torn Palestine seemed no nearer peace tonight, despite Great Britain's call for an Arab-Jewish conference.

Both Arabs and Jews felt major issues in the bitter controversy, which already has brought 31 months of Civil War to the Holy Land, had been left hanging fire.

British troops and Arabs clashed in Palestine today. Two soldiers were killed and five were injured. Arab casualties were not learned.

Troops were ambushed on the Tel Aviv-Haifa road and Arabs staged a surprise attack on a garrison at a village near Tulkarm.

It was learned today that 51 of 68 persons condemned since the establishment of military courts November 18 last year had been hanged. Sentences of the others were commuted. Two of the 68 were Jews, the rest Arabs.

Lloyd George Warns Nation

London, Nov. 9.—David Lloyd George, war-time premier, characterizing Britain's foreign policy as always "complete surrender to the dictators," said today that as a result Japan intended to march to the boundaries of Burma.

"For the first time," he told Commons, "they are right on our frontier, a great aggressive, military empire commanding millions of soldiers. It is a very grave event for the British Empire."

Richard Austen Butler, undersecretady for foreign affairs, told Commons Britain would not approve Japan's plan to shut Western powers out of China by forming a Chinese-Japanese-Manchukuo economic and political bloc. He said Britain had made a protest to Japan, similar to that of the United States of October 6.

Later, at the annual lord mayor's banquet, Prime Minister Chamberlain predicted "quieter times for Europe and pledged British armament "commensurate with the part we want to play in maintaining peace.

"If we see peace threatened, we shall use any influence we may have to save it. If war breaks out, we shall take any means we can see to stop it," he said.

HELP KIDNEYS PASS 3 LBS. A DAY

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the cause of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

bration and to begin a derby between Washington and New York.

The pigeon club whose birds arrive at New York first will receive trophies awarded Friday night at the American Legion Clubhouse in New York City. The derby will call attention to the valuable work done by carrier pigeons during the World War, especially that of "Cher Ami"—the pigeon which received the Distinguished Service Cross.

Principal services of the day will be held at Arlington National Cemetery at 11 a. m., with President Roosevelt in attendance. The President will lay a wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier and deliver an address, which will be broadcast.

Beginning at noon, the American Legion will be "on the air" for an hour in a program dedicated to "enduring peace and the deeper significance" of the first Armistice.

Other American Legion activities of the day, in addition to those by various units, will be the University of Miami and Catholic University football game at Griffith Stadium at 2:30 p. m. and attendance at the Armistice ball given by United States Treasury Post No. 35, at the National Press Club at 10 p. m.

The ball at the Press Club will be featured by a military pageant in which 75 uniformed members of the Legion's National Guard of Honor will participate.

President and Mrs. Roosevelt head the list of patrons and patronesses at 7:30 p. m.

for the twentieth annual Armistice Day ball which Veterans of Foreign Wars of the District of Columbia will give at the Willard Hotel tomorrow night. Secretary of War and Mrs. Woodring, and many service officials will be among the other distinguished guests present.

Miss Hector Is Peace Queen

A tableau featuring the crowning of the Queen of Peace will be staged. Harriet Hoctor will be the peace queen.

At the Washington Cathedral, services will be held from 3 to 3:30 p. m. under sponsorship of the Woodrow Wilson Armistice Day committee, of which Mrs. Kate Trenholm Abrams is chairman. Dr. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, will deliver the address. Floral tributes will be placed on the tomb of Woodrow Wilson.

Under joint auspices of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War and the Cathedral staff, the fourth annual Armistice Day services in tribute to "nurses and other women who served the country in time of war." will be held at the Cathedral at 3.45 p. m.

St. John's Church, Sixteenth and H. streets northwest, will be among the other churches having services. Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, commander, District National Guard, heads the committee in charge of this service, which begins at 10:55 a. m.

American War Mothers will hold services on steps of the Capitol at 11 a. m.

Among the A. E. F. divisions which will stage Armistice Day reunions will be the "Red Diamond Division," surviving members of which will meet at 1219 E street northwest, at 7:30 for dinner. The Third Division Society of Washington will place wreaths on the graves of Maj. Gen. Joseph T. Dickman and Maj. Gen. U. G. McAlexander in Arlington at 10 and 10:15 a. m., attend services staged by the Second Division at 2 p. m., and eat with the "Red Diamonds"

Kaiser Passes 20th Year of Exile

Doorn, The Netherlands, Nov. 9 (AP).—Hale and hearty for his 79 years, former Kaiser Wilhelm II today counted off another of the 20 years in exile which started when he deserted his crumbling German empire for sanctuary in The Netherlands.

In Germany no one paid attention to the anniversary. His fourth son, Prince August Wilhelm, was promoted to become an obergruppenfuehrer in Adolf Hitler's Storm Troopers—a rank equal to that of an army corps commander.

Against Great Odds

The political stature of Thomas E. Dewey is emphasized by the narrow margin by which he was defeated. It was the general consensus of political commentators that he was unlikely to achieve victory against the overwhelming odds that confronted him in the New York campaign. That he came so close to upsetting expert forecasts is a tribute to the energy, wisdom and astuteness with which he fought a combination of political forces that would have intimidated most men.

With the President of the United States strongly urging re-election of Gov. Lehman, with the entrenched forces of the local political machines on the side of those in power, and with the generally impressive record of his opponent thrown in for good measure, Mr. Dewey notwithstanding lost by a trifling percentage of the total vote. He far outran the ticket.

In Ohio another contest against great odds will bring into the Senate a comparatively young Republican—Robert A. Taft. Like Mr. Dewey, Mr. Taft's main attack was directed against inadequate fulfillment of New Deal promises and ineffective administration of reform legislation. Neither candidate adopted the carping tones of the reactionary or indulged in merely negative criticism. In their concentration on administrative defects, and especially in the case of Mr. Dewey upon the failure of the party in power to keep reform free from the contamination of the spoilsman, they were directing their shafts at the weakest spot in the Democratic armor.

Thus the stage has been set for a 1940 electoral battle that seems destined to be waged about questions of the best methods of achieving aims considered desirable by all. The chief difference between so-called conservatives and liberals is apt to be misunderstood. They differ as a rule primarily in their views as to the rapidity with which reforms can be made effective. That is a lesson that the younger Republicans have been driving home in the present campaign.

Peace By Consent

Dropping of the criminal proceedings under the antitrust laws against the Ford and Chrysler Motor companies is expected to follow agreement upon the terms of a consent decree concerning the methods of financing the purchase of automobiles. However, an acceptable plan has not been worked out for General Motors, which apparently intends to fight the case to a finish.

Settlement by agreement is the intelligent way of handling controversial issues that arise in connection with enforcement of the antitrust laws. Long-drawn-out court battles seldom afford an adequate solution of the questions at issue. Moreover, they consume a great deal of time and entail serious expense for both the Government and the companies concerned.

The consent decree has another advantage in this case; it has enabled the Government to secure from the companies certain concessions in regard to methods of advertising which they do not believe to be covered by the prohibitions of the antitrust laws. The companies have agreed not to use their superior financial resources to advertise the advantages of any particular finance company. In the future they promise to promote the business of all companies conforming to the "plan of financing considered most efficient in distributing the maximum number of automobiles."

Two other voluntary restrictions to which the companies have agreed are thoroughly desirable as they are intended to protect improvident persons with low income from becoming the victims of high-powered salesmanship. To that end, wage assignments on low-priced pleasure cars are banned, while salaries may not be garnisheed in case of default. Moreover, a deficiency judgment shall not be taken in the case of a man buying a car for private use if he has paid 50 per cent of the price.

This form of settlement does not imply that the companies have been guilty of violations of the law, as the defense has not been heard. Finally, and especially important, the willingness of the Department of Justice to drop criminal antitrust-law proceedings under proper safeguards holds out hope that voluntary co-operation will increasingly provide a solution of the problems of law enforcement under the antitrust act.

Boring From Within

Witnesses before the Dies Committee investigating un-American activities have not been selected with the intelligent discrimination that should have been exercised to eliminate irrelevant and untrustworthy testimony. However, final judgment as to the value of the inquiry will be deferred until the documentary evidence in possession of the committee has been published, and the credibility of unsubstantiated charges determined.

In one respect there is no doubt that the Dies committee has performed a public service. It has brought to light certain seemingly uncontested facts demanding legislative consideration, about the past records and political professions of Government officials holding very responsible administrative posts. It is, for instance, startling to hear that the chief economist of the National Labor Relations Board once wrote a book on "Left Wing Unionism" which is now said to be used as a text by a Communist training school. It is likewise a matter of concern to learn that the recently appointed deputy wage-hour administrator suggested in an article, published a few years ago, that capitalists and "their fancy pieces of paper and the whole capitalist shell game can sink and be damned."

Of course such lurid expressions of opinion do not necessarily disqualify a man for accepting a lucrative position in the service of a capitalistic nation. So long as parlor Bolsheviks do not advocate forcible overthrow of existing institutions none can logically object to their enjoying the emoluments accorded the more conventional-minded. The individual's right to express freely his views, whether he leans toward communistic ideals or favors other authoritarian forms of totalitarian dictatorship, is recognized under our American system.

There are, however, certain types of Government positions that should not be occupied by men with a communistic turn of mind. That is especially true of important administrative posts whose incumbents are expected to regulate industrial activities or establish better relalationships between employers and employes. Employer co-operation in making a success of collective bargaining, for instance, is extremely difficult to obtain if there is reasonable suspicion that the governmental authorities are personally hostile to the system of private ownership and management of industry.

For such reasons it is most important to have knowledge of the social and economic views of persons occupying responsible appointive posts in the Government service. Their past records as well as their political beliefs are likely to be strong factors in determining the degree of their success in dealing with the problems that are assigned to them. Moreover, it is desirable to guard against the infiltration into public service of too many persons who have a strong desire to see revolutionary changes in the United States.

Perhaps the Dies committee can throw more light on the antecedents of Government officeholders who obviously are handicapped in the efficient performance of their duties by their bias in favor of one group of citizens as against another. Of course, in such inquiry, every opportunity should be accorded those concerned to refute possibly unjust charges and protect themselves against misrepresentation of their actual views.

Qualitative Gains

Among the most striking results of the election is the large number of cases in which a man of obviously superior type was chosen by the electorate, regardless both of his own previous political experience and of the organization strength behind his antagonist.

One such instance is found in the outcome in Massachusetts, where the veteran James M. Curley was defeated for the governorship by Leverett Saltonstall, a lawyer and civic leader in Boston whose name has heretofore been virtually unknown to political circles outside his native State.

The same overthrow of a firmly entrenched politician was witnessed in New Jersey, where William H. J. Ely, former WPA administrator for the State, was beaten by former Senator Barbour in spite of the powerful machine backing given his opponent by Boss Hague, "my leader" to Mr. Ely. The crushing rebuff given by the voters applied not merely to the colorless Mr. Ely but more notably to his far more dangerous Fuehrer.

Equally remarkable was the amazing race run by Raymond E. Willis against Senator Van Nuys in Indiana. Mr. Willis has never been prominent in political life, even in his own State, and was not conceded to have a chance against a highly organized Democratic State machine. But the complete honesty and obvious rectitude of the man brought to his support hundreds of thousands of voters to whom his name was unknown a year ago.

These are not isolated instances. Many cases could be cited where modest men of high integrity fought with well-entrenched politicians and won out. In other cases, of which the splendid fight by Thomas E. Dewey in New York was outstanding, defeat for these crusaders was by so narrow a margin as to be almost as significant a portent as victory would have been. Particularly is this the case when consideration is given to the effect on the electorate of all the New Deal's actual and potential subsidies.

Obviously principles were a fundamental issue in this election. Obviously the voters rallied, in unexpected numbers, to men who inspired confidence, who counted less on promises and platitudes than on their own strength of character. And it is demonstrated again that the old-style political machine, the "get-out-the-vote" type of leader, is helpless whenever an aroused democracy goes to the polls with the intention of defending what it holds dear.

The Republican representation in the next Congress will be notable for the character of many of its new members as well as for the doubling of its numerical strength. It will constitute not merely a powerful opposition, but also an intelligent and idealistic opposition. Under the hammerings of adversity Republicanism has clearly undergone regeneration. Its gains are as notable from the qualitative as from the quantitative standpoint.

Killing The Goose

Further evidence of the mounting financial difficulties faced by Fascist Italy is found in the new capital levy imposed on private industry and business in the kingdom.

Every partnership and every private company with gross earnings of more than $526.50 a year will be subjected to this tax which will be equal to 7½ per cent of the capital value of these firms. The money so derived will be used for the purpose of developing Ethiopia and matching other powers in rearmament.

This action by the Italian government creates the presumption that neither the exploitation of Ethiopia's highly publicized but actually dubious resources nor any further expansion in Italy's military, naval and air establishments can be achieved if the government has to depend on ordinary receipts alone.

Of course, Mussolini could have resorted to further internal borrowing. But aside from the fact that this procedure, if over-indulged in, is likely to produce an inflationary movement, there is probably the further difficulty, in Italy's case, that the domestic money market is now saturated with government paper. Hence the Fascist government has found it necessary to resort to capital levies, at first restricted to large corporations and real estate holdings but now extended to all other businesses.

There is one curious sidelight on this action. The original advocates of the capital levy were the extremists of the Left—Socialists and Communists, the betes noires of the Fascists. But it is the Fascists who have been the first to apply this financial guillotine.

A capital levy tends to kill the goose that lays the golden egg. By destroying capital it reduces industry's capacity to produce taxable income. Only nations suffering from financial pernicious anemia feel compelled to use this dangerous device. That appears to be Italy's plight today.

Third Party Debacles

The American political climate has never been favorable to third parties. It is not now.

It is a rare phenomenon in our history for an insurgent movement to take real root in the Nation as a whole and become a formidable contender for control of the Federal Government. When that has happened, and the rise of the Republican Party in the fifties of the last century is the outstanding instance, it has been primarily due to the crumbling of one or the other of the major parties giving the new movement a replacement character.

As a result of the elections of 1932, 1934 and 1936 the disappearance of the Republican Party seemed to many to have become a possibility. That helps to explain why in various parts of the country third-party movements achieved unusual prominence during this period. But by the same token the tremendous vigor shown by the Republicans in Tuesday's balloting has again put third-party movements in eclipse.

In Wisconsin, for instance, the rejuvenation of the Republican Party has terminated the prolonged rule of the La Follettes. In so doing it has dealt a probably fatal blow to Gov. La Follette's Independent Progressive Party. In Minnesota, the Republican revival has also given the coup de grace to Gov. Benson and his Farmer-Labor Party.

In New York a third-party movement did hold its own last Tuesday. But there the American Labor Party, whose 400,000 voters certainly played a role in bringing about Gov. Lehman's victory over Thomas E. Dewey, succeeded only to the extent that it formed alliances with the Democrats. In other words, its present importance in New York State politics consists in holding the balance of power.

Still confined to the Empire State, its national significance remains even less than that of the Socialists. In view of what happened Tuesday to the La Follette regime, and to the Farmer-Labor Party in Minnesota, the American Labor Party's development along national lines does not appear to be a political probability.

Armistice Day Homily

To the Editor of the Post—Sir: Soon most of the western nations will commemorate the end of the first World War. The frenzy of joy and the feeling of relief at the termination of this holocaust are, unfortunately, almost forgotten. Since then the scarred earth has been tilled, the decimated armies have been reassembled and multiplied, the implements of war made more deadly and "statesmen" are again barking threats and on the march.

Sacrificing the social welfare of their countries, to which they always pay lip service, the Fascist dictators have geared all the productive and psychological forces at their command to the establishment of a nation in arms. On the pretext that they are crusaders against communism, Hitler and Mussolini, as well as the Japanese military, have trampled upon peace loving France, Chamberlain and Daladier, to do their bidding. Each concession they obtain, each violation of rights and treaties they commit, is followed by another demand; they will never be satisfied.

Because it is an ideology and a structure of society which negates the best interests of humanity, fascism can only be maintained in the abnormality of an aggressive military spirit. Hence, no peace can be expected while there are Fascist regimes.

The whole world, including the people of Germany and Italy, dreads war; but basic defects in our present form of society, which, incidentally, make possible fascism, cause its recurrence every few years.

Therefore, instead of celebrating Armistice Day with men marching with glistening bayonets to the rumble of tanks and the beating of drums, it would be more sensible that those who saw their companions torn on the battlefield march in solemn sorrow for the waste, the slaughter, the destruction, the misery and the stupidity that is war. And, if we are to observe in proper manner this day, we should all resolve to do everything in our power to eliminate the causes of war.

Thompson For President

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Please may I congratulate Dorothy Thompson, on her excellent article of Monday, October 21. What we need in this country today are more men and women like her. I wonder do the people of this country realize we never had a woman President. Now mind you, this is if our dear F. D. R. refuses to run for a third term, because there isn't a man big enough today for our next President. So if I may suggest it, how about Dorothy Thompson for President?

Better Public Service

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: "Better Public Service," your editorial of November 8, sounds an harmonious chord in the civil service anthem. The idea expressed is a challenge to present-day procedures. "Merit system" and "career service" should be dropped from the common vocabulary, if departmental administrators, and even legislators, are to handicap the attainment of the ideal.

Conspicuous on the calendar of civil service breakdowns are executive orders; next, the disposition of the "ins" to favor the "outs," notwithstanding the committed deed may rule from earned consideration a long-time public servant—somewhat on the theory that the first offense will not be harmful. But why go on? Deteriorating practices exist and persist. They will continue as long as directors of personnel and their next of kin are permitted to destroy rather than build an "insured" civil service program of unerring action.

This type of editorial expression aligns The Post as the champion of a righteous cause.

Mr. Dies Commended

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The letter in your issue of November 4 signed "Against Isms" is about the truest statement I have ever seen in your or any other paper. If we had more mayors like Hague, we would be better off and safer.

Some day the citizens of these United States are going to wake up and find out that the enemy is not only "at our gates," but is climbing in everywhere and in every way. Too many people are saying: "You are only fighting shadows," but let me tell you, my fellow countrymen, the Communist menace is real; it is more dangerous than anyone has yet said.

The Dies committee appointed by Congress to investigate this most important danger is given a paltry $25,000. The La Follette committee is given $150,000, and the monopoly investigating committee is given $500,000. The Dies committee is doing a real job and, if properly backed, as they should be, will save this glorious country from the Red murderers of Russia. But what do they get, even from headquarters? Gibes, jeers and ridicule. Mr. Dies is a brave man and will, without doubt, accomplish what he set out to do, in spite of the "ornery" treatment he is getting.

German Christians Refugees

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is incredible how few Americans realize that the problem of persecution in Germany is not confined to those of the Jewish race and religion. The highly efficient German propaganda machine has emphasized the Jewish angle so vehemently that even the minds of those in other countries have been beclouded. The truth is that a large number of the German refugees are Christians. It is true that many of them have Jewish blood, inherited in most cases from a distant Jewish ancestor; but some are pure-blooded Aryans.

Myron C. Taylor stated at the recent Evian Conference that 660,000 persons now in Germany and Austria must emigrate to other countries with the least possible delay. About 360,000 of this number, or more than half, are Christians. And Mr. Taylor's estimate did not include any one over 50 years of age!

In addition to these there are the thousands of Christians who have fled from Germany since the beginning of the Hitler regime. Thrown from their jobs, their homes and their fatherland, Christian families who have no place to go and no one to whom they can turn represent the epitome of tragedy. The annexation by Germany of the Sudetenland has added tremendously to the refugee problem. Four hundred thousand people are fleeing from that territory, and it is estimated that only 30,000 of them are Jews, more than 370,000 being Christians.

In general, Christian German refugees belong to the cultured and professional classes. Physicians, lawyers, artists, educators and musicians comprise the majority. Thomas Mann, himself a refugee and one of the world's most noted authors, is honorary chairman of the American committee.

And yet most Christian people in America do not realize the extent of suffering among their own. The Jews, long since aware of the dilemma with which so many of their people are faced, have made and are making provisions to care for the exiles of their race. The American Committee for Christian German Refugees is trying to do the same thing for Christians. But so few people realize the extent of the problem—or, for that matter, fail to realize that there even is a Christian problem.

Executive Director, American Committee for Christian German Refugees.

Baltimore Highway

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Last week Gov. Harry W. Nice described his dream highway between Baltimore and Washington and repudiated public and private utterances of record.

Many times since the formation a year ago of the Maryland Highway Safety Planning Council has the Governor asserted his interest in making the Baltimore-Washington boulevard safe, attractive and comfortable for traffic. Saturday night he threw all of those assertions into the political wastebasket.

Motorists who use Maryland highways now pay a tax of 5 cents a gallon (4 cents State, 1 cent Federal). Apparently they will have to pay a nice additional toll to traverse his dream.

But right now, for 2 per cent of the cost of his $10,000,000 dream bridge alone, Maryland can make the Baltimore-Washington boulevard safe and attractive.

All that is needed is for the Governor or his successor to carry out the enthusiastic indorsements of Mr. Nice: (1) when he formed the Maryland Highway Safety Planning Council in October, 1937; (2) when the Baltimore-Washington Boulevard Association was formed last January; (3) when the Maryland and District of Columbia departments of the American Legion proposed last spring that the boulevard be made a national highway safety laboratory. We have the record in our files.

What the people of the boulevard community, and the motorists who use the boulevard, want right now is a highway that is lighted, surfaced, properly patrolled; with shoulders stabilized, bridges and culverts widened safely. Last summer the State had no money to make improvements on the boulevard. Has the financial situation improved? Last summer the W., B. & A. right of way was too narrow to meet legal requirements for highways. Has some golden magic made it wider?

Are the businessmen of the boulevard community, who have spent years and fortunes building up their businesses, to be left high and dry on a third-rate truck road?

HAROLD H. BUCKLES,
Field representative, Baltimore-Washington Boulevard Association.

The Public Debt

To The Editor of The Post—Sir: At this time the public debt is approximately $40,000,000,000, and billions may be added. Interest alone will cost taxpayers one to two billion annually. Although the President repeatedly has promised a balanced budget, we continue to spend.

I quote from the President, October 21, 1932: "They suffer only to the extent that Government is permitted to be extravagant, wasteful or ill managed. They suffer if the Federal budget is not balanced, and particularly where the deficit of one year is not cleared up in the succeeding year . . . It is my pledge and promise that this dangerous kind of financing shall be stopped, and that rigid Government economy shall be enforced by a stern and unremitting Administration policy of living within our income."

It is very unfortunate that the public debt has attained such large proportions at this time. Political developments in Europe and Asia cause grave concern in the United States, and for future security we must spend large sums of money on new armament.

Recently, Representatives Summers, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, delivered an address at Richmond, Va., declaring "there come times when the ledger must be balanced; this is the hour in which the American people must answer as to their capacity for self-government."

Never before has the threat against security from within, and from overseas, seemed so grave as today. When we denounce radical governments which dominate the Old World, and when we made the declaration that we will never wear the yoke of dictator, may we also experience genuine concern for our country's welfare.

The Post Impressionist

Snow White: Plaintiff

IT WAS with a sense of profound shock that I read in a recent newspaper that suit had been entered by the Princess Snow White against Mr. Walt Disney for the sum of $20,000. It was not the amount involved which was surprising, for $20,000 could be no princely sum to a princess. No, the shocking thing, the immensely shocking thing, is that Miss Snow White (to give her the only title which American citizenship can accord her) could entertain in her lovely, fluffy head the sordid figures which make accountancy so unwelcome in fairy tales.

Upon the merits of this suit it would be unbecoming and unlawful to speak. Moreover I am unfamiliar with even the prima facie elements of the case upon which Miss Snow White bases her claim to $20,000 of Mr. Disney's money. It is not upon its legal nor yet its ethical aspects that I wish to dwell briefly here. It is rather with the social and philosophical aspects that we should concern ourselves, leaving the rest to the courts and accountants.

Taking it only in its social and philosophical aspects then, this case of Miss Snow White and Mr. Disney must convince any open-minded person, as nothing before has ever done, that sometimes the modern woman goes too far. I am utterly out of sympathy with that broad segment of the American male population which, to judge from its speech and writing, is bitterly inimical to any female hand which strays for a moment from its immemorial duty of rocking the cradle. It is the puny minded delight of hundreds of thousands of Vox Poppers throughout the land to belabor with epithet bitter and perverse such women as leave the cradle side and venture into the marts of trade.

To all such pygmies among men as these I say "Fie!" On second thought I say "Pooh, pooh," for "Fie!" is too valiant an expression to waste upon them. For these, obviously, are men who seek to tonic their ebbed virility by loosing abuse upon their stronger sisters.

It is not for these I speak, for they are inconsiderable among humanity. Rather I speak for that small and select group of men who sit as elevated spectators in the reviewing stand, watching with kindling and encouraging eye the onward march of the procession of modern womanhood. I speak for these for they alone are the critics who are en rapport with the striving of the female hormone upward, onward toward Excelsior!

To these men it sometimes must appear—as in the instant case of Snow White vs. Disney—that the ambition of the modern female hormone tends to be overvaulting and to leap with graceless foot certain hedges of restraint which good manners and good customs have decreed it is more becoming to walk around. In other words, the girls sometimes are too forward!

We can do better than conjecture what Snow White's grandmother would have thought of her granddaughter's present action. Before Snow White's grandmother would have gone brazenly to a lawyer and instituted suit in a court of law, we may be well sure that she would have counted 100 under her breath and then got out her knitting needles and started on the afghan for the couch in the upstairs sitting room.

Even today when an occasional grandmother bares her teeth in the courts (or more probably bares her leg if she still is jaunty and her counsel has an eye to the amenities), it is news. Even in such occasional grandmother cases today, however, the chances are that it all has to do with something perfectly innocuous like divorce.

No, we can be jolly well sure that old Queen Snow White, or whatever her name was, would have had no truck with lawsuits. And it is a happy thing that this is so. Our fairy tale days would have been melancholy sledding indeed had the lives so happily engaged forever after been studded with such dreary and sordid affairs as Rapunzel vs. Jakob Ludwig Karl Grimm and Wilhelm Karl Grimm, trading as Grimm Brothers, or The Three Bears vs. Andrew Lang.

It is true that so far as we know, the Grimms made no unauthorized mention of Rapunzel's long golden hair in radio advertising to boost sales of hair wash and certainly Andrew Lang undertook to advertise no dog food in cans by showing how The Three Bears had waxed fat upon its vitamins added.

These are among the things which cause trouble today. The paper said that the matter of phonograph record royalties was involved in the Snow White-Disney controversy. It is popular, of course, to say that the movies are to blame for this and that ill. It is quite the thing these days to attribute all the woes of mankind to that wicked triumvirate, Hollywood, Washington and Wall Street, those mad witches who are supposed to brew all the hell-broth of modern evils. But that theory doesn't jell with me in this case. It is difficult to see where any of these three can logically be made the whipping boy.

Rather, I fear, the trouble must be sought in the stormy atomic structure of female revolution. All revolution breeds excesses. It has ever been so and, until the base of the humanities rises upward to parallel their pinnacle, it ever will be so.

If forwardness and ingratitude seem to besmirch the complaint of Miss Snow White against Mr. Disney, we must forgive her. And Mr. Disney, too, must forgive her. He, perhaps, can do this the more easily since she is his Galatea, a Galatea moreover whom he awakened from her centuries-long sleep with a celluloid kiss.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

Waves Of Unreason

PEGLER

THOSE WHO GREW up in certain parts of the Middle West in the first 15 years or so of this century have first-hand knowledge of religious intolerance and generalized hatred and slander. The Catholics were the victims then, and of many publications devoted to the incitement of evil belief about them, most savage and ruthless was a weekly called The Menace, which was published in Aurora, Mo. The Menace had a large circulation, and there came occasional rows in country towns and even in some of the cities over attempts to place The Menace on the reading tables of the public libraries and attempts by the Catholics to exclude it as a scurrilous and defamatory publication.

THE CATHOLICS, as taxpayers, were unwilling to entertain such attacks on their religious faith and slanders on the chastity of their mothers, wives and sisters in tax-supported libraries. The anti-Catholics replied that the Catholics were trying to suppress the truth and attack the freedom of the press.

There were lecturers on the loose, usually calling themselves reverend this or that, who would discuss from the pulpits of Protestant churches and in public hall and tents a deep and mysterious conspiracy against the safety and sovereignty of the country by which the Pope was to be enthroned in the White House.

Normally calm and reasonable Americans of fair intelligence would permit themselves to be whipped into a tremulous state of rage and alarm by fantastic lies, delivered as solemn fact, to the effect that every Catholic Church was an armory and arsenal and that the Catholics were only awaiting the night when they would get the word from Rome to steal out and slay their neighbors in their sleep.

EVEN WORSE were the innuendoes about the mysteries of the confessional and shocking conduct in the convents. Against such propaganda the Catholics could only appeal to the reason of their neighbors and let the daily life and conduct of themselves and their clergy stand as their defense. But it was very trying, because the propagandists were grossly ignorant and wicked professionals without other means of support.

A particularly strong count in the campaign was the charge of internationalism. Catholics were accused of giving allegiance to the Pope in political as well as spiritual matters and were said to be unpatriotic to this or any other country of which they were citizens. There was a way of saying that a man was a Catholic which conveyed the meaning that he was —well, after all. A Catholic candidate for office was voted down because of his religion and all that that meant to people who had heard and believed the propaganda.

AS A NATURAL reaction Catholics would support men of their faith without particular regard for their fitness. They were driven together.

Among the documents in circulation was a fake version of the oath of the Knights of Columbus, which, nevertheless, found many credulous believers, like the fraudulent so-called protocols of the elders of Zion which are used in cycles of time and passion to arouse similar suspicion and hatred of the Jews.

There were also "confessions" of persons who claimed to have been priests and nuns, and these, too, were influential in creating bitterness and doubtless will be used again. For such writings apparently never die, and all such movements are attended by sales of documents which appeal to the pruriency of low people and permit them to indulge an appetite for obscenity in the guise of revelation.

SUCH CAMPAIGNS take strange slants, and by an odd quirk the Masons are now condemned, suppressed and persecuted in Italy and Germany on the ground that they, too, in their brotherhood with the Masons of other lands, are divided in allegiance, unreliable and unpatriotic.

The wounds heal readily once agitators cease to exasperate them. People forget suspicion and beliefs against their neighbors which have no basis in their own experience with them but are derived only from oratory and writings. And the victims are glad to settle down again to normal relations. But the waves rise and fall—rise and fall for some fathomless reason deep in the nature of man.

Reds—French Style

The most striking thing about these people who vote Communist is that they are not Communists. A passionate love of private property is perhaps the strongest of all their feelings. They work from dawn to sunset, buy a piece of land as early in life as they can and, although they live a fairly hard life—this province is poor—almost all of them preserve in their cupboards treasury bonds and state pensions. What pleases them about communism is the idea that the big estates would be divided up.

But tell him: "Very well. The day when you will indeed have acquired a house and fields, you will be in your turn one of the 'big people' of the country and the state will take your property away as the Russian state has taken that of the koulaks."

You will find him completely indignant. "Expropriate me? ME? From land that I have worked for 30 years? Just let them come and try it. They will be received with gun shots."

Afterthoughts On Welles Broadcast

Recalls Bre'r Rabbit Story

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Post of November 1, under the caption "Great American Jitters," fully illustrates the relative place and importance of instinct and reason in their control of human conduct. Instinct is instantaneous, while reason is slow and deliberate. The instinct of fear leads to precipitate action before reason has had a chance to assert itself. The jitters aroused by the phantom broadcast of last Sunday evening reminds us of Uncle Remus' Brer Rabbit, who, hearing a tree fall in the forest, stampeded all the animals with alarm, "The sky is falling—run, run, run." This hysteria is independent of intellectual or cultural advance. Instinct reduces all grades and degrees of culture back to the lower level of primivity.

The meteoric shower of 1833 so frightened the plantation Negroes with the dread of Judgment Day that they fell on their knees at the approach of the end of the world. We have a reminder of the effect of this phenomenon in the spiritual still frequently heard over the radio, "Oh Lord What a Morning, When the Stars Begin to Fall."

As a boy on the farm in South Carolina I recall the revivalistic effect of the terrifying appeal, "When the stars in the elements are falling, and the moon drips away into blood. When the seas begin to roll and the rocks begin to melt, oh, sinner where will you stand?"

Science and invention have served to spread more rapidly hysteria among the people. The dramatization of H. G. Wells' "War of the Worlds" caught the American people unaware, and filled them with jitters over the sudden end of the world. For the moment the intellectual margin between the American people last Sunday night and the plantation Negro in 1833 was not very great.

'Good Show,' Anyhow

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I admit that I am one of the many thousands whose (to quote a famous newspaper writer) "incredible stupidity, lack of nerve, and ignorance" found cause for alarm while listening to Mr. Orson Welles' radio-dramatization of the "War Of The Worlds."

It is safe to assume that scores of listeners did not read the newspaper announcement of the presentation, nor hear the program's beginning. And even those who did had cause for confusion by the breathtaking announcement in "special news" broadcast tempo that interrupted the dance music that inaugurated the program. In circumstances where a large group depends on one radio, such as schools, hospitals, churches, and other places of public gatherings, there are always some who have a clear understanding of the program from the beginning, and others who only begin to show interest when the program becomes sensational, or highly exciting.

And in the confusion caused by those in the latter group asking questions from those in the former, and the attempt at explanations, it is quite difficult for anyone to hear the story line for line, and a good chance for all to get mixed up. Being one of those who happened to be in such a situation, it was only after reading The Washington Post that I was able to comprehend fully the "Mercury Theater's" Sunday night broadcast.

And though I belonged to the group who insisted, during Mr. Welles' thriller, that it was only a story, when it came to the announcement that an emergency call had been received at Langley Field for planes, I decided that it was getting close to home, regardless of whether the story was fiction or in actuality.

If I had met Mr. Orson Welles a few moments following the broadcast, I would have been inclined to take a "swing" at him. Now I would like to congratulate him for what I consider one of the greatest radio presentations ever heard on the air. It was a darn good show.

T. OWEN MILLER.

The Real 'Monsters'

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A great many of the people who were swept into mass hysteria by a radio broadcast October 30, said that they believed that either the Nazis or the Japanese had invaded America. With this in mind, we cannot see how any censure should fall upon the heads of either Orson Welles or the Columbia Broadcasting System. The real instigators of this panic of fear were in Berlin, Rome and Tokyo. For they are the "Martian apparti" that raze cities, wipe out civilization, destroy culture and compel races of people to wander over the face of the globe like hunted animals. The world has nothing to fear from an "extra-terrestrial" invasion. It has plenty cause for alarm, however, from those "terrestrial" monsters, euphemistically called Hitler, Hirohito, and Benito.

MORTON JEROME JACOBS.

The European Analogy

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I should like to say a word in impromptu form regarding "Reactions to The Radio Panic" appearing in The Post of November 3, because I do not believe it is generally understood what panic is. Panic is "fear due to uncontrollable and unaccountable general impulse." If this is a true definition, and it is from the Oxford Dictionary, logic would apparently have very little to do with quelling the panic, once it started.

After fear was instilled into the radio audience it probably produced a certain paralysis which prevented them from acting to ascertain the truth or fiction of the program. As to an apology for the American people, I doubt if one is needed. I recall quite recently an account of two, shall I say gentlemen, one of whom caused directly or indirectly the mobilization of the French army, the other was the means of having several bomb-proof shelters dug in London. All this was done, it is said, so that the people would be impressed with the horrors of war; it apparently has worked very well. Another case of panic on a larger scale than ours.

Wants Return Performance

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I heard Orson Welles' Radio Theater of the Air present the "War of the Worlds" and, like many thousands of others, was moved by the realism with which the fantasy was presented.

My impression Sunday night, and now, is that it was well done. It should be rebroadcast so that those who missed it the first time will have another opportunity of living through, for an hour, what seemed to be an interminable length of time. Moreover, when it is rebroadcast it should be sent by short wave to Germany, to Italy, to Japan and to the rest of the world where first-hand impressions of what the Martians may do might have some effect.

When the monsters from Mars wiped out the American artillery I knew it was "just a play," but it brought home to me America's unpreparedness. If "War of the Worlds" could be heard in Germany it would bring home to the Germans the futility of their arms, and the horror of it all.

Dry-Eyed Marines

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The way you print your papers, you will have the people of Washington thinking there is not a brave man left in the United States. What you said in your paper about Quantico Marines weeping and praying was untrue. They don't pray and don't weep. You have not the guts to print that.

The Political Overturn

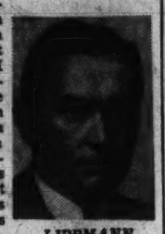
THE REPUBLICAN victories on Tuesday are so general that political forecasters will not be too rash if they predict the election of a Republican President in 1940. For it has been, I believe, an invariable rule of American politics that a decisive turn at the mid-term elections means that two years later the Ins will be replaced by the Outs.



LIPPMANN.

There has been a decisive turn. In the region where national elections are decided, in the populous States east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio, the returns reveal a change so great that its momentum in the next two years would be virtually certain to produce a Republican landslide. New England has gone solidly Republican. The results in Michigan, Ohio, and Indiana signify an unmistakable reversal of the political conditions which have prevailed since 1930. And in the Middle Atlantic States, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and New York, the returns show that on Tuesday in a national election the Republicans could have carried them all.

THE FACT that Governor Lehman, Senator Wagner and Representative Mead were elected in New York does not weaken the conclusion that New York has today a Republican majority for President. Mr. Lehman was elected by a small plurality, by approximately the same plurality as that which elected Mr. Roosevelt to the Governorship in 1929 during the Republican landslide of that year.

Had the New York election been an isolated contest, one might perhaps ascribe the closeness of the result to the exceptional strength of Mr. Dewey's campaign. But looking at what happened in the neighboring States of Connecticut, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, there is little doubt that the main cause was an incoming tide of Republicanism that marks the end of Democratic supremacy in the Nation.

The old rule, which has held good since 1880, seems to hold still—that in each 20-year period the Republicans win the Presidency for three terms and the Democrats for two terms.

ALTHOUGH THE President and his party still have an impressive numerical majority in both houses of Congress it must be obvious to them that the Democratic majority will have studied the election returns. And these returns show clearly that the President and his advisers completely misinterpreted the elections of 1936 and took a fundamentally wrong course in consequence.

Two years ago Mr. Roosevelt was elected by a landslide in the Electoral College which gave him every State but Maine and Vermont. But his popular vote, as some of us tried to point out at the time, was not essentially greater than the vote polled by Harding, Coolidge and Hoover. The Electoral College vote, because of the solid South, produced an optical illusion which made it seem as if Mr. Roosevelt had been elected by acclamation, and that the opposition had been annihilated. Spellbound by this optical illusion, Mr. Roosevelt jumped to the unwarranted conclusion that he had a personal mandate from the people as a whole to reconstruct American society. It was in this mood that he projected the so-called Third New Deal with the plan to control the Federal courts as the means for overcoming the obstacles.

THE DEFEAT of the court bill proved to any objective observer that there never had been any such popular mandate as Mr. Roosevelt chose to believe he had. The correct practical conclusion to be drawn from the 1936 election was that the time had come to consolidate and perfect the innovations of the New Deal, and to use the second term to conciliate criticism and to allay class discord in the interests of national unity.

A policy of that kind would have meant a recognition that after four years of crisis and of bold innovation, a democracy must have a period of rest, of calm, of persuasion and appeasement. If the progress made was to be maintained, and if further progress was to be made, there had to be the political and social peace of an eara of good feeling. It was only by treating his victorious re-election as the signal for a policy of magnanimity that Mr. Roosevelt could possibly have perpetuated his party's control of the Nation. For a policy of continual struggle and unceasing restlessness was certain, as any detached observer could see at the time, to provoke a great popular reaction.

THE RETURNS on Tuesday show that the reaction has come, and they indicate that whereas two years ago the President could have had an era of good feeling by his own choice, by an attitude of magnanimity, today he will have to take extraordinary steps to conciliate the opposition if his last two years are not to end in bitterness and frustration. He faces a trial like that of Wilson after the election of 1918 and of Hoover after 1930; if he is still the political leader he has been, he will not make their mistakes.

He will believe the election returns. He will reject the advice of the die-hards among the New Dealers, and, bowing to the popular will, he will place above "the objectives" of the New Deal the greater objection of a domestic peace which brings national unity. He will recognize that this is no time in the world's history for America to be rent by internal struggle, and to allay that struggle he will address his opponents and his critics as their President, not as the leader of a faction; he will draw into his councils more men who represent the prevailing tember of the people; and he will get rid of those advisers who do not appreciate what has happened; he will propose, before they are forced upon him, such changes in the laws and their administration as responsible and progressive men have been urging. He will, in short, respond to the popular will so clearly expressed on Tuesday.

Father And Son Dialogues

Popper?

Yes, my son.

Is it true we'll have television soon?

I'm afraid so.

What will it mean, popper?

It will mean that we will have to see those radio actors as well as hear them.

Will it be compulsory?

I hope not!

Does television mean we can tune in on radio programs and see the act?

There seems to be no escaping it, my boy. In my opinion, the trend is the wrong way.

Why, popper?

My idea, as far as many programs are concerned, would be a device making it impossible either to see or hear 'em.

How will televison be worked?

By a radio attachment that will record the images on a screen. Of course, from one viewpoint, the radio fans will love it.

Why, popper?

Because they've been wondering for years what the guilty parties looked like.

Will Television show the people who write the scripts?

No, my son; they will never dare go that far!

Is it true that $6,000,000 has been spent perfecting television already, popper?

I think so.

Isn't that a lot of money to spend so actors can be shown over the radio?

Yes, but it isn't so much when you think of all the pills, hair tonics and tooth brushes that they will be able to show over the radio.

Popper, one thing is worrying me.

What is it, son?

Will we see political orators over the air, too?

I'm afraid it will be hard to avoid it, my boy.

Will we see the man who directs the setting-up exercises and tells all about keeping fit?

They will try to prevent that.

Why?

Because he probably weighs 230 pounds, looks pretty sick and has clearly lacked any exercise for the last 15 years.

Popper, will we see Uncle Oopsey-Doopsey, the radio man who conducts the children's hour?

If so, it will be a big disappointment for the children.

Why, popper?

I understand he generally broadcasts while pretty blotto, has a face like a bandit and is only about 19 years old himself.

Popper, will we see all those swing orchestras, with the leaders and everything?

Over my dead body!

75% Gain In Seats

ABOUT THE MEANING of this election, it is difficult to infer much from precedent. Nothing exactly analogous to it ever happened before. The number of House seats gained by the Republicans—apparently somewhat over 70—is not necessarily conclusive as a sign that the Republicans will win the Presidential election of 1940.

SULLIVAN

Time and again roughly as many seats have been gained by both parties in Congressional elections which, like the present one, were in the middle of Presidential terms. In 1922, in the middle of the Harding Administration, the Democrats gained 85 seats. But that did not mean they were going to win the ensuing Presidential election—it was won by the Democrats with Wilson as their candidate running for a second term.

IF WE LOOK at Tuesday's result in terms of percentages, we get an extremely impressive view. The Republicans started with 90 seats. They gained apparently somewhat over 70. That is a gain of more than three-fourths.

Rarely before has either party accomplished anything like that. The Republicans made a gain of about 80 per cent in 1894 and it turned out to mean they were going to win the ensuing Presidential election, the 1896 one in which McKinley beat Bryan. Certainly the gain of more than three-fourths made by the Republicans on Tuesday is the expression of a strong tide running in their favor—or running against the New Deal, whichever way you choose to express it. The situation suggests a swift, strong tide just getting momentum.

IN TERMS of Senators and Governors, the Republican victory was extremely impressive. The Republicans have elected a Senator or a Governor or both in every State east of the Mississippi and north of the Potomac and Ohio rivers, excepting Maryland, Illinois and New York, with Indiana in doubt at this writing. In all three of the States last named they came within a tiny fraction of success.

Assuming the tide continues until 1940, the Republicans would control the North and East as never before. In one sense they already do, for they have won Wisconsin away from the La Follette dynasty that has had control for several political generations.

THE DEFEAT of Gov. La Follette in Wisconsin is much more than the gain of one governorship by the Republicans. It means a setback or an end to what seemed a possible formidable third party, La Follette's National Progressive Party. The only other third party that had candidates for Governor or Senator in the field anywhere was the Farmer-Labor Party. And as the National Progressive Party was defeated in its home State—Wisconsin—so was the Farmer-Labor Party defeated in its home State—Minnesota.

In both cases the defeat was administered by the Republicans. So far as President Roosevelt, or any one else, was relying on a third party in 1940, the reliance is seriously set back. America remains a two-party country.

AGAIN, SO FAR as Mr. Roosevelt and the New Deal relied on the farm States, so far as he dreamed of party resting on two bases, farmers and labor, the dream is seriously disturbed. Out of some 12 States that compose the farm belt, the Republicans elected Senators or Governors or both in seven States, and came near to victory in two more. The dream of the Democratic Party made into a farmer-labor party is probably over.

If the Republicans have achieved hope for 1940, who has emerged as new presidential material to take advantage of the hope? Both Mr. Taft who won the Ohio senatorship and Mr. Bricker who won the governorship have been considered available provided they won last Tuesday, as they did.

THERE IS ADDITIONAL material in other States. In New York the Republicans did not quite reach with the man whom many regarded as the best Republican possibility for 1940. Yet Mr. Dewey came within a very small fraction of winning. Ordinarily a man who runs for Governor of New York and fails is not thereafter seriously considered for the Presidency. Mr. Dewey's nearness to victory may make him an exception. He has two years in which to continue to impress himself on the State and on the country through his office of district attorney.

Why The Hurry?

By Barnet Nover

Hitler's Latest Colonial Demand

THE BELLIGERENT demand for the return of Germany's prewar colonies made by Adolf Hitler in a speech at Munich this week will not make life easier for Messrs. Chamberlain and Daladier.

The British and French premiers have so far managed to hold their own against the tide of opposition to their foreign policies. They have argued that what happened at Munich during the last week of September at least kept the guns from going off and gave Europe a badly needed breathing spell. They have also held out the hope that in the present period of relative calm and quiescence the foundations of a real regime of peace would be laid.

The Fuehrer's latest speech shows how essentially hollow is the Chamberlain-Daladier position. Hitler is apparently unwilling to let the British and French governments go slowly in carrying out the next moves in their so-called "policy of appeasement." He wants what he wants when he wants it. This time it is Germany's prewar colonies. And he has warned the world that if Germany cannot get them back through peaceful negotiations "nobody must be surprised if we resort to other means."

AS IT HAPPENS there have been rumors aplenty that the Chamberlain government is not averse to discussing with the Third Reich the possibility of a redistribution of colonies on Germany's behalf. How much substance there is to these reports is not yet clear. It is assumed, however, that they have a certain amount of official inspiration behind them.

At any rate, it would seem wise strategy on Hitler's part to play a cautious, waiting game at this time. After all, Germany has swallowed a lot of territory it will take her a long time to digest. And since her position in central and southeastern Europe is now uncontested, she is now able to expand commercially far beyond the limits possible some months ago. Why the haste in bringing up the colonial issue at this time, and why the obligato of warlike threats?

ONE REASON may be that dictators in general, and Hitler in particular, have never learned to speak softly, but always feel compelled to shriek at the top of their lungs. But there is an additional factor to be considered. Chamberlain may be in a mood to make colonial concessions today, but he may change his mind tomorrow. Or he may be replaced by someone prepared to follow a very different line in dealing with the totalitarian dictators.

After all, democracies change their minds, as last Tuesday's balloting in the United States makes clear. And neither in Great Britain nor in France is there any certainty that the Chamberlain-Deladier policy will not sooner or later be modified or scrambled.

THERE ARE STRAWS in the wind indicating that the change may occur sooner rather than later. The latest British bye-election was fought by the Conservative candidate on a platform whose sole plank was support for Mr. Chamberlain's policy. It proved a losing line. A Conservative majority of 2,000 in the 1935 election was changed to a 4,000 Laborite majority this time.

Should this trend continue to be reflected in other bye-elections Mr. Chamberlain may be forced out, or at least compelled to modify his policies. And M. Daladier's position is even more precarious. Though the Munich settlement won overwhelming majorities in both houses of the French Parliament, the betrayal of Czechoslovakia was resented by millions of Frenchmen and may ultimately lead to the premier's undoing, if the financial crisis does not upset him first.

WITH RESPECT to the colonial issue there is also the further consideration, that even if Messrs. Chamberlain and Daladier manage to hold on, they may now manage to get their parliaments and public opinion to go along with them in support of any plan to return Germany's colonies to her. It will be recalled that, when, during the premiership of Stanley Baldwin the question of colonial redistribution was broached, the Conservative party Congress telegraphed the prime minister: "What we have we hold!"

It is probable that this view still obtains among the rank and file of Mr. Chamberlain's own party. The French point of view was indicated in the resolution of the Radical Socialist Party at its Marseilles congress when the abandonment of any colonial areas by France was ruled out.

HERR HITLER knows all this. To get what he is after in the colonial domain he probably feels that he must move fast, to strike while the iron is hot. The threat of force worked with surprising success last September. The same device might work again. After all, London is just as vulnerable to German air attacks today as it was at the time of the Munich parley. And so is Paris.

This does not mean that the Fuehrer has any real intention of actually indulging in aggression against Great Britain and France to get African soil, but it does seem that he is determined to clank the sword and beat the drum in the hope that the mood that made Munich possible can be re-created. For if this opportunity is allowed to slip it may never occur again. For Great Britain and France continue to rearm, and under less timorous leadership than these countries possess today they may not allow themselves to be frightened again as they were this year. Now, as before, Hitler remains a man-in-a-hurry.

Specifically, the Yard wants:

THEY'RE moving on the Agriculture Department to establish a $1,200 minimum; Roy F. Hendrickson, personnel director, right now is pondering one manifesto, which holds:

That the department should adopt a policy of hiring messengers here in the CU-3 classification, paying $1,260, and laboratory helpers at SP-2 instead of SP-1, which would mean a salary of $1,260; further that present incumbents of CU-2 ($1,080) and SP-1 (1,020) jobs be reclassified one step higher. "This can be done easily because in both cases the job descriptions of the present jobs and one step higher overlap and are practically identical," said Local 2, U. F. W. A., in its declaration.

The local says there are now in Agriculture in Washington 344 persons in the subprofessional and custodial classification who are earning less than $1,200 a year. The department could adopt the proposal administratively, it as asserted.

William Zimmerman, jr., who has been in Alaska making an inquiry into the behavior and other conditions of the Indian and Eskimo, returns to Washington Monday. Zimmerman went there at behest of Secretary Ickes, who, on his recent PWA Alaskan tour, saw something so evidently shocking that he sent a radio message which launched the Zimmerman inquiry. Zimmerman, since his investigation began, has been entirely silent; no report has come to the Office of Indian Affairs. It heightens the question of what the Secretary saw that startled him into sending the radio message.

Tennis Star Says Sport Aids Figure

Helen Jacobs Convinced Streamlined Example No Bulging Muscles Played Since 14

By Ida Jean Kain.

TENNIS is the perfect exercise for a streamlined figure—and Helen Jacobs, the tennis star, is the perfect example of what regular workouts on the court will do for the measurements. Listen to this girls . . . her hips are slimmer than her shoulders!

There are a number of questions which Miss Jacobs settled for me. We are inclined to believe that any game played as a career makes bulging muscles, but it hasn't in her case, and she began the game at the age of 14.

Miss Jacobs has long, smooth calf muscles and a calf measurement that is only 13 inches. And neither does she have bulging biceps. Usually the person who goes in very vigorously for sports or dancing and who keeps a lovely figure has some kind of counteractive measure on which she relies. Miss Jacobs' career affords her more than enough exercise, so she turns to massage.

Tennis Not Reducing

This star clears up another point for us . . . tennis is not reducing. She tells me that when she was 23 she had to go on a diet to lose 30 pounds, for playing the game with that amount of excercess weight put too much strain on the heart. If tennis the way Helen Jacobs plays it is not reducing, then no exercise is!

What tennis does, Miss Jacobs assures me, is to improve the figure. The woman with flabby fat could lose some of her weight by playing, but its slimming value lies in the fact that it tones and firms the muscles so that you can actually weigh more and have a lovelier figure. Muscle tissue weighs more than fat, but it is compact.

A Good Career

For the teens and twenties, this champion believes there is no better exercise. It is an outdoor recreation which encourages a healthy life, and, more than most types of activity, it is apt to survive a more routine way of living when you do settle down.

With the teen age in mind I asked—since she ought to know—whether it is a good career for a girl. This is what she says:

"If a girl has a bent toward tennis she should develop it. Tennis is a good career for a girl—as long as it isn't her entire life."

It is Miss Jacobs' advice that a girl should build her life along with tennis as she grows up. In addition to being a champion at the game, Miss Jacobs is a successful designer of sports clothes for a London house and of casual clothes for a New York firm.

Must Make Sacrifices

She warns that many sacrifices must be made for a career; you must watch your diet, not just when you are training, but all the time. And you must always get plenty of sleep.

A Woman's New York

By Alice Hughes.

New York, Nov. 9.

REMEMBERING Alma Gluck, who passed away a little while ago, I think of her as a handsome and gracious woman and artist who lived a complete life though she died at 38. What did she lack?

ALICE HUGHES

She had beauty and talent from girlhood. She married another great artist, the fiddler Efrem Zimbalist, whom she loved, and she had three children who grew to maturity and made her proud of them. She had a brief but brilliant career at the Metropolitan—singing, in her first year at that venerable birdhouse, no less than 11 leading roles. And at 40 she put her public triumphs behind her and devoted herself to domesticity and good works. Her marriage was almost unique in the musical world for its happiness. Her home was a gracious mecca.

Her words upon retirement may well give modern American woman pause. "A woman cannot have marriage, children and a career," she said. "That's newspaper talk." That was her opinion, and she followed it to real happiness.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—My sister Frances, just back from a stay in Bermuda, tells me there is a "21" club in Hamilton—named for our famous golden joint on Swing Alley. Frances noted with amusement the neat placque on the door: "Gentlemen will please wear coats and ladies will wear stockings." But she saw a gent come in wearing a sweater—and a waiter rushed over with a linen jacket for him to wear—on the house! She did not, however, see any ladies furnished with stockings pro tem.

Corinne Griffith, the orchid girl of the silent pictures, brought an elegant fur coat for late fall sports wear into a great Fifth avenue store—and they are now selling it en masse. It's a full-length skunk affair—with a hood lined of cyclamen wool and a long scarf to boot. Try to freeze in that baby. Since Corinne is the wife of George Preston Marshall, esquire, owner of the Washington Redskins' pro football team, the coat is dubbed the Redskins' Stadium Coat—and is tabbed a knockerouter by all who have seen it.

Past and Future Fashions Seen in Actress' Costumes

Lynn Fontanne's Outfits Are Prophetic Styles of 90's Revived in 'The Sea Gull' Hint That Dog Collars Are on the Way

By Marshall Adams.

THAT fashions repeat and often herald themselves every decade or so manifested itself this week when "the best dressed woman in the theater," Lynn Fontanne, recreated in the scenes of Anton Chekhov's "Sea Gull" the feminine style consciousness of the 1890's.

Although this tragedy was written almost 45 years ago, the fashions of its era proved to be representative of this season's smartest style whims. All of which made many oldsters recall that the pranks of past fashion cycles may prove to be the derniere cri of tomorrow's styles.

Foremost among loans out of a Victorian past are today's bustles and stays which Miss Fontanne essays for art's sake, but which local style arbiters may be wearing in all earnestness before long. Paris coutouriers prophesy mass adoption of bustles next year and if their soothsaying proves as accurate as their prediction of this fall's swing to hoop skirts, many an unwilling husband will be pressed into a bustle and stay lacing orgy.

Dog Collars Coming

Miss Fontanne affected stiff-boned dog collars, which gave her already regal bearing an even more imperial tilt. This is another prophetic trend in dress stepping straight down from the era of fainting spells and smelling salts. This winter or next, debs and dowagers alike will find this upper caste symbol flattering. The jeweled dog collar is another gay 90's copy cat, but this shining idea has already been taken up by costume jewelry fanciers. Antique gold dog collars are noticeably being worn with streamlined dinner frocks. Some are copied from heirloom chokers of amethyst, coral, garnets, aquamarine or emeralds, usually intermixed with seed pearls, so beloved by Victorians.

Stiff Fabrics Indicated

The whisper and crackle of stiff fabrics is another reversal of the fashion cycle, for taffetas and moires have seldom seen such a swish since the days of Queen Victoria and Chehov. Paper thin silks, sliper satins, changeable velvets, plaid taffetas and even a few ottomans and failles are being revived from the supposedly dear, dead past.

Doll-sized toques, ribbon and feather headdresses, reticules, furred tippets, chatelaine watches and chains, and, of course, pompadours of curls and bangs have already been reborn from the past, to say nothing of little muffs bearing gardenias observed every day now. However, despite the skill in back of the modern chemist's dye vats, the return to nineteenth century intoxication of color has been fairly slow. A few of the wondrous hues of the 1890's are being worn once more. Most exciting of these plagiarisms are the mauves, ashes of roses, petunias, teals, magentas and even a deep Russian violet, warm and rich enough to warm even the playwright Chevhov's heart.

California's Health Problem: 200,000 Indigent Migrants

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

During the past few years there has been the most extensive and persistent migration of white people in the history of the United States. Most of this migration has been from the central Southern States to California. The causes of this migration have been drought, flood, crop failures and resulting economic crisis.

The result has been that California has over 200,000 extra population, people who are not self-supporting, who are not housed and who have no way of getting food, except by manual labor on the farms. There is a definite need for seasonal agricultural labor in California, so there is at certain times work for these people to do.

Their presence, however, constitutes a distinct health problem.

I have before me the report of Dr. Walter M. Dickie, director of public health of California, and it is a most interesting document.

The most pressing of the migrant's health problems is food. They have been accustomed to eating the usual food of the sharecropper—pork, cornmeal, potatoes, with a few green vegetables and fruits, with little or no variety.

Examination of these migrants in California showed very general malnutrition. The children's food was lacking in vitamins and protective substances. Naturally, deficiency diseases were frequent, as well as emaciation.

Due, of course, primarily to the low economic status of the families, this condition was also partly the result of ignorance. The mothers of the families had never learned to cook anything but the monotonous routine foods and were entirely ignorant of what a balanced diet should be.

The Farm Security Administration and the California Department of Public Health have been educating them and furnishing them with food of a wide variety and teaching the cooks how to prepare it.

When they get sick, the State furnishes hospital accommodations, and a field motor ambulance, equipped with x-ray apparatus, makes rounds for routine examination among the camps.

Cases of smallpox and typhoid have been imported by this group, but, on the whole, strangely enough, communicable diseases have not been a real problem.

California deserves the praise and thanks of all the other States for the intelligent and constructive way in which it has met this problem.

At the Flower Show

"Now let's all stay together—wait Bobby! Let Daddy go first. No, no, don't touch the pretty chrysanthemums! Isn't it the most BEAUTIFUL sight you ever saw; I WISH you would look at that big white one with the lavender border. Now that's what I call pretty. It says "Maybelle." George, did you see Maybelle? . . . Where is he anyway? . . . George! Come back here! You're missing something.

"I certainly love flowers—Bobby! Will you please take your hands off that chrysanthemum? Did you ever see anything as pretty in your life, George, as that Maybelle? . . . Wait. You're not looking at all.

"I don't see why a man always wants to be in such a hurry—say there's a sweet one! Buccaneer! Wouldn't you LOVE a dress in that shade? . . . No, no, darling mustn't handle . . . No, wait for Mamma and Aunt Bee.

"You know I think I'll get a red wool—say I WISH you'd look! Oriental Princess! George! George! Bobby, tell Daddy to come back here and see Oriental Princess.

"Did I tell you I saw Della last week? . . . Yes, she looks wretched . . . George, just take a look at that Oriental Princess . . . Yes, I think it's from worrying over Harry . . . Isn't that Shawnee Chief sweet? . . . well, everybody says it's that Mrs. —— you know . . . here's that Friendly Rival again . . . you know you have to be careful in front of him he picks up things so quick—Say! If here isn't Mary Pickford!

"Of all things! Mary Pickford! Bobby, here's Mary Pickford! Where's Daddy? George! George! Here's Mary Pickford! . . . No, George, you're looking at the wrong one . . . No, here. Say, did you ever see anything as yellow as that Honeydew—Bobby! Take your hands off Mary Pickford!

"Well of course, I say this—Della's a lot to blame herself. See, there's Secretary Hyde! I wonder if George—no, he's way down there. She let herself go for one thing—say isn't that a perfect specimen—and then for another she never played up to Harry—Well of ALL things! Here's Mrs. Hoover! George! Come here! . . . No, I want to show you something . . . George, you missed Mrs. Hoover—Bobby! What are you doing with that chrysanthemum leaf?

"No, I tell you Harry's the kind that's got to be handled right—see there's Secretary Hyde again—and Della has always been so independent . . . yes that IS gorgeous . . . and maybe if she'd just put on high heels and ran around to shows with him—Who? . . . Why it is! Nellie Tayloe Ross! . . . George! George! . . . Oh now he's let all those people get between us . . .

"Now a clever woman could have taken Harry——look, there's Beatrice Lillie! I wish I could just catch George's eye. No Bobby, they haven't got any smell. Well, what I mean is if Della had just been more of a clinging vine—say I WISH you'd look! Mrs. Calvin Coolidge! Yes! See Bobby, here's Mrs. Coolidge! . . . Where's George? . . . Oh he's way over there. He's missing everything. But you just can't do a thing with him.

"Well this is what I mean—if Della hadn't tried to run things so much . . . look at that LOVELY pink one! . . . that is, if she hadn't been so dictatorial—Wait! Look! LOOK! Mrs. Roosevelt! . . . See! Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt! . . . Yes! That big yellow one! . . . Bobby! Bobby! Come quick! Here's Mrs. Roosevelt! George! Oh, Ge-or- ge! . . . Now he's looking! George! Come back here and see Mrs. Roosevelt!"

Ah! Purple Lips—It's Not Pie, Just a Whimsy

New York (AP).—Once upon a time purple lips meant huckleberry or blackberry pie—or a quick trip to the doctor's.

Nowadays, they're just a whimsy in make-up.

When fashion dictators started to work on this winter's blacks, browns, dark greens—and especially the new mauve and fuchsia shades—they discovered that last summer's pastel make-up was decidedly out of focus in the fashion picture as a whole.

So they set to work to re-hue lipsticks, nail polishes, rouges and powders. They tried a bit of rose here, a bit of mauve there and deeper, richer reds elsewhere—until they arrived at some luscious fruity shades.

Powders, as usual, were the major problem. Mixing extra quantities of mauve into them often produced the old-fashioned mauve powder that gave grandmother's face the deadly look of old marble.

So rose tints were introduced to give life and vibrancy. Rose and muave tints were introduced, too, into the new vintage nail polishes.

Washing of Rugs

Many small rugs can be easily washed in the family washing machine, using granulated soap or soap flakes. Always examine the construction of the rug before wetting. Some of the cheap braided and fiber rugs are tough paper strips covered with yarn. When wet, the yarns separate, exposing the dark paper underneath. The home-made carpet rugs and the rugs of cotton, wool or rayon, however, are easily renewed in the household washer.

"So Long—and Thanks!"

"You telephone people—764 of you—have come all the way from New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, District of Columbia, Virginia and even Ohio to give us a hand. Summoned from your homes at the first news of the hurricane, you drove hundreds of miles—then took your places beside us to repair the havoc of the storm. You worked long hours with never a complaint. You knew what was to be done—and helped to do it. To all of you our hats are off. You have lived up to the "Spirit of Service" in the finest way.

"Some of you are going home now. Before you leave, forty-five hundred Connecticut telephone people say, "So long—and thanks!"

NEW ENGLAND

AT the first call for help 185 telephone men and 35 trucks, loaded with tools and equipment, rolled northward out of Washington, Maryland and Virginia for storm-stricken New England.

These men, skilled by training and experience in Bell System construction standards, fell to without question or confusion.

All this made possible by the Bell System set-up: regional operating telephone companies; a single research organization: The Bell Telephone Laboratories; one manufacturing and supply agency: The Western Electric Company; all coordinated by The American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

P.-T. A. Art Committees Crowd Capital Galleries

Mrs. Ward Leads 'Going and Seeing' Tells of Connoisseur's Quest for Corot Praises Opportunities for Children

By Christine Sadler.

Picture gallery visitors in Washington this winter who run into groups of enthusiastic women clustered around masterpieces can feel medium sure they are looking at a Parent-Teacher art committee in action.

"Going and Seeing" is the main part of a program arranged for the year by Mrs. Clinton Ward, chairman of art for the District Congress of Parents and Teachers. Mrs. Ward believes Washingtonians pass up many good bets by not getting around to local collections and exhibitions. She knows a man who was much flustered when he learned the Corot he had been hunting all over Europe was hanging at the Corcoran all the time, and thinks there are many others in his category.

"We have so much that no fuss is made about it and we are inclined to ignore it all," she says.

Unlike the P.-T. A. units in many cities, the Washington groups need to do no art work in the schols. "The opportunities our children have are so excellent that we, as mothers, could add nothing by trying to inaugurate additional art projects in the schools," asserts Mrs. Ward. "Our work is with ourselves. There is much that needs to be done there, if we are to be as well informed as our children."

Art committees in the 70 P.-T. A. units in the District have not functioned individually in other years, but they will from now on—if Mrs. Ward can find enough chairmen to g oaround, and there is enough interest.

"I' m sure there is a good art chairman in each group," she says. "We want to get someone who makes art a hobby. There is so much art influence abroad today there is no escaping it. Even the handles on kitchenware are planned by artists."

Mrs. Ward is an artist on several counts. She has studied it, taught it, and practiced it. She teaches dress design at the "Y" and is handicraf texaminer for a Girl Ccout chapter. Her husband's hobby is painting, and her three children are in art classes at nearby schools—Western High and Gordon Junior High.

She uses the work of Mrs. Marian Loudon at Gordon Junior High as a good illustration of what District school children are being taught about art. Mrs. Loudon's pupils learn about everything from block prints to textile designs, etchings and architecture.

Mrs. Ward has lived in Washington since she was 5 years of age, in addition to her P.-T. A. art work and teaching, is much interested in the Children's Theater. She lives in Georgetown.

War Mothers Named

Mrs. Thomas T. Taylor of Dunn Loring, re-elected president of the Virginia Chapter American War Mothers at the tenth annual convention in Richmond, has named the following committee chairmen for 1939: magazine, Mrs. Samuel H. Styles of Falls Church with Mrs. George N. Lester of Falls Church as assistant; legislation, Mrs. P. M. Edwards of Richmond; Americanism, Mrs. D. E. Satterfield of Richmond, with Mrs. J. E. Sorg of Richmond as assistant; hospitalization, Mrs. Lydia E. Spofford of Alexandria; Gold Star, Mrs. C. N. McGroarty of Falls Church; Silver Star, Mrs. W. L. Turner of Falls Church; memory tree, Mrs. N. L. Williamson of Alexandria; ways and means, Mrs. Rosa Lee Webb, Portsmouth; resolutions, Mrs. M. M. Darden of Norfolk; National D. C. Home, Mrs. J. Oliver Frank of Arlington.

The Vienna town council accepted the resignation of Dr. Sigmund Newman and appointed in his place Wesley W. Louk, a former member. Dr. Newmans letter stated, as reasons for his resignation, that "he has been misquoted, misrepresented and severely criticized because of what he considers an honest stand on the water and sewer project. The ill will and personal animosity lately created is not conducive to co-operative efforts in such a gigantic project" and "personal investigation has revealed that the loan will be secured by general assessment bonds, which means that there must be some provision in the budget for paying interest on those bonds and the statement that there will be no addition to the taxes may prove to be false."

Eastern Star Dance

Harmony Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, at Vienna will hold a fall dance tonight beginning at 9:30 o'clock in the auditorium of the Oakton School. Music will be by the Vienna Syncopators.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Pender Methodist Church will serve its annual oyster supper in the dining room of the Fairfax Methodist Church this evening, beginning at 5 o'clock.

15,000 Merchants Stood and Cheered!

STRAIGHT FROM NATURE COMES A NEW FASHION IN CAR STYLES—

Functional Design

WEEKS BEFORE the new Plymouth, Dodge, De Soto and Chrysler cars were announced to the public, they were shown to the 15,000 merchants of Chrysler Corporation products in meetings held in all parts of the world.

Seldom, if ever, in the history of this industry have new automobiles received such a wildly enthusiastic ovation from men who sell them.

"The most beautiful cars ever built!"

"Far and away the biggest values we've ever sold."

"The outstanding cars of the year!"

They Made a Prediction

These merchants...men who live and think automobiles, who sell and service them, who know them inside and out... were deeply stirred. They foresaw these new 1939 cars being acclaimed by the public as the greatest automobiles in all Chrysler Corporation history.

Well, the cars now have all been presented to the public—have been seen by millions of motorists—and what those 15,000 merchants said would happen, has happened!

America now is seeing the application of Functional Design in the modern styling of automobiles.

Briefly stated, Functional Design follows the laws of nature. Nature "designed" birds to fly, to cleave the air gracefully with the greatest of ease. Nature "designed" fish to swim through water swiftly and smoothly, with minimum effort.

Now Applied to Cars

For 1939, Functional Design is strikingly evident in the new Plymouth, Dodge, De Soto and Chrysler cars.

Every detail of the new styling has its useful, functional side. The cars are altogether different—each with its own distinctive style and individuality—but all carrying out the fundamentals of Functional Design.

Instead of headlights protruding from the radiator to form an awkward, wind-resisting obstacle, they are set low and streamlined into sweeping front fenders.

They are beautiful, yes, but as every other step in this trend to new design, they have a function!

That function is to make night driving safer by giving you better vision... to give oncoming motorists the true width of your car.

Bodies are smartly streamlined... their function is to slip easily and quietly through the air—conserving power and contributing to easier control.

Windshields are wider, V-shaped... their function is to provide greater, longer-range vision.

Trunks no longer protrude, but form one pleasing, integral part of the body ...yet still fulfill their function of providing large space for luggage.

Gear shift levers are located under the wheel on the steering column...their function is easier shifting and a clear front seat.

World-Famous Features

And, of course, these four great cars have the features for which Chrysler Corporation has been world-famous...hydraulic brakes, all-steel bodies and Floating Power engine mountings...their functions are safety and comfort.

We suggest that you carefully inspect the new Plymouth, Dodge, De Soto and Chrysler at the Automobile Show.

See these great cars and you'll see why 15,000 business men who sell them stood and cheered.

Again, for 1939, you'll find, "You Get the Good Things First from Chrysler Corporation."

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

Washington, Nov. 10.

TARGET PRACTICE: Apparently the Monopoly Probe is to be the New Dealers' Big Berths. It may not be ready to shoot until 1940, except for a few experimental salvoes. But by June of that year it should be loaded with TNT and aimed at the conservatives' Maginot Line that lies between the Rooseveltians and the future.

Ethel Roosevelt . . . no horse

And TNT naturally reminds me of duPonts: Mrs. F. D. R., jr., is often seen on the streets near the University of Virginia campus clad in her riding habit. But her two favorite horses, which she brought to Charlottesville last year, aren't with her this year; she left them at Papa duPont's estate in Delaware. When she rides she hires or borrows a horse.

But horse or no horse, she could model riding clothes.

* * * *

GILT OFF THE DOME: Scores of young Government officials drink sweet coffee (six or seven spoons of sugar) for quick energy, a la Tommy Corcoran; but they take cream, too . . . Hugh Johnson, the Polyphemus of the NRA, is itching to go governmental again . . . So is his buddy, George Peek, the mechanized farmer.

"—pigeons for busy Tommy"

Incidentally, Tommy Corcoran's two phones are busy so much of the time that some of his colleagues in the other Government buildings are considering the use of carrier pigeons to reach him . . . Then there might not be enough perching room on his tenth floor RFC window ledges.

* * * *

When you're mystified by fellow guests at a Washington dinner party, and wonder how they got as distinguished and important looking as they are, it's usually possible to sneak off to the library and look 'em up in "Who's Who."

The Capital is sprinkled with more Who's Who personages than any town in the country; and after you've looked 'em up your conversation with them improves considerably.

* * * *

After a taste of Washington life the tinsel glitter of New York's Broadway and Fifty-second street to a Washingtonian seems a little like the midway at a county fair, and Manhattan's dominant cafe society strikes the Washingtonian astonishingly like soda fountain society . . .

It's no wonder that many of the more restless, intelligent socialites in New York give their shirts for an excuse to edge into the more sophisticated, gay and worldly life of the Capital.

"—the President sneaks out"

Although it is an unwritten rule that the President never "dines out" in Washington, it's a rule that Mr. Roosevelt occasionally (and off the record) violates, when he feels like it . . . It's rumored that he has dined at Joe Kennedy's country place and, in the dear dead past, at Senator Tydings' Maryland chateau.

Also, he often drives out to Jimmy Roosevelt's house in Georgetown to relax with his favorite daughter-in-law and the grandchildren.

* * * *

One of the more influential and romantic figures in the Capital is Mrs. Catherine Connor, the Kentucky beauty. She's national committeewoman, and would be even more influential if she hadn't made the mistake of supporting Happy Chandler for the Senate against Senator Barkley . . . But much can be forgiven an attractive woman.

There's an amiable atmosphere in the political salon she conducts that conduces to quick healing.

CAPITAL CAVIAR: At this season there's always a little bitterness in the air because the Navy and its numberless relatives and friends, like the sands of the seven seas, grab off virtually all the Army-Navy football seats between the 25-yard lines. Even a Senator is lucky if he isn't behind the goal line. And the average American can't understand why he must pay $4.40 for a seat and still be foredoomed to sitting so far away that he can't tell with field glasses whether the play is a spinner or a lateral pass.

MEN LOVE GIRLS WITH PEP
If you are peppy and full of fun, men will invite you to dances and parties.
BUT if you are cross, listless and tired, men won't be interested. Men don't like "quiet" girls. When they go to parties they want girls along who are full of pep.
So in case you need a good general system tonic, remember for 3 generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling thru" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps build up more physical resistance and thus aids in giving you more pep and lessens distress from female functional disorders.
You'll find Pinkham's Compound WELL WORTH TRYING!

The suspects, Francis E. Miller, 21, 239 Ingraham street northwest, and John N. Ritch, 26, 1209 I street southeast, were arraigned before Police Court Judge Edward M. Curran. Bond for each was set at $2,000.

The pair were arrested by Detective Lieut. John H. Fowler November 2. Woodard was attacked on H street northwest near Vermont avenue northwest. The loot consisted of $500 cash and $1,600 worth of race tickets.

Land Auction Slated

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 9.—Approximately 10.841 acres of land in Spotsylvania County which are tax delinquent for the year 1936 will be sold at public auction at the county court house December 12 at 1 p. m., to satisfy the State's claims for unpaid assessments.

Woodrum's Narrow Victory Sweeps Va. for Democrats

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 9.—Virginia's postelection Congressional picture received scant alternation today with the arrival of belated returns from some precincts in not-readily accessible areas of the State.

The four contested Congressional races were won handily by Democrats in the Second, Sixth, Seventh and Ninth districts while voters of southeastern Virginia rejected a proposal to set up a sanitation district to combat pollution of the Hampton Roads area.

Late returns served only to make more conclusive what earlier near complete returns had clearly shown, but the full precinct lists in some areas provided the basis by which precinct workers and other politicians might gauge the success of their campaigning.

The closest contest was in the Sixth District, where Representative Clifton A. Woodrum defeated Fred W. McWane, Lynchburg Republican, by approximately 2,500 votes, regarded as an unusually small plurality by Democrats of the district.

With only 10 of the district's 187 precincts missing, the vote showed: Woodrum, 11,425; McWane, 8,996.

In the Seventh District Representative A. Willis Robertson, of Lexington, easily defeated his Republican opponent, C. C. Leap, of Waynesboro. With 240 of the district's 257 precincts reporting the vote was Robertson, 11,175; Leap, 6,350.

Down in Tidewater, Second District voters gave Colgate W. Darden, former Representative who unseated Representative Norman Hamilton in the Democratic primary, a tremendous majority over Carl Spaeth, Independent. Returns from 123 of 128 precincts gave Darden 15,190 to 2,437 for Spaeth.

Republicans in the "Fighting Ninth" District did not make the fight as close as had been expected for ardent New Dealer John W. Flannagan, Representative from Bristol. Lacking returns from 28 of the 247 precincts, the southwest Virginia district gave Flannagan 20,273 votes to 10,003 for his Republican adversary, L. E. Gulliford, of Pulaski.

5 Are Taken To Hospital After Ship Sinks in Md.

Storm Downs Vessel Bound for Alexandria Oyster Shells Cargo Family Is Rescued

By the Associated Press.

Crisfield, Md., Nov. 9 (AP).—Five persons, rescued in Tangier Sound after their 200-ton schooner sank in a storm, were treated for exposure today.

Capt. Carl Anderton, 40, said his schooner, the Samuel F. Denny, sank during a storm yesterday afternoon about an hour after leaving Crisfield with a cargo of 5,000 bushels of oyster shells for Alexandria, Va.

Taken to a Crisfield hospital with Anderton were his wife, a 13-year-old son, Carl, jr.; an uncle, Lemuel Anderton, 52, and the boat engineer, Charles Titus.

"We sank five minutes after the storm hit us and took to our lifeboat," Capt. Anderton told rescuers who found them huddled in the lifeboat aground off Great Point Marsh.

The crew of another schooner, the Agnes Quillan, was taken off their sinking ship last night by the motor freighter, Popeye, at Smith's Point and put ashore at Reedsville, Va. The crew included Capt. Luther Johnson, the mate, Robert Kelly, of Baltimore, and a deck hand.

Candidate Sings Into County Job

Princess Anne, Md., Nov. 9 (AP).—The singing candidate of Somerset County has sung himself into a job—as county treasurer.

Carlos Bozman, Republican nominee for treasurer, adopted the troubadour role at the beginning of his campaign.

He opened, carried on and ended his campaign with songs—not the crooning type, but good old-fashioned hymns.

His songs were popular—the unofficial tabulation of ballots showed today he polled 4,050 votes to 3,393 for his Democratic opponent, J. Miles Lankfords.

Bob Burns Steps Out As 'Arkansas Traveler'

Has Best Role to Date in New Film
Many Notable Screen Stars in Offing
Notes and Notions of the Theater

"You can take a hayseed out of the country, but you can't take the country out of a hayseed."

So I got quite a "bang," as the saying goes, out of "The Arkansas Traveler" yesterday afternoon, when the Warner Brothers executives unspooled it for the guys and gals of the press in the Earle Theater projection room, prior to its opening at the Earle tomorrow. For an hour and a half I enjoyed the warm, nostalgic pleasure of being transported back through the years to a small Midwestern town and there watching the sort of lovable, homely people, that form a precious memory of earlier years, having a pretty tough time of it.

BELL

I was conscious, of course, of the incredibility of much that was flashed on the screen and of the fact that the lines frequently were too sentimental, cut too precisely to the pattern of an improbable ominscience and occasionally just a little banal. The hokum, if that is what you want to call it, did not entirely elude me, either. But I also was aware that here is a picture that is so down to earth, so definitely right in what it undertakes to say and so unaffectedly acted that the balance is all in its favor.

And it seemed to me, too, that without the slightest taint of imitation, Bob Burns, in the title role, demonstrated that he is the only Hollywood actor who has come along with any justifiable claim to successorship to the late lamented Will Rogers, as the cinema's sole protagonist of homespun humor and the simple and kindly philosophy of simple and kindly folk. If Will Rogers were still alive, it is unquestionable that he would have envied Bob Burns the privilege of playing the role of the "hobo" printer, who dropped into a small town from the side of a freight train to salvage the family of an old friend from the domestic crisis forced upon them by the rich young "friend," with the heart of a Shylock and the instincts of a petty dictator. It is the sort of thing Rogers used to revel in, back in the old silent days, when he and Irene Rich—a Washington visitor this week, by the way—were the screen's prime exponents of grassroots drama and the uncommon virtues of the common people.

"The Arkansas Traveler" is so eminently sound in purpose and so lofty in its entertainment intent that such obvious flaws as it contains somehow seem to leave a very slight dent indeed in one's sense of having enjoyed it immensely. Dealing with whistle-stop newspaper people, it is dedicated to William Allen White, the sage of Emporia, Kans., who has indorsed the picture as one honestly reflective of life in the small communities of the Midwest.

It makes a fellow sort of glad he grew up in one—well, part of the way up, anyhow.

These preview screenings, incidentally, are getting a little thick and fast again this week. Today at 11, Mrs. Louise Noonan Miller and Abe Tolkins are unwinding "Generals Without Buttons," opening Sunday for its Washington premiere engagement at the Little Theater, and at 1:30, Manager Sydney Mayers, of the Belasco, is flooding the screen with "Peg of Old Drury," the feature which will follow "Grand Illusion" on Lafayette square, also beginning Sunday.

"Peg of Old Drury" has Sir Cedric Hardwicke and Anna Neagle as its costars. Sir Cedric was last seen in Washington in Eddie Dowling's stage production of "Shadows and Substance," with Julie Haydon. Miss Neagle, one of England's three ranking feminine screen stars, has not been visible in the Capital since she was here in conjunction with the Washington premiere of "Victoria the Great." Her next picture will be a sequel "Victoria," bearing the title of "Sixty Golden Years," in which she again will portray Britain's beloved Queen.

Speaking of England reminds me that Sidney Lust is taking a slightly belated advantage of Orson Welles' recent broadcast of one of H. G. Wells' interplanetary fantasies by presenting another one at his Boro Theater, in Bethesda, Md., today and tomorrow.

Mr. Lust is bringing back the picturization of Wells' "Things to Come," the imaginative tale of a fantastic Utopia. Opening in 1940, the picture depicts the breakdown of our present civilization and the substitution of an idealized form of human life stripped of all its present encumbrances.

Sir Cedric Hardwicke also appears in this one, but the principal male role is played by Robert Massey, seen recently at the National in the title role of Robert E. Sherwood's monumental drama of "Abe Lincoln in Illinois." Now when "Drums" comes along, Washington theatergoers will have a fairly complete measure of Mr. Massey's astonishing versatility.

Dropping an inquisitive eye into the National Theater yesterday afternoon on the way back to the mines from the "Arkansas Traveler" preview, it was gratifying to observe that the house was packed to standing-room capacity for the first matinee performance of the Lunts' production of Chekhov's "The Sea Gull," presented under the aegis of the Theater Guild. The same condition exists with regard to the Saturday matinee. All of which is leading up to the fact that there should be almost enough overflow to sell out the extra Armistice Day matinee, scheduled for tomorrow afternoon at 2:30, and that Washington, as we have been saying right along, is a two-week town for attractions of this caliber and should be recognized as such by the New York theatrical tycoons who keep such an iron grip on those booking sheets.

If anyone were inclined to leap ahead a little in the theater, he would find that following "Submarine Patrol," at Loew's Capitol the week of November 18, will be Joan Crawford, Margaret Sullavan, Robert Young, Melvyn Douglas and Fay Bainter in "The Shining Hour" and that at RKO-Keith's, after "The Mad Miss Manton," will be Constance Bennett, Vincent Price, Charles Ruggles, Mischa Auer, Helen Broderick and Joy Hodges in "Service De Luxe."

A little farther ahead even than that, Thanksgiving will bring "The Citadel," with Robert Donat and Rosalind Russell, to the Capitol immeditely on the heels of its midnight premiere for the benefit of the National Library for the Blind.

Mrs. Mable Walker Willebrandt, member of the board of directors of the library, will deliver a brief speech of welcome to those in attendance at the benefit, Wednesday midnight, November 23.

This Mr. Vincent Price, referred to above, is making his screen debut in this country in "Service De Luxe," but is not unknown to Washington audiences. It was he, it will be recalled, who scored so emphatically here and in New York with Helen Hayes in "Victoria Regina." His assumption of the role of Prince Albert was one of the play's notable distinctions. Although "Victoria Regina" was given its premiere in the National Theater, prior to the New York triumph, it will be seen here again before it is taken off the road and permanently retired—if that time ever comes.

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Calif., Nov. 9.—When Norma Shearer starts "The Women," with Clarence Brown directing, she'll have the finest all-star cast since "Dinner At Eight." Clarence wants either Hedy LaMarr or Joan Crawford for the naughtiest woman. Ilka Chase will be imported from Broadway to do her original part. Either Mary Boland or Alice Brady will get the old girl. And they'll use the D. W. Griffith touches from "Way Down East," with special music for the buzz buzz of gossip, which, for "The Women," will be buzzing most of the time. Funny thing about that Claire Brokaw play—it was Bernard M. Baruch who persuaded Max Gordon to read it, following which Max produced it. The rest you know.

HEDDA HOPPER

I hear there's so much feeling against Marlene Dietrich from exhibitors and other quarters that she may not get the part of Lady Esketh in "The Rains Came." I don't know why they've got a mad on at her, except her last pictures weren't successes. But we've had plenty of others who came back after bad pictures. What about Janet Gaynor and Lew Ayres? Marlene is arriving soon with her husband and daughter. She's kept her household going here all the time she's been away.

Now that Rainer and Odets have staged a come together for a second clinch, it wouldn't surprise me a bit to see Joan Crawford and Tone do ditto. They're both miserable and play-acting at having a good time.

I understand the real reason Dannielle Darrieux is remaining in France is because her husband, being a prominent aviator, would be one of the first called in case of war. To them the scare is not over. And she won't leave him. As for her saying she disliked Hollywood—what nonsense. I never saw a happier girl here. If all the foreigners were as easy and pliable as Dannielle, they wouldn't be sent home in disgrace.

Speaking of those specially made propaganda pictures run at the Filmarte the other night, with Donald Ogden Stewart, Willy Wyler, Whitney Bourne and other top rungs in attendance, the latter should see some of the letters coming in. Mrs. Smith writes: "Franchot Tone and those of the motion picture committee who made such fun of the outdated Republicans, should know that all their pictures will be banned. How futile to spend a million dollars for publicity for movies, then negate by such methods."

Isn't there some way to stop the flashlight boys from interrupting a performance? In no other city in the world would they allow such goings on as were indulged in when Yehudi Menuhin opened with our Symphony Orchestra. The union was smart not to stop the performance.

Some years ago when Leopold Stokowski asked to join the union, they wanted to know what instrument he played. "I'm a conductor." In looking up their by-laws they discovered no provision was made for those boys. "You must play an instrument" said they. "Well, I'm pretty good at the drums," answered Stokie. They got one. He proved his ability and was admitted as a member.

The Colonial Drive Inn is the best place I know to see the stars. While lunching there the other day I chatted with Bing Crosby, Jean Arthur, Richard Greene, Arleen Whelan and Sigrid Gurie. The proprietor, a former actor, prefers eating regularly.

Now that Anna Sten is playing an emigrant in "The Exile" she's found her stride. The budget for this picture just about matches her salary when she was playing for Goldwyn.

By Leonard Lyons

New York, Nov. 9.

WILLIAM DODD, JR., son of the former Ambassador to Germany, recently conducted a primary campaign, seeking to serve his country by going to Washington as a Congressman. Young Dodd was defeated, but he still will go to Washington to work for his country. He has a new job there—with the WPA . . . Bernard Baruch, Gen. Hugh Johnson and George Peek, the former AAA administrator, are writing a rearmament program for America, with particular emphasis upon aviation . . . Dewey's office announced yesterday that Commissioner of Correction McCormick will be a State's witness in the Irwin case. The commissioner will not testify for the State's case.

WHILE JAMES A. DAY was selected as foreman of the Irwin jury—he's 29, and the youngest foreman of a blue ribbon jury ever selected in this State—Irwin arose to make a statement, but then held a whispered consultation with his lawyer, Sam Leibowitz . . . That conversation consisted of one question by Irwin: "Find out for me if that juror plays baseball."

BERNIE BOTEIN, the former assistant district attorney, who was appointed to investigate insurance frauds, has succeeded in turning over to the State Insurance Fund an amount equal to six times the cost of the entire investigation . . . Otto, last of the Hapsburgs and Pretender to the Austrian throne, wants to visit this country and has been negotiating terms . . . While J. Edgar Hoover's G-men were rounding up the kidnap ring here they uncovered a number of flourishing rackets of which Dewey still is unaware. One suspect, innocent of any kidnaping, was found to be an alien convict, and has been deported.

THE NEWLY FORMED Labor Club—affiliate of the American Labor Party—which recently opened a clubhouse in the Hotel Algonquin—finally secured its liquor license yesterday, just in time for the election night festivities . . . The club officials, however, had to buy the entire stock of liquor from retail stores. For the license was issued to the club on the day when practically all the wholesale liquor firms were being picketed.

DIANE BARRYMORE, daughter of John Barrymore and Michael Strange, is about to set upon a theatrical career, and yesterday visited an agent's office in the RKO Building . . . The young lady, mindful of the Barrymore tradition, donned her prettiest gown, her newest hat, etc., and with a tiny dog tucked under her arm started to enter the elevator. Because of the dog she was stopped . . . And that's why the newest Barrymore, en route for a Great Career, was seen, at the floor of her first theatrical agent, emerging from the RKO service elevator.

JIMMY GEE is the youngster who wrote to Eleanor Roosevelt inviting her to cocktails, and as a result was invited to Hyde Park, where he cruised with the Presidential family. Gee recently returned from Europe. He went there armed with letters of introduction from Mrs. Roosevelt to all embassy officials . . . EDDIE DAVIS, who was a cab driver six years ago and who then wrote gags for Eddie Cantor, now is with RKO—and is returning to Broadway to produce his own revue, "Curtain Going Up" . . . The cast will consist only of Catskill Mountain talent . . . Noel Coward has become chummy with Anthony Eden and is talking of running for Parliament.

BEATRICE LILLIE brought this story back from London: It concerns three Turtles who went to a pub for beer. The Turtles were served three glasses, and then it started to rain. The Biggest Turtle told the Smallest one: "Go home for an umbrella" . . . "I won't," was the answer, "because you'll drink my beer" . . . "We won't touch it," promised the Biggest one—and so the Smallest Turtle left to get the umbrella . . . After two years the impatient Biggest Turtle told his companion: "Well, let's just go ahead and finish that third glass" . . . From behind the door came the head of the Smallest Turtle, which squeaked: "Don't. If you drink it—I won't go."

'Silver Phiz' Cue To Make-up

Buddy Ebsen's face, though not famous for its classic proportions, will be his fortune in his new screen role. Fifty cents worth of silver will be applied to it every day for two months. He portrays the Tin Woodman in "The Wizard of Oz."

Attired in a metal suit from head to foot and with a tin funnel for a hat, Ebsen will wear a make-up perfected by Jack Dawn after long experiment. The comedian's face will be first coated with a waxlike preparation, then dusted with pulverized metallic silver. The silver face powder can be burnished with a soft cloth just as shoes are shined.

Kid Gets Contract, Slapsie His Name

The long line of Our Gang leading men from Johnny Downs and Mickey Daniels down through Spanky McFarland and Alfalfa Switzer, will be continued.

That was assured when 2½-year-old Gary Jasquer was signed to a long-term Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer contract as the latest permanent member. His youthful deadpan comic characterization has attracted constant attention. With the new contract, he joins the select company of Alfalfa, Spanky, Porky, Buckwheat and Darla, and has been renamed "Slapsie."

Footsteps of Dads Point Way to Trio

'Single-Mike' Feher Has His Own Ideas

Reverses the Experts
Recording Successful
Produced 'Caligari'

Hollywood, Nov. 9.—The mumbo-jumbo boys in Hollywood are the sound engineers, whose equipment is colossal, expensive and complicated, and whose scientific chatter seems to have awed their bosses.

A movie sound expert, in any event, gets what he wants around a studio. He tells the director, he tells the actor, and he gets away with it.

These lads make large salaries, mostly they have impressive looking degrees behind their names, and by all odds they are the technical overlords of the town.

They really do their stuff when they have a big musical film to record. Then they have microphones planted all over the stage and in the potted palms. They run in sound channel after sound channel, mix the result in a room which looks not unlike the Boulder Dam powerhouse, and thereby add tremendously to the cost of the production.

And this, they claim, is necessary.

"But I do not think it is," Frederick Feher reported today. He is the Viennese orchestra conductor and movie producer who currently is leading the world's largest symphony orchestra and confounding all the experts by recording the music made by 122 men with a single solitary microphone.

This gadget hangs by a rope from the ceiling of the sound stage, and though the master minds of the rival sound departments insist it won't work, it does.

As a consequence, Feher is making a series of six two-reel symphonic films for Paramount release for what Hollywood calls peanuts. Their cost, including union wages for all the musicians, runs only to $6,250 each.

"Instead of running dozens of microphones and sound channels," Feher said, "I simply rearrange my orchestra so that all the sounds can be recorded by the one microphone. The results are better, artistically, than by the multichannel method, and far cheaper."

Feher made 150 pictures abroad, mostly in his native Vienna.

"And then Mr. Hitler walked in and I figured I'd better walk out," he said.

Miss Cornell National's Star For Next Week

'Herod and Miriamne' Kortner Leading Man Other New Programs

Of unusual interest in the current theatrical season is Katharine Cornell's forthcoming appearance in Clemence Dane's adaptation of Friedrich Hebbel's drama of "Herod and Miriamne," to be seen, prior to the New York premiere, for one week only in the National Theater, beginning next Monday night, November 14. There will be the usual matineee performances on Wednesday and Saturday. Set in Jerusalem, the action of "Herod and Miriamne" occurs in the period just prior to the birth of Christ. Miss Dane's version of the play is said to be for the most part historically accurate. Miss Cornell will be seen in the role of Miriamne and Fritz Kortner, noted German actor, as Herod. Others of note in the cast will include Florence Reed, McKay Morris and Kent Smith. Guthrie McClintic has staged the play and Harry Horner designed the settings.

Frank Lloyd's picturization for Paramount of Justin Huntly McCarthy's famous play of "If I Were King," with Ronald Colman in the role of the vagabond poet, Francois Villon, and Frances Dee as the princess, will be seen for the first time on a Washington screen at Loew's Palace Theater, beginning today. This is the most engaging presentation of the legendary romance to reach the public in many seasons, either on stage or screen. Basil Rathbone, Ellen Drew, Sidney Toler, Henry Wilcoxon, Ralph Forbes, C. V. France and an ensemble of thousands support the somely mounted spectacular drama. The dialogue and action have been given the interesting briskness of a modern play. The bill will be augmented by specially selected short subjects.

Bob Burns, The Post's humorist, comes to the Earle screen tomorrow for a week's engagement in the title role of Paramount's production of "The Arkansas Traveler." In this subject he is said to portray a heart-warming character of the his last picture. The story is of homespun type not seen on the screen since the late Will Rogers made his last picture. The story is of small town life, in which a "hobo" printer saves the day for a widow and her family. In supporting roles of prominence will be seen Fay Bainter, John Beal, Jean Parker, Irvin S. Cobb, Lyle Talbot and Porter Hall. On the stage, the "high-hatted rhythm man," Ted Lewis, will banish the blues with his new revue. Among his entertainers are Charles "Snowball" Whittier, famous as his "shadow;" the Gale Sextet, the Ted Lewis Quintette and, as extra added attractions, Eddie Leonard, the celebrated minstrel, and Shelton Brooks, composer of "Darktown Strutters' Ball."

"Submarine Patrol," Twentieth Century-Fox's melodramatic romance of the "splinter fleet" of wooden submarine chasers in the great war, will be the major screen attraction at Loew's Capitol Theater for the week beginning tomorrow. The principal roles are played by Preston Foster, George Bancroft, John Carradine, J. Farrell MacDonald, Slim Summerville and scores more. The new stage bill at the Capitol will be headlined by that distinguished dancer, Harriet Hoctor, in a series of her incomparable ballets. Others on the bill will include Gil Lamb, eccentric dancer; Tommy Sanford, harmonica virtuoso; Nan Wynn, radio's song favorite, and Rolf Holbein and his "mysterious blackboard."

The principal screen attraction for Armistice Day week at the RKO-Keith Theater will be "The Mad Miss Manton," in which the costellar roles are assumed by Barbara Stanwyck and Henry Fonda. The picture is said to combine the thrills of a detective story with the gayety of a high-speed comedy. Frances Mercer, Vicki Lester, Eleanor Hanson, Whitney Bourne, Anna Evers, Catherine O'Quinn and Linda Terry are importantly cast as a septet of Miss Stanwyck's debutante companions. The bill will be completed by the usual short-reel subjects and a new issue of the Pathe News.

"Brother Rat," Warner Brothers' film version of the George Abbott stage success, will be presented at the Metropolitan Theater for a repeat engagement, beginning Friday. The leading roles are portrayed by Eddie Albert, Priscilla Lane, Wayne Morris, Johnny Davis, Jane Bryan, Ronald Reagan, Jane Wyman and Henry O'Neill. The story concerns undergraduate life at the Virginia Military Institute.

Wallace Berry and Mickey Rooney will be the pictured stars of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production of "Stablemates," an emotional melodrama of the racetracks in which there also is a strong vein of comedy. Marjorie Gateson, Arthur Hohl, Minor Watson and Margaret Hamilton are prominent in the supporting cast. Many thrilling race scenes at the leading tracks of the country are shown.

The new issue of the "March of Time", devoted to scenes "Inside the Maginot Line", in France; a travelogue in natural colors devoted to "Guatemala"; "Shock Troops of Disaster", featuring scenes of the recent New England hurricane, and Walt Disney's cartoon comedy of "Broken Toys" will comprise the short features of the new bill opening tomorrow at the Trans-Lux Theater. The program as usual will be based on newsreel coverage of the world.

At the Belasco Theater, "Grand Illusion", starring Pierre Fresnay, Jean Gabin, Eric Von Stroheim and Dita Parlo, will be continued through Saturday of this week. On Sunday and for the ensuing week, the foremost attraction will be "Peg of Old Drury", the story of David Garrick and Peg Woffington, with Sir Cedric Hardwicke and Anna Neagle in the stellar roles. The added attraction will be the musical brevity, "Valse Brilliante", played by Alexander Brailowsky, pianist.

In keeping with the spirit of Armistice Day, the Mount Vernon open-air Auto Theater, on the Richmond pike below Alexandria, Va., will offer "The Road Back" as the principal feature of its bill for the remainder of the current week, beginning today. The principal roles are played by Richard Cromwell, John King, Andy Devine and Slim Summerville, as the youthful veterans of the German trenches, Barbara Read and Etienne Girardot.

"Generals Without Buttons", satirical French film, based on a prize-winning novel by Louis Pergaud, on Sunday, will open its first local engagement at the Little Theater, where it will continue the attraction throughout next week. The story is in lively comedy vein, with a group of children pointing the way to peace among their elders. The picture is said to be unlike anything ever turned out by Hollywood.

The star of next week's burlesque offering at the Gayety Theater will be Nadja, the exotic Russian. The comedy roles will be intrusted to Charles "Red" Marshall and Bert Carr. Also prominent in a cast of 60 will be "Boo" La Von and Jean Carroll, with a dancing beauty chorus as background. The engagement will open with the usual Sunday matinee performance.

Democrats Lose Lone Race In Montgomery

Walter Johnson Wins G. O. P. Congratulates O'Conor Well Ahead

Returns from all but one of Montgomery County's 35 precincts last night gave sweeping victories to all but one Democratic candidate. Walter Johnson, Republican, defeated Clay Plummer for the board of commissioners.

Herbert R. O'Conor, Democrat, had run up 13,591 votes to 8,675 for Harry W. Nice while Senator Tydings was leading his Republican rival, Oscar Leser, 15,340 to 5,200 Down the line on the State ticket, the Democrats held almost a 2-to-1 lead.

Robert L. McKeever, chairman of the Republican State committee for Montgomery County, last night in a statement to the press congratulated the Democrats on their victory, and expressed satisfaction at election of Johnston to the post of commissioner.

Only precinct which remained incomplete were considered certain to be Democratic.

Johnson's lead of 11,311 to Plummer's, 9,755, assured his victory, whatever the returns from the last precinct. Two other candidates for re-election to the board, Frank H. Karn and Paul M. Coughlan, Republicans, were defeated by John B. Oxley and Odorion W. Roby. The other two successful Democrats were Thomas Earle Hampton and Robert W. Farmer, candidates for commissioners.

In a tight race for Representative from the Sixth Congressional District, William D. Byron, Washington County Democrat, held a lead of 5,037 over A. Charles Stewart, Republican, of Alleghany County. The vote stood 12,915 to 7,878, but it was not certain whether his heavy lead in Montgomery would carry the district for Byron.

The slate of Democratic candidates for the State House of Delegates elected includes Joseph D. Buscher, James W. Gill, Charles C. Jones, Stanton C. Peele, jr., and Ruth Elizabeth Shoemaker. They showed an average lead of about 4,000 votes over Republican candidates for the offices.

Ben G. Wilkinson defeated Thomas M. Anderson for States attorney, 11,741 to 9,748; Clayton K. Watkins was elected clerk of the Circuit Court of Appeals over Sidney M. Oliver, 13,926 to 7,501; John B. Diamond had 11,778 votes for county treasurer against Ira C. Whitacre's 9,594.

Robert Peter defeated Walter W. Dawson, 13,311 to 8,176, for State Senator. Stedman Prescott held a 5,000 majority over Wilson L. Townsend for associate judge of the Sixth Circuit.

J. William Garrett, Montgomery police chief running for sheriff on the Republican ticket, lost to Leslie Carlin. Charles J. Maddox was elected county surveyor and Hanson G. Cashell, register of wills.

Returns were notavailable on the votes for income tax, lottery and marriage law amendments.

Driver Convicted As Lunar Eclipse Kills His Alibi

Sharpsburg, Md., Nov. 9.—The lunar eclipse Monday night played a prominent part in the conviction here yesterday of Daniel E. Ebersole, of this town, of parking a car without lights.

Doris Miner, of near Hagerstown, whose car backed into the machine of Ebersole, was charged with reckless driving by State Officer R. F. Lewis. The scene was Antietam Furnace, near here; the time, 7 p. m. Miss Miner was found guilty.

Ebersole, testifying before Magistrate Fred Mose, said that no lights were necessary because of the almost full moon that illuminated the countryside. Another witness testified that the moon was in eclipse at the time of the accident and that a flashlight was needed for illumination. Mose also found Ebersole guilty.

Would you give a million to shake off that dull, dopey, played-out feeling that often comes with common constipation? Then stop a minute and think.

What have you had to eat this week? Just meat, bread, eggs, potatoes? Probably the reason you're constipated is you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean how much you eat. It means a kind of food that isn't entirely digested, but leaves a soft, bulky mass in the intestines which helps a bowel movement.

What to do? Eat some Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast every day. This crunchy toasted cereal is not only rich in "bulk"—it also contains both the intestinal tonic vitamin $B_1$, and iron.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Does Galento's Money Talk

Boiled down to brutal facts, the boys were merely playing store down at the District Boxing Commission offices yesterday. Chubby Tony Galento and his gang peeled of a crisp $10,000 bill, laid it on the counter and bought what they think is a chance at Joe Louis' heavyweight title.

National Boxing Association Secretary Heinie Miller rang up the $10,000 in the cute little N. B. A. register, made up a petty bundle, handed it over to the Galento gang, and said: "Next customer, and what can I do for you, madam?"

The boys weren't dealing in stage money, but they might as well have been. Because we must state, at the risk of destroying any youthful illusions, that nothing can be purchased at the District Boxing Commission offices, much less a shot at the world's heavyweight championship. This one time, money—even ten grand—had no power of speech. Galento may have handed over his $10,000, but he didn't buy anything.

POVICH.

Perhaps we'd better reconstruct the situation that caused Galento to come galloping to Washington with the $10,000 put up by his backers. A situation began to arise last winter when Barkeep Galento took time off from drawing suds in his Jersey saloon to slap down a string of the lesser known heavyweights and emerge as something of a heavyweight himself.

Almost Loses to Pneumonia

Some shrewdly handled publicity disseminated by Yussell Jacobs, Galento's manager, actually made a fistic figure of Galento who was considered washed-up three years ago when he dropped a duke to Marty Gallagher. Promoters began to make demands on Tony's services and the upshot was that Galento found himself with a match with John Henry Lewis, the light-heavyweight champion.

The match was booked by Muggsy Taylor, Philadelphia promoter, and just about the time that Galento was ready to issue his prebattle statement that he'd "knock that bum ou," along came influenza with pneumonia running interference and walloped Tony into an oxygen tent for six weeks.

The Lewis-Galento match had to be called off. But Tony still had a fight on his hands—a fight with Kid Pneumonia. Tony got the decision, did a handspring through the flaps of the oxygen tent and announced that he's still "knock out that bum, John Henry Lewis."

But it seems that meantime, John Henry Lewis had been wooed and won by the Mike Jacobs promotorial firm of New York, with branch offices in Chicago and California. Lewis ran out of a Galento bout that was to be rescheduled and signed to fight Joe Louis for the world's championship at Madison Square Garden in January.

Galento Gang Is Mad!

So this week we find Galento and his gang hopping mad at the runaround they have been getting. Promoter Taylor, who took a $20,000 wallop on the prefight expenses of the ill-starred Galento-Lewis affair, conceived the bright idea of running to the National Boxing Association with a $10,000 forfeit and a demand that Joe Louis accept a Galento fight within 90 days.

The reason that we find them seeking redress in Washington this week is that Mr. Heinie Miller, the District Boxing Commission secretary, also happens to be the secretary of the N. B. A. And Miller had indicated that Galento's demands and his forfeit would be well received.

So thus it was that Mr. Miller took Galento's $10,000 yesterday and very solemnly read off the articles and the conditions, and announced that if Joe Louis refused to accept a Galento fight within 90 days he would be stripped of his heavyweight championship by no less than the National Boxing Association.

Come to think of it, it would be quite a stunt to dig up something less than the National Boxing Association. Despite its high-sounding name, the N. B. A. has about as much influence over the world's heavyweight boxing championships as your Aunt Kate. One word from the N. B. A. and the world's heavyweight champion not only does as he pleases, but accompanies it with a loud belly-laugh.

Big Babies Are Tough

The N. B. A. which claims affiliations with 39 States, or it may be 44, can deal more or less effectively with the small fry of boxing, but it is a lost ball when it attempts to tackle some of the major problems of the profession. Because Washington deals mostly in featherweight champions and lesser-known contenders, the N. B. A. is a valuable affiliate for the District Boxing Commission which can keep rule violators idle in most of the money centers.

But when the N. B. A. goes so far as to threaten to strip a heavyweight champion of his title, as it appears to be doing in this instance, it is downright laughable. Because virtually all heavyweight championships are fought in New York, which does not happen to be N. B. A. territory, and Mr. Mike Jacobs has lately established a promotorial office in California, which also does not happen to be N. B. A. territory.

New York and California will be the scenes of the next few heavyweight title battles inasmuch as both are staging World Fairs in 1939. The N. B. A. may prevent Joe Louis from getting a fight license in Gallipolis, Paducah, Dubuque and Peoria if he fails to accept the Galento challenge.

But the chances are, at this point, that Joe Louis and Mike Jacobs are completely and overwhelmingly unworried.

Sammy Snead Posts 136, Leads Open

At White Sulphur Henry Picard 2d Laffoon, Harper Tie Snead Unlucky

By the Associated Press.

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Nov. 9.—A second day splurge of sub-par golf that grouped big timers and comparative newcomers in a mad scramble setting found Sam Snead with 136 tonight, a bare stroke ahead of a closely bunched crowd of dangerous contenders in the $3,000 Open White Sulphur golf tournament.

Henry Picard, who mechanically followed Snead's chance-taking trail, ended up with a 69, one under par, that gave him 137, one back of the slammer.

Snead, putting for birdies and missing five out of six daring attempts might have been far under his two below par 68 with luck.

Jules Huot, 127 pound former Canadian Open champ from Quebec, who amazed the gallery yesterday with brilliant putting for a four under par 66, saw his greens game go sour and took a par 72.

Harper Has 138

His 138 total put him in a group with Ky Laffoon, Chicago, who duplicated yesterday's 69 and 24-year-old Chandler Harper from Portsmouth, Va., who shot 70 today.

Harry Cooper remained in a spot that was easy striking distance for his methodical play, carding a 69, one under yesterday for 139, where Billy Burke, of Belleair, Fla., tied with 70 today, one over his first round.

Ed Dudley, Philadelphia, slammed out the day's lowest score, 67, to land four strokes back of the leader at 140. Matching him was John Bulla, young Chicago star, who stuck a 69 up alongside yesterday's 71. Ed Oliver, Wilmington, Del., ace, stayed well up in the chase with 67, 71—140.

141 for Byrd

Sam Byrd, Philadelphia, and Bob Hamilton, Evansville, Ind., rested five strokes back of Snead at 141, the 22-year-old Indianan falling off his scorching 67 pace yesterday.

Three consistent golfers, Dick Metz, Lake Forest, Ill.; Stanley Horne, Ottawa, and Bob Dunkelberger, High Point, N. C., tied up a stroke back at 142, and Jimmy Thomson, the Shawnee, Pa., flash, shot a 71 to land alongside A. C. Giles, New York amateur, who carded a 68 today in the 143 bracket.

Horton Smith, of Oak Park, Ill., was tied with eight others at 145 with Tommy Armour and Lawson Little a stroke back. Jimmy Hines carded a 75 to drop to 148.

Sixty golfers qualified for the final 36 holes of competition tomorrow with 153 good enough.

Title Denied To Krieger

N. Y. B. Commission Recognize Apostoli To Meet Corbett

By Jack Cuddy.

United Press Staff Correspondent.

New York, Nov. 9.—The New York Boxing Commission refused to recognize Solly Krieger as middleweight champion today and ruled, instead, that the 15-round bout between Fred Apostoli and Young Corbett 3d, at Madison Square Garden on November 18 would be for the "world title."

This was protecting home industry (promoter Mike Jacobs' fight and his options on the two California clouters) meanwhile scorning home products (Krieger and Manager Hymie Caplin of Brooklyn).

Krieger was requested to defend his title claims against the Apostoli-Corbett winner not later than January 30, if he wished title consideration. He and Caplin were given until November 22 to accept the match.

Krieger is recognized as 160-pound king by the National Boxing Association by virtue of his victory over Al Hostak, of Seattle, on November 1. Accordingly, Manager Caplin declared, "Solly is champion in 47 States, and as champion he has six months in which to defend his crown. We won't accept this match. We'll defend when we're ready."

Chairman John J. Phelan of the commission warned Caplin: "New York State did not recognize Hostak as champion, and it does not recognize Krieger. Hence this six-months business has no bearing on the case. We are giving Krieger a chance to defend his claims."

Phelan emphasized that Apostoli had beaten four champions in over-the-weight matches: Brouillard, Thil, Risko and Steele, in addition to walloping Krieger twice. He is the commission's No. 1 contender. Corbett is Apostoli's title opponent

Bands Will Compete With Grid Teams at Miami-C. U. Battle

Floridians to Bring 75 Musicians West Virginia Burns Hoya Effigies G. W. and Maryland Squads Drill Hard

By Jack Munhall.

A battle of music as well as a struggle between keen intersectional foes was assured for the Armistice Day football meeting of Catholic and Miami Universities yesterday when it was learned definitely that Miami's famed 75-piece collegiate band will be on hand for the game at Griffith Stadium.

With this gang of melody makers, the total of musical units for the colorful American Legion-sponsored spectacle has been brought to five. The others are the Fort Stevens Drum and Bugle Corps, the Sons of the Legion Drum Corps, the James Reese Europe Post Drum and Bugle Corps and the Catholic University Band.

High Catholic prelates and leading Government dignitaries and members of the diplomatic and social set also will be in attendance to make this game one of the outstanding features of Armistice Day celebration.

The Apostolic Delegate, the Most Rev. Archbishop Amleto Cicognani, and his staff will be the guests of honor of Mgr. Joseph M. Corrigan, rector of Catholic University. The Apostolic delegate will be attending his first football game since he watched Notre Dame several seasons ago.

The presence of Secretary of War Harry H. Woodring gives the game the final touch of service pomp and pageantry which will rival the annual Army-Navy clash. Mr. Woodring will be assisted on the martial side by American Legion National Commander Stephen F. Chadwick and the National Guard of Honor, the legion's colorful and ceremonial escort corps.

Meanwhile the University of Miami squad was speeding closer to Washington and will arrive today and take part in a light practice at Griffith Stadium this afternoon.

The Miami squad is reported in excellent fettle following its recent 44-0 victory over Oglethorpe with the exception of Halfback Johnny Douglas and Center Pat Patterson. But neither of these boys had been counted on for the game, since both were injured several weeks ago.

Miami, with triumphs over Florida, Tampa and Oglethorpe has captured the Southern Conference championship and is seeking a second straight victory over Catholic University to complete one of the most successful seasons in the school's history.

Tickets for the game may be obtained at American Legion Headquarters, 416 Denrike Building; all Legion Posts; Griffith Stadium, Spalding's, American Automobile Association and Henderson's Grill.

Rumors circulating the Georgetown University campus to the effect that effigies of Joe Mellendeck and Joe Frank has been burned last night in a wild ceremony on the West Virginia campus yesterday stirred up a wave of indignation at the Hilltop.

The Hoyas, seeking a victory over the Mountaineers to maintain its undefeated, untied record, are set to not only revenge last year's 6-6 tie with West Virginia but also to spoil the hilarious week-end being planned by the Mountaineers in event of a victory over Georgetown.

In yesterday's practice, the Hoya squad was strengthened by the return of "Lefty" Riofski, center, who missed the Bucknell game because of an ankle injury. Riofski was a star against Manhattan and Temple and his presence in the lineup will be most helpful to Georgetown.

Dummy scrimmage, study of West Virginia plays, signal drill and punting will occupy the Georgetown squad this afternoon. It leaves for Fairmont, W. Va., tomorrow night and will work out there Friday. On Saturday morning the Hoyas will board a bus for Morgantown and the game.

Bob Nowaskey, 195-pound senior who Monday was shifted from end to fullback in an effort to improve George Washington's offense and defense, continued to justify the change yesterday as the Colonials for the third straight day engaged in a lengthy scrimmage at Griffith Stadium.

Vic Sampson, triple-threat halfback, who was benched by irate Coach Bill Reinhart Monday, broke into action for the first time since the Clemson game, playing his customary tailback position. But it was understood that the slender little fellow who was one of the East's leading ground gainers last season will not start against Kansas on Saturday afternoon.

Maryland University's squad will entrain at 1:50 o'clock this afternoon for Gainesville, Fla., where, on Saturday afternoon Florida University will be met in an intersectional game. The Terps, who spent yesterday tuning up their attack, will arrive at their destination at noon tomorrow and make their headquarters at the Thomas Hotel.

Wilson Meets Central Team

Today at Central Series Lead at Stake But in Little Danger

Central High's hard-earned grid series lead will be at stake, but in no particular danger today when the Mount Ieasanters engage Woodrow Wilson at Central Stadium at 3:15.

By its shellacking of Tech last Friday Central assumed the position of overwhelming favorite to squelsh all future opposition and end up with the schoolboy crown. But Coach Hardy earce of the leaders is not too optimistic. He has heard it said that Central has the best grid team in the city for the last five years, and he's afraid his players have heard the same. Therefore he fears a letdown.

"Those letdowns really let you down," he said yesterday. "The best teams have them, and you know what happens. That's why I've tried to keep the boys from becoming too overconfident about the Wilson game tomorrow. That bunch might whip us if we get smart."

The squad as a whole, however, is in fine condition physically if not mentally. And it will probably take more than "upset" minds to lose today's game for Central, considering its power in every position. Wilson has a young, fast team that has shown no aptitude for scoring this season, despite its upsetting deadlock with Eastern. The score which tied last year's champs was considered by many a lucky break, and the theory sounds reasonable in view of the fact that it was the President's sole touchdown of the season.

Eight touchdowns, a safety and two extra points have been carded against Wilson while it tallied its

Its first touchdown in the interhigh football series, plus the extra point, won a game for Anacostia yesterday, 7-6, over the injury-depleted ranks of Roosevelt. About 400 watched the battle at Roosevelt Stadium.

It was perhaps the hardest-fought tilt of the current series, with ill-feeling between the teams breaking out in the second half. Roosevelt's quarterback, Archer Overby, and the stocky guard of the Indians, Francis Herbert, weer sent to the bench to cool off for a quarter as the result of a tiff soon after half-time.

Anacostia, scoreless and winless since starting in the series this year, took a lead in the second period when Perry Seaman, Indian halfback, lateralled to his mate, Art Faircloth, and the latter jogged over from the Roosevelt 5. Leading up to the counter, however, was an attempted kick which slid off the toe of the Riders' Warren Fulton and went out of bounds on his own 13. This occurred late in the opening period and by the end of the quarter Bob Gordon had advanced the ball to the 10.

Pass for Extra Point

From that point Gordon and Seaman brought the ball to the 5 in three plays and Faircloth furnished the final punch. The lateral, which scored the points, incidentally, has been Anacostia's main ground-gaining play during the season. Faircloth sent receivers wide and passed directly over the line to Otis Scott for the extra point, which eventually was the winning margin.

Roosevelt then took to the air—and successfully. Its two tallest players, Dick Metzler in the backfield and Danny Boothe, an end, completed a series of short passes which finally set up the Rider score. What looked like just another short, flat pass as the third quarter got under way, from Metzler to Boothe, was good for the score as Boothe caught the ball and twisted his way from exact midfield to the goal.

Then came the expulsion of Overby and Herbert from the game. Wilbert Lewis, lineman, called on for the placement, missed the first attempt, but was allowed another when both teams were offsides. Again the ball sailed wide, allowing Anacostia the lead which won.

The last quarter was bitterly fought as Roosevelt took to the air. Arriving at Anacostia's 20, the aerial guns temporarily jammed, and Anacostia moved back to midfield. Losing the ball on downs, the Anacostians set themselves to defend their lead. Francis Fillius intercepted one of Metzler's passes and ran 40 yards to the goal, but the play was called back because both teams were offsides. "Flash" Gordon broke away on a dash of 28 yards which picked up a first down and placed the ball on Roosevelt's 20.

There Roosevelt drew a 15-yard penalty for a substitute's talking, and Anacostia was virtually assured another score. Faircloth laid a pass in Gordon's hands across the goal line, but the flashy back made one of his few misplays of the game and dropped it. An Anacostia penalty set the victors back and they soon lost the ball on downs.

Both teams did well in the air. The Riders completed 10 out of 18 attempted aerials, while Anacostia completed two out of four. Roosevelt suffered much, however, by the loss of three of its best players by injuries and illness before the game. Bill Gundershimer suffered a broken nose in practice; Frank Laddbush, regular quarter, suffered a near-concussion of the brain in an automobile accident and George Zuras' broken nose is not yet healed. Center Eric Moore was unable to play because of arm injuries.

Galento Posts $10,000 As Challenge to Louis

New Jersey Fighter Says He's Ready for Joe 'Deadline' Is Set Feb. 9 by the N. B. A.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

Tony Galento, pugilistic enigma No. 1, arrived at the District Boxing Commission office yesterday, all out of breath but well heeled, as they say in the financial district, to challenge Joe Louis for the world heavyweight champion.

Ambling Anthony's challenge was vested in a slightly thumbed but imposing $10,000 note of the realm's currency. Said note was borrowed for the occasion from Herman Taylor, Philadelphia promoter, who has Tony under contract, and who tagged along with him to keep the money under his watchful eye.

Joe Jacobs, the Einstein of boxing when it comes to angles and payoff figures; Galento's agent and Joe Burke, a jockey-size trainer, also were in the party. The ten grand spoke the loudest, however, with Galento running a close second. Tony is not only voluble, but downright eloquent on occasion.

There was some delay in the proceedings, while the underfed Italian posed with the money, with his left hook, with a scowl on his face and with a twinkle in his eye, and then the business commenced. Heine Miller, secretary of the Washington commission, and vice president of the National Boxing Association, stood up and solemnly read the "whereases" and "now therefores" of the challenge before an awed audience.

"Deadline" Feb. 9

It was hot and stuff in the little room, and Galento once or twice seemed puzzled by the legal phrasing of his challenge, as if the boys were pulling a fast one on him. The N. B. A., it seems, agreed to accept Taylor's 10 grand and hold it in escrow until February 9, 1939, by which time Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis must accept the challenge, or incur the N. B. A.'s official wrath.

The money was posted in two wads, so to speak, $5,000 as a guarantee of good faith in challenging the titleholder, and $5,000 as a side bet that he wins the crown. All reference to Tony winning by a knockout was judiciously avoided. After its reading, all parties concerned signed the papers with trmebling hands, and the ghastly business was over.

Galento, who boxes Harry Thomas Monday night at Philadelphia, then retired to the Huron Athletic Club gym and almost wrecked the premises in a workout. He also uttered a few gems of wisdom for public consumption.

Not Foolin' Now!

"I'm not foolin' around any more," he confided. "No more o' that drinking beer before a fight, staying out all hours and running around permlislestly. I'm married now, ya know, and I got that little kid up there, too, and I'm gonna Louis out—then grab a little win the title—sure I can knock gravy, then retire.

"I'm 28 now, ya know. Yeah, I gotta make it while I can. I want that title bad, and I'm gonna get it. The night I lost to Gallagher here I musta drunk 28 bottles of that near-beer they had then. I was water-logged when I got in there with 'im. Even at that I shouldda knocked him out in two. But he was the local pride and joy, so I thought I'd let 'im go a few rounds. An' what happens? He butts me, and I lost by a K. O."

"Will you fight Marty now?"

"Go git 'im. I'll give 'im $25 to go over to the gym with me now. I'll knock 'im out. I'll knock out that ouis, too, and fast. Whaddit

Forty-Year Dream

New York, Nov. 9.—This is the saga of a football family—and the star that shone when the sun had set.

VIDMER.

It begins some 40 years ago when a strong young fellow entered Princeton with a fine body and athletic ambitions. Most of all he wanted to paly on the Tiger football team and those who knew him felt certain that he would have made a great tackle or a plunging fullback, for he was the strongest fellow in the university, won every heavyweight match in which he participated and was so quick and well co-ordinated that he was a brilliant member of the gym team.

But he didn't pay football. Not varsity football, because his parents objected and made him promise not to go out for the team. However, the urge for the game was too strong to resist entirely and under the anonymity of the scrubs, he was on the field every afternoon that practice was held.

For four years he contributed his time, his strength and his devotion to moulding the varsity machines; furnishing them with stiff opposition as they prepared for their games with Yale and Harvard. He did it for the love of the sport and loyalty to his university, but when he graduated there was an ache in his heart, for the one thing he had wanted most was a varsity letter, which he couldn't earn because of the prejudices of his parents.

Still, he kept up his interest in football, and during the next few years, while he was studying for the M. A. and L. L. B. degrees he needed to become a lawyer, he traveled 50 miles every afternoon to coach his home town high school team, returning to the graduate schol each night to resume his studies.

All Honors But One

Time brought him fame. He was recognized as one of the leading jurists of his State, his home town elected him mayor, and as a bibliophile his collection of first editions was the envy and despair of fellow bookmen. Still there was that old frustration, carried over from college, lingering through the years—he never had won a varsity letter.

But the passing years and a charming wife brought him three sons. And he made up his mind that one of them, at least, should go to Princeton, play football and, if possible, win the varsity letter he had been denied.

The boys grew loder and soon it was time for the eldest to enter Princeton. But the eldest son was not the athletic type. He was a student, and when he graduated with high scholastic honors, the father was satisfied with the record he left behind him.

Still, the family didn't have a wearer of the varsity "P." There was a chance, a good chance, that the second son might achieve the distinction and satisfy the old ambition, but just as he was ready to follow in the family footsteps and don the traditional little black cap, sybolic of a Princeton freshman, he was struck down by some sinister and fatal infection against whose ravages the medical science is powerless.

Last Candidate

It was a terrific blow, but still there was one more son to go to Princeton and play football and carry the ball for the varsity. And this third son was the most promising of the lot. At Lawrenceville he was a fine student like his older brother, but he also displayed exceptional athletic ability.

"The kid's going to be just like you," friends would say to the father of the boy after reading about the youngster's brilliant performances in prep school. "He can't miss."

Patiently, hopefully, he had waited all these years to see one of his own de the things he had so longed to do himself those many years ago. Joyously he looked forward to the thrill that seemed assured.

Yet even that last heart throb of excitement was denied him. Not that the third son didn't live up to all the promise he had shown in school. He knew what his dad had waited for him to do and he did it, more vigorously, more recklessly than anyone had anticipated.

Ambition Achieved

He was the outstanding performer on his freshman team. The next year he was one of the few sophomores to name the varsity, and through his junior year he was the backbone of the Tiger team.

And after that second season on the varsity he was unanimously elected captain of the team. On Saturday he will be leading the Princeton varsity against Yale.

But Worrall Mountain, Princeton '05, never saw his son play a single game for Princeton. When Tommy Mountain was a freshman, just beginning his brilliant career, death took the father who had waited so long to see him—took him as quickly and unexpectedly as it had taken the second son.

But it's just possible that Worrall Mountain has looked down from Valhalla and seen his son and smiled at the realization of an old ambition.

Chilean Army Team Wins National Show Title

U.S. Riders' Rally Fails In Finals

Win Second Place Irish Team Third Mexicans Fourth Canadians Fifth

A Staff Correspondent.

New York, Nov. 9.—The Chilean army team, under the inspired leadership of Maj. Eduardo Yanez, was tonight acclaimed the winner of the international low-score competition challenge torphy presented by the president of Chile and emblematic of military team jumping supremacy.

They were so far ahead on points this evening that, though they were defeated in this the last night of competition by the United States Army team and the Canadian Army team, their scores in the preceding contests were so law that they won with points to spare. There was a jump-off necessary to determine tonight's winner, for on the first round the Chilean, Canadian and United States teams were tied with four faults each. None of these three teams on the jump-off equaled first performances, but the United States team was best with eight faults, followed by the Canadians and Chileans with higher scores.

The United States team was composed of the old veteran Dakota, ridden by Lieut. Franklin W. Wing; King Hi, ridden by Capt. Royce A. Drake, and Don, ridden by Lieut. Scott M. Sanford.

Old Dakota had clean performances in the first round and on the jump-off, the only horse in tonight's contest accomplishing that feat.

The Canadian team which was placed second was made up of Lady Jane, ridden by iLeut. Col. R. S. Timmis; Dunadry, ridden by Lieut. Douglas Cleland, and Keodore, ridden by Capt. Stuart C. Bate. Jumping on the Chilean team were Toqui, ridden by Maj. Eduardo Yanez, Chilena, ridden by Lieut. Hernan Vigil, and Deseada, ridden by Capt. Pelayo Izurieta.

Score Is 20

The Chilean team's total score for the three nights of battle was 20; the United States Army team, 32½; the Irish army team, which took third place, 75; the Mexican army team was fourth with 76½ faults. The Canadian Army team and the Cuban Army teams trailed with scores of 141 and 141½, respectively.

This was the thirtieth military officers' competition in the National Horse Show for the international military perpetual challenge trophy otherwise known as "The President's Cup," donateed by J. Spencer Weed. This contest started in the year 1909 through the efforts of the late Alfred G. Vanderbilt who persuaded a group of British army officers and United States Army officers to compete in two special classes open only to the military. The British visitors were the winners in 1909.

Follow Course

A year later four countries were represented in the National. Since then the military contests have been the principal featured class of the National Horse Show program. In 1937 the championship was won by the Canadian army team, in 1936 the British army team, and 1935, the Irish Free State, and 1934, the French army team.

The course selected for tonight's contest was Course "H." The jumps were designed for the dual purpose of lending color and to ask the horses on the military teams to negotiate obstacles which they might well meet on the field of battle or in camp. The in-and-out is composed of four jumps, consisted of draped military standards on stacked, bayoneted rifles. A jiece of artillery, of the French .75 variety, was found to be jumpable, apup tent raised much higher than a soldier ever erected them, an elongated afrplane, bomb, and a stone wall with sand bags atop it to represent an embrasure, were some of the jumps.

Mrs. Eduardo Yanez, wife of the captain of the winning Chilean team, had the pleasure of presenting the Allessandri trophy to her husband, Maj. Yanez.

Masquerader Wins

Sir Conrad, owned and ridden by Lieut. John R. Pugh 3d, of Fort Myer, broke into that select class of open jumpers that has won ribbons in competition for the very important Brooks-Bright Foundation Cup in the 32 years of its existence.

It took the renowned Masquerader of the United States Horse Show team, with that expert rider, Lieut. Scott M. Sanford up, to beat Lieut.

Former Gridiron Greats to Draw Crowd Both Have Colorful Pasts in Football Champion Is Favored Over Ex-Irish Star

By Lewis F. Atchison.

An "All-American" wrestling championship, first of its type ever staged by Promoter Turner, takes place tonight at Turner's Arena, with Bronko Nagurski, former Minnesota fullback, and Joe Savoldi, former Notre Dame ace, as the principals.

Nagurski, who won the world's title by dethroning Dean Detton last year, and Savoldi, who numbers among his wrestling souvenirs a victory over Jim Londos, will have it out in a 90-minute time-limit battle.

The match is expected to be witnessed by a record crowd for the indoor season.

Quite fitting, indeed, is tonight's title bout, inasmuch as Saturday afternoon in South Bend the Hoosiers and Gophers will clash in their annual game. Both Nagurski thrice All-American at Minnesota, and considered perhaps the greatest all-around player ever developed by the Gophers, and Savoldi, who won his All-American spurs for two seasons, will be among those present at Saturday's game.

Hundreds of Minnesota and Notre Dame Alumni will attend tonight's bout.

Nagurski, developed into a wrestler by the cagey Tony Stecher, brother of the illustrious scissors king, Joe Stecher, has lost only one match in his five years of professional grappling. And the man he lost to, Joe Cox was bounced by Nagurski in a title match at Griffith Stadium last fall.

The pulverizing Minnesotan, the only wrestling champion in history who continued as a professional football champion with the Chicago Bears, features a flying tackle. Savoldi also will employ a powerful weapon to dethrone Bronko—a dropkick. Jumpin' Joe ast week whipped Chief Litte Wolf at the Arena, and, in so doing, proved that he had lost none of his cunning.

An all-star supporting card has been arranged. In the semiwindup the Golden Terror, a masked wrestler, will attempt to continue his reign of terror, opposing Frank Brown. The Terror, a powerful 308-pounder, already has trounced two ocal foes.

In other bouts Chief Chewaki meets Sammy Menacher, Chief Little Wolf takes on Herbie Freeman and The Cardiff Giant battles Tom Mahoney.

First bout is at 8:30.

Lenz, Navy Back, May Not Oppose Columbia

Wood and Gillette May Be Ready Middies Leave Early for N. Y. Tilt Need Win for Stimulus for Army

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 9.—It became increasingly doubtful this afternoon that Cliff Lenz, big sophomore back, would be able to take the trip to New York for the game with Columbia Saturday. Lenz, suffering with a charley horse, is lame and in spite of much bandaging and massaging, has improved but slightly. However, he still hopes to get in the game.

If Lenz, who has been used as first substitute for Lem Cooke, is not able to make the trip, Hardwick will probably use Ralph Anderson, who did well in the short portion of the Notre Dame game in which he was used, in his place.

Emmett Wood and Ed Gillette, who, on account of their injuries, were not used at all in the Notre Dame game, both were increasingly active this afternoon, and look to be fully usable for the Columbia game. Wood, the Navy's chief ball carrier, looked to be in specially good form.

Hardwick also expects to make considerable use of Lou Mayo, who won his spurs in the Notre Dame game, particularly by his fine handling of punts and runbacks. Mayo proved his worth by his work against the Irish in the first game in which he had started. He was shifted to the varsity squad late last season, and has been on the injured list the most of the present.

Anderson, according to Hardwick, is the hardest passer on the squad and the equal of any in accuracy.

The Navy squad will prace at 2 tomorrow afternoon and leave for New York at 4:30, spending the night there, and practicing Friday.

The early departure for the scene of the conflict, is a practice generally connected only with a game against the Army, and was made possible by the Armistice Day holiday.

Head Coach Hardwick said this afternoon that he expects to see Columbia at its best, while feeling here is that it will be hazardous for the Navy team to start against the Army without having won from any major opponent. On the other hand, it is believed that a victory would be a great strengthener or morale and increases the chances of the team greatly in the final contest.

Seven Crown, slightly higher in price, is distinguished for its richer, mellower flavor, its full fragrance. Yet Seagram craftsmen have achieved this hearty taste without the slightest trace of "heaviness".

Both 7 and 5 Crown are light-bodied whiskies distilled and blended in the best Seagram tradition. Both are "America's Finest". At your favorite bar or package store.

On Fishing

Remember the striped bass fishing last fall? The great schools working the edge of the steamboat channel from Smith Point on the Virginia shore to Point No Point Light, catches running in numbers to just whatever the anglers cared to take, and the individual fish very often weighing better than 30 pounds? Several, of which we have first-hand knowledge, tipped the scales almost to the 40-pound mark.

ACKERMAN.

With every gull in the bay country seemingly congregated over them, adding their noise and glamour to the general melee, that was literally a piscatorial madhouse for a stretch of 35 miles, while anglers from every section of the East were clamoring for boats to get to them.

This year, however, is another story. The schools are as numerous, and every bit as large, only spread out over a far greater area because their food has been so plentiful. The catches so far have been decidedly inconsistent, and the average size of the rock caught below that of last season—barely running 5 pounds; while the fishermen have been having duckfits from the early promise, that the going would again attain like proportions if we could only get a little cold weather.

As though sensing, a week in advance, this drop in the temperature the weather man promises for today, the stripers have started to hit in real fashion, from Southwest Middles to Cove Point; and many anglers have been on hand for the best fishing of the season so far.

One, who consistently fishes this section throughout the year, has jjust returned from a 5-day setto with them. His catches running from 11 to 40, of fish that would often pull the barrel out of the small steelyard scales set for the 15-pound limit.

Capt. Taft Tippett's latest report, from Ridge on St. Jeromes Creek, says, this is the time—if you hope to enjoy the sport this year. That it is hardly likely it will extend over a long period, for the later than usual arrival of the first cold weather will drive the bait fishes out of the bay within a few days at the most. The good going will be the interim between that and the time when the water temperatures drop below 50 degrees, when the stripers will strike at any moving thing in the water.

Catches at Solomon's Island have been equally good throughout the past week. From 16 to 40 to the boat. The only uncertainty, the time of rising. Sometimes it is in the early morning, again it is in the late evening. Very seldom that they stay up throughout the day.

With but three more weeks of bass fishing above tidewater before the season closes, we recommend that anglers make the best of it. After December 1, go back to the creeks tributary to the Potomac below Washington. The law doesn't close these waters until next March, although nature does, after a fashion, with cold weathr. Until then there is many a nice day, or any number of days, if you are hardy enough to take it.

From every indication now, the Potomac will be in good shape for this week-end, as well as almost every tributary. West Virginia streams, in the section around Romney and above have not been bothered by the forest fires that burned over an area of nearly 2,000 square miles in the southern part of the State.

Getting pretty late in the season to be talking about new salt water equipment, but nevertheless— have you seen the new Ocean City reels? Even the smallest 1-0s have the new oiling features, as well as the egg-shaped handles that first made their appearance several days ago on the big reels used in the Bahamas marlin fishing. Although many dyeo-in-the-wool anglers of the rougher sex are going to look askance at such innovations, there is little doubt but what the ladies will find these features very much to their liking.

Many calls have come in to this department to find out whether or not it is possible to go south on same one of the many Southern charter boats that have been fishing in Northern waters during the summer. The answer is that these captains are always glad to get parties, and at really reasonable rates for these trips, but they are usually gone long before this. A few overhaul before going, but they, too, with but a few exceptions, are now on the way down. Capt. B. L. Raymond is at Atlantic City, and does not expect to make the trip until Christmas. He can be be reached at 6 South Wissahichon avenue. We are sure he would be glad to make arrangements to suit a party.

Meeting this evening at 8 o'clock in the Elizabethian room of the Raleigh, the Washington Chapter of the Izaak Walton League of America. Many items of importance are to be taken up, s othere is every right to expect every member there. All the more reason for anyone interested in outdoor activities to duck in and look them over, for you are bound to meet congenial sportsmen.

Pawtucket, R. I., Nov. 9 (AP).—S. J. Norris' Mr. Blaze today added another victory to his many creditable performances on off tracks when he won the $5,000 Added Chopmist Handicap by a neck from W. A. Carter's favored Clodion.

A length back of the favorite was Mrs. J. A. Nix' Woodsaw, two and a half lengths ahead of Wise Prince.

Calumet Ace Keeps Lead Throughout

Time of Race Slow Sun Alexandria 2d Field Cut to Five 9,000 See Events

By Walter Haight.

A Staff Correspondent.

Pimlico Race Track, Baltimore, Nov. 9.—Bull Lea, powerful son of Bull Dog and Rose Leaves, scored an easy victory in the $2,500 added Pimlico Handicap today. After the race was set up with a limit field, it was riddled by scratches until only four livals met the Calumet Farm star. Bull Lea had the situation well in hand throughout and finished five lengths in advance of Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Sun Alexandria, with Mrs. Vera S. Bragg's Bottle Top third. Aethelwold and Sir Raleigh comprised the also-ran department.

Backed into favoritism by the crowd of 9,000, Bull Lea paid a $3.90 mutuel and went the mile and 70 yards in ordinary time of 1:45 1-5. However, the track was slow as a result of rains last night.

Carrying 122 pounds in the form of Jockey I. Anderson and enough lead to make up the difference, Bull Lea took command virtually at the break and stayed there to the end. Going to the first turn, Sun Alexandria was caught between Bull Lea and Aethelwold and Jockey Eddie Arcaro was forced to pull up. From that point to the wire. Sun Alexandria made futile attempts to get to the leader.

Knickerbocker, a first-time starter from the Joseph E. Widener string, came out of the No. 1 gate and led all the way in the first race to bring his scattered backers an $18.90 mutuel. Under Jockey Johnny Longden's handling the son of Teddy lasted to win by a head from Winning Mark. Shambles was third in the field of a dozen juveniles going a mile and 70 yards.

Those who coupled Knickerbocker with Absconder, an odds-on favorite in the second race, collected a $32.90 daily double. Absconder was much the best and galloped home by five lengths without being urged by Jockey H. Mora. Clap In was second from a slow beginning, with Balcony third in the field of ten. The winner paid an individual mutuel of $3.30.

The camera was called on to separate Gridine, an $11.60 shot, and Doubt Not, a 13-to-1 proposition, in the third race. Gridine came up with a rush to collar the leader in the final jumps. War Dog, installed the favorite, was third after a rough trip. Jockey Ira Hanford handled the winner.

Hutson Ties Own Pro Touchdown Mark

Danowski Still Leads All Passers

Baugh Ranks Third Tinsley Best Receiver Sheperd Chief Gainer 4 Tie for Field Goals

Don Hutson, Green Bay Packers end from Alabama, tied his own National Football League record of nine touchdowns in one season and is within striking distance of three other new league marks, according to individual statistics for the ninth week of play announced today. By catching 12 passes for 120 yards and four touchdowns in his two remaining games against Detroit and New York, Hutson can set new standards for passes caught, scoring, and yards gained on passes in addition to touchdowns in one season.

These marks are far from impossible. Hutson has twice scored three touchdowns, twice caught six passes, and four times gained more than 60 yards in single games this season. Hutson leads the National League in scoring with nine touchdowns and two conversions for 56 points and by continuing his present pace will become the first lineman in league annals to lead in this department.

Gaynell Tinsley, Chicago Cardinals, caught two more passes than Hutson to lead, 31 to 29, in this department, and the race between these rivals in an effordt to set a new record for catches in their next two contests will be an interesting one.

Four changes in positions for individual laurels were recorded in the past week. Clarke Hinkle, Green Bay fullback, jumped from a tie for third in scoring to second, behind his teammate, Hutson, with 45 points. Scrapper Farrell, Brooklyn recruit, rose from fourth to second in ground gaining with 323 yards, just 30 less than Bill Sheperd, Detroit, who continues to lead with 353 yards.

Jack Robbins, Cardinals' freshman, again passed Sammy Baugh, Washington, for second in forward passing. Ralph Kercheval, Brooklyn, tied Regis Monahan, Detroit, and Ward Cuff, New York, with four field goals, his 45-yard kick Sunday being the longest of the season.

Ed Danowski, New York, boosted his efficiency to 60 per cent as he continued to pace the forward passers with 56 completions out of 93 tosses for 684 yards. Joe Carter, Philadelphia, is third in pass receiving with 22 catches and fourth in scoring with 36 points. Andy Farkas, Washington, is third in scoring with 37 points. Not more than 3 yards separate third, fourth and fifth place in ground gaining. Cecil Isbell, Green Bay, Farkas, and Whizzer White, Pittsburgh, have 304, 303 and 301 yards, respectively.

Glenwood National Draws Nine Entries

Ad Lib to Run in Feature of Middleburg Races Prince Wicks, a Belmont Winner, to Compete

Middleburg, Va., Nov. 9.—Nine entries were announced this afternoon by the publicity director of the Middleburg races for the third running of the Glenwood National, 3-mile brush race, feature of Saturday's meet at Middleburg. These include Ad Lib, owned by Warner Baltazzi, of New York; Blackcock, Louis Stoddard, jr., New York; Wayward Son, C. W. Goodyear, Buffalo; Santi Quaranti, Mrs. Robert Winthrop's Groton Stables, Long Island; Tioga and Telemark, R. V. Gambrill; Prattler, Robert E. McConnell, Middleburg; Big Rebel, Harold E. Talbott, New York, and Prince Wicks, owned by Walter Wicks, New York.

Prince Wicks was the winner yesterday in a two-mile brush race at Belmont Park, with a $1,000 purse. Henry Frost, Middleburg, who rode the winner yesterday, will be astride him in the big race Saturday. Harold Talbott's Big Rebel ran third in this race at Belmont yesterday. The two will have other stiff competitors when they try it out again on Saturday.

Ad Lib and his rider, J. S. Harrison, will be a combination hard to beat in the feature race. Harrison has won 43 races on 27 horses. Nine of these races have been on Ad Lib—five at Aqueduct over hurdles; two at Saragota; one at Belmont and one at Fair Hills, the Fox-catcher National Cup. Ad Lib was sired by Hourless and his dam had some of the best racing blood in her veins.

Seven starters have been announced for the R. Penn Smith challenge plate—3½-mile timber race. They are Terry's Winner, Miss Teresa Schey, of New York; Budget Boy, Mrs. Robert P. Gibbs, Fair Hills, N. J.; Comonhome, Mrs. J. W. Y. Martin, Glyndon, Md.; Espadin, Mrs. Elizabeth C. Buck; Ronille, Christopher Greer; Seafarin Dan, Capt. Ewart Johnston, and Atherton, Mrs. Eva S. Spillman.

James Ryan, one of the outstanding riders and trainers, will arrive from Unionville, Pa., tomorrow with nine horses, among them is Mrs. Lewis Park's Crooked Woods. The remaining entries will be ready for release tomorrow, according to D. C. Sands, racing secretary.

First Major Casualty For Harvard Squad

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 9 (AP).—The Harvard football squad suffered its first major casualty of the season today when William (Ace) Cordingley, a junior-varsity fullback from Des Moines, Iowa, suffered a fractured leg.

Cordingley, a junior, received the injury when he was struck by two blockers during an intrascrub scrimmage. The black-jerseyed players were not called upon to face the varsity, for Coach Dick Marlow alternated his first and second lineups against the "C" team. That drill lasted an hour, the "A" and "B" forces dividing their time between passing and running plays.

Hopewell Foe Of G.W. High

Last League Tilt Play Friday Night Episcopal J. V.'s Play

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Alexandria, Va., Nov. 9.—George Washington High School brings to a close what it hopes will be the most successful Virginia Class A Conference grid campaign in the school's history on Friday night, entertaining the formidable Blue Devils of Hopewell High in the G. W. Stadium at 8 o'clock. The contest marks the Presidents' last home showing of the year, and their final appearance before the annual Thanksgiving-giving morning clash with Washington-Lee at Ballston.

A victory for the rPesidents will give them their most successful conference record since they joined the Class A circuit in 1935, while a tie or defeat would probably drop them into the second division of the 14-team loop. To date the locals have won two, lost one, and tied two in five games against the State's strongest elevens, and they are resting in fifth place in the conference standings.

The G. W. tilt is also a crucial engagement for the Blue Devils, who have won two and lost two against Class A elevens.

On the basis of comparative scores against mutual opponents, the Blue Devils rate as slight favorites, despite the fact that they are ranked below the Alexandrians in the standings. They defeated Fredericksburg and Portsmouth by scores of 7 to 0 and 13 to 0, respectively, while the Presidents lost to the same two teams by scores of 14 to 12 and 13 to 0.

Episcopal High School's "B" squad, target of the varsity team's attack in practice each day for the past eight weeks, gets a chance to unleash an offensive of its own tomorrow afternoon, entertaining the varsity of eleven of Christ Church Prep of Christ Church, Va., on Hoxton Field at 3:15. This will be the only regularly-scheduled game for the Maroon second stringers.

More than the usual amount of interest centers on the contest, in view of the fact that the visiting team is coached by Walter Fraley, former Davidson College grider, who served assistant coach to Episcopal's undefeated varsity eleven last year. He resigned to accept the head coaching post at the Christ Church School.

Although ranked with the smaller prep schools in the State, the Christians generally turn out a formidable team, and this year's eleven is no exception. They have won four and lost two, losing only to John Marshall High School's undefeated eleven and the strong Westhampton High team.

The starting lineup for the "Bees" will be selected from the following: Williams, Davis and Mast, ends; Chamberlain, Richards and Cheston, tackles; Carmody, Morris and Frissell, guards; Dennis, center; F. Carr, Parnham, Lee, Willis, Couch and Goodwin, backs.

Episcopal's varsity eleven will remain idle this week-end resting up for next Saturday's traditional game with Woodberry Forest at Orange. The Maroons must win from their ancient rivals in order to retain the State prep school championship they have held for the past two seasons.

Pugh's handsome chestnut gelding, in this blue ribbon event. Forty of the most outstanding jumpers of Great Britain and the United States, both military and civilian, were entered in the class.

An elimination yesterday resulted in the selection of the 12 horses that competed today. Masquerader, by the narrowest of margins, defeated Sir Conrad for this trohy coveted by the horsemen of two nations and which can only be competed for by citizens of the United States and subjects of the King of England at the Internation Horse Show in London and the National Horse Show in New York. The hroses entered must be the bona fide property of the exhibitors and carry a minimum weight of 154 pounds. No competitor is allowed more than 50 seconds to complete the course.

Cleland on Side Lines

In the 32 years of competition for this trophy it has only been won twice by a single individual, Lieut. W. N. Clenad, of the Canadian army. Lieut. Clenad, the hero of the international military jumping contest last year, today was a wistful spectator at the running of this event, for her will never have another chance for the cup, due to an injury to his back in a jumping contest last July. He probably will never again be able to put a horse over a jump. Lieut. Cleland made a special trip from Toronto to be here today to see his brother, Lieut. Douglas Cleland, of the Canadian army team, riding his mare, Roxana, in this event. Modernistic, Philip J. Bliss' outstanding open jumper, took third place, and Erin's Son, of the Audwill Stables, took fourth ribbon.

Two noted Virginia stables shared top honors in the important horses suitable to become hunters class when U. S. Randle's handsome chestnut gelding, Primary, took the blue ribbon over Mr. and Mrs. George P. Greenhalgh's outstanding Protest, in second place; Miss Wilhelmine S. Kirby's Grand Dan was third, and Illuminator, owned by Mrs. Alvin Untermyer, fourth.

Primary is a 4-year-old thoroughbred, standing 16.2 hands high, with a superb conformation. This was an impressive victory for the Randle Stables, for the class was composed of entries from the most celebrated stables in the land.

Bay Flight Wins

The struggle for honors on the fourth night's knockdown and out class was as bitter as the other engagements in this daily feature. On the first round, 9 horses out of the 38 had clean performances.

On the jump-off the obstacles were raised to heights that looked mountainous. The in-and-out was 4 feet 9 inches for the in and 5 feet for the out. The stone wall was raised to 5 feet 6 with a 3-foot bar 4 feet in front of it; the double oxer had a 6-foot spread, making one of the toughest courses that could be selected for such a contest.

Philip J. Bliss' Bay Flight, ridden by Arthur McCashen, won this skyscraper event with the only clean performance in the jump-off. Erin's Son, of the Audwill Stables, and Golden Brew, of the May Top Stables, went clean to the last jump, where both failed, necessitating a jump-off for second and third place, which was won by Erin's Son. Fourth place went to the May Top Stables' Port Light.

Coach Spurs Redskins for Bears Game

Secret Drills Balked Flaherty Changes Plan Plays on Emotions Chicago Is Favorite

Chicago, Nov. 9.—Abandoning hope that he can stage secret workouts because of the prying eyes of Chicago Bears' scourts, Coach Ray Flaherty, of the Redskins, is concentrating on keying up his team mentally for Sunday's battle.

Forced to drill on the Loyola University field, where there is no means of excluding spectators, Flaherty is attempting to play on the emotions of his Redskins in an effort to offset the handicap of no private practice.

"These Bears still think we were lucky to win that championship play-off last year," Flaherty told his squad. "We don't want to leave any such impression after Sunday's game. We've got to pour it to 'em, and that mean's we've got to be at tops.

"The Bears are the toughest team we'll face this season, I don't care what their league record may be," added Flaherty. "They scored three touchdowns against us last year, don't forget that. We've got to play 60 minutes of our best football if we want this game."

Flaherty's own scouts, including his brother, report that the Bears this year are mixing their famed power attack with a clever passing game in which Ray Buivid does the eight league games, and the Redskins' position at the top of the Eastern standings, Chicago betting men still continue to book the Redskins as 7-to-5 underdogs. Bets on the Bears are being handled at even money.

Redskin stock boomed today when it was learned definitely that Bill Hartman had fully recovered from his muscle injury to his left leg and would be available for the starting lineup. Hartman in practice today galloped with all his speed and fervor, and he is expected to play a huge part in the Redskins' running game as wel las directing the passing attack when Baugh is not in the lineup.

Speaking of Baugh, Slingin' Sammy's old friend, Dick Plasman will not be ni the Bears' lineup on Sunday. Plasman, the big end who took a punch at Baugh's chin in the play-off game last year, broke a wrist in the Packers game last week and is through for the season.

Horse Show Notes

By Hotspur.
A Staff Correspondent.

New York, Nov. 9.—The unusual high temperatures of the last few days have made something of a Turkish bath of the basement of the Garden where the 400 horses, entered in this show, are stabled.

Many of the horses, used to penty of fresh air and open spaces are enervated by the unaccustomed heat. Horses from Washington and the surrounding country have appeared quite istless in their performances, but as the days go on they will become accustomed to the change in atmosphere and come out of their peeve.

Margaret Cotter's reliabe Rocksie has already regained his high spirits as witnessed by his beautiful performance in Monday night's knock down and out class when the big bay gelding was nosed out in the jump-off for first honors.

Fenton Fadeley Jr.'s superior open jumper Lacquer Lady is also returning to form and had a creditable performance in the Puritan Monday, but the great mare seemed bored and di dnot have the fiery spirit and smooth action that has made her a universal favorite with horse fans.

That beautiful hunter of the Greenhalgh's stables, Hunter's Choice, bounced back into form and won the heavyweight hunters class from the best in the land. The van trip from his Berryville home and the heat of the Garden had the bay gelding down for a day ony.

From now on we can expect better performances from the local horses.

The horses in the three-gaited and five-gaited saddle classes are beautiful things to watch, but somehow they leave a follower of hunters and jumpers cold, possibly because we are so decidedly opposed to the setting of horses' tails, a practice which is gradually coming to be considered as bad form as the docking of horses' tails.

As much as we try we can't get away from it. There is something about the Cavalry that raises little shivers chase themselves up noe's blood pressure and makes and down a fellow's spine. The dash, the color, the cadence and rhythm, the glitter of colorful uniforms and the shine of accoutrements gets to you in a devastating sort of way.

Which all leads up to this: The Royal Canadian Dragoons are near to stealing the show. While they are good, aye, excellent, in the precision of their intricate music drill, a loyal Washingwhat these blase New Yorkers tonian cannot help but wonder would think of our own Third Cavalry were they decked out in the resplendant uniforms and accoutrements of our Canadian cousins and other foreign units.

As far as the excellence of performance in the most intrictae formations and manoeuvers, they have the smoothest of these foreign troops looking as rough as No. 8 sandpaper.

Yes, the uniform makes a difference.

Wheat Prices Advance With Foreign Sales

Securities Rise Helps 2,000,000 Bu. Exported Late Profit-taking

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Nov. 9.—Enlarger European buying, together with soaring of securities, helped to lift wheat prices a full cent here today, but profit taking later curtailed gains somewhat.

It was estimated that upward of 2,000,000 bushels of North American wheat had been bought for overseas the last two days. Removal of election uncertainty received considerable notice as a stimulating factor, and so too did steep jumps of Liverpool quotations. The Liverpool market, due unchanged to ⅜ of a cent higher, ended today 1¼ to 2 cents up.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were ⅛ to ⅝ cents higher, compared with Monday's finish; December, 64⅛@64¼; May, 66@66⅛. Corn advanced ¼ to ¾ cent; December, 46¾@46⅞; May, 50⅛@50⅜. Oats were unchanged to ¼ cent bulge, rye showing ⅜ to ½ cent clumb, and provisions a hoist of 7 to 12 cents.

Boston Wool Market

Boston, Nov. 9 (AP) (U. S. Dept. of Agriculture).—Prices on domestic wools were very firm to higher today on the Boston wool market in a moderate activity.

Graded half-blood territory wools were receiving attention because of the recent advance in prices on fine territory wools. Staple combing-length, half-blood territory wools have moved at 68 to 70 cents, scoured basis, while French combing-length wools of similar grades have brought 65 to 67 cents, scoured basis. Graded combing three-eighths-blood, bright fleece wools, while not very active, tended to strengthen in prices because of an urgent demand with limited quantities being offered. Prices on recent sales ran 32 to 34 cents, in the grease.

Cotton Prices Close Higher

New York, Nov. 9 (AP).—Cotton advanced today in response to a smaller than anticipated Government crop forecast Tuesday, but prices were shaded later under realizing and liquidation. March sold off from 8.48 to 8.42 and closed at 8.44, with final prices 5 to 9 points net higher.

High levels for the day were touched near the opening when gains of 10 to 13 points reflected yesterday's advance at Liverpool and New Orleans. The crop estimate of 12,137,000 bales was 75,000 bales less than last month although a higher figure had been looked for. Trade, foreign and commission house buying absorbed increased hedge selling and liquidation but when demand from aboard let up prices eased from the best.

U. S. Income At New High For This Year

Rises for 5 Months
September Is Peak
24.5% Below 1937

New York, Nov. 9.—The national income produced in the United States rose in September to the highest amount this year, having shown expansion for five consecutive months, according to the Alexander Hamilton Institute. It amounted to $5,352,000,000 in September as compared with $4,868,000,000 in August and with the 1938 low of $4,154,000,000 in April.

The national income in September, however, was still below the level of a year ago, showing a decrease of 15.1 per cent from the income of $6,304,000,000 in September of last year. At the same time this decrease was smaller than in any previous month of the current year. This is indicated by the fact that, for the first nine months, the national income totaled $46,330,000,000 this year as against $53,418,000,000 last year, a decrease of 24.5 per cent.

Information available up to the present time suggests that a further substantial expansion in the national income occurred in October. It may have reached as high a figure as $5,800,000,000. While the general price level seems to have been slightly lower than in September there was apparently a gain in industrial output, while shipments of farm products certainly showed a good seasonal increase.

The upward trend of the national income which has taken place since last April makes it now seem quite probable that the national income in the last half of 1938 will total about $30,500,000,000 as against $25,500,000,000 in the first half, an increase of $5,000,000,000.

Foreign Markets

By the Associated Press.

London, Nov. 9.—Steadiness in all sections of the stock exchange continued into final trading today. Steels led the industrial group into higher ground. Transatlantics extended yesterday's advances. Gilt-edged issues were firm and foreign bonds generally steady.

Paris.—Many bourse issues receded today from gains of the preceding session. Trading remained active but the closing tone was irregular. Bank of France lost 165 and Suez Canal 600 points on the day.

Liverpool.—Frost reports from the Argentine and better demand for Manitoba's advanced wheat futures ¼ to 1¼d today. Profit-taking sales, particularly in distant positions, shaded prices at the day's highs. Steady most of the day, cotton futures gave way a little to local realising in late trading on receipt of resdionary Egyptian cables. Final prices were 2 to 3 points net lower. The reduction in yesterday's American crop estimate was regarded as negligible, in view of large prospective world carry-over.

THE MAN WHO LAST PLAYED WHEN AUCTION WAS THE VOGUE —

Bob Burns Says—

Out here there is a swanky golf course where most of the members are millionaires. It costs a young fortune to join it and you have to use a caddy. Right across the fence is another golf course where you pay $5 a month and carry your own bags. The rich men play silently with scowls on their faces and it's easy to see that the boys across the fence are havin' all the fun.

I think Grandpa Snazzy hit the nail on the head when he said, "A rich man has'ta hire a secretary, a butler, a laundress, a manager and a cook. A poor man jest gits married!"

Arlington Welfare Costs $15,000 a Year

$97,988 Since 1932 Hanrahan Reveals Item Only Private Funds

BUREAU OF THE POST.
Clarendon, Va., Tel. OXford 0509

The audit of accounts and records of the Arlington County Board of Public Welfare, covering a period from April 27, 1932, to August 31, 1938, released yesterday by Frank C. Hanrahan, county manager, showed recorded receipts for the period amount to $97,988.26, or an average of $15,000 a year.

The report pointed out that the audit covered only transactions in funds contributed by individuals and the Washington Community Chest and from payments on non-support cases and fines. Expenditures are made primarily for relief.

The cash distributed during the period, plus the balance on hand at August 31, 1938, accounted for all recipes and balances at the beginning, with a small excess to the credit of the former superintendent of public welfare, Mrs. Mae E. Jacobs.

All Democrats But 1 Win in Prince Georges

O'Conor Runs Ahead Tydings 4 to 1 Davis Leads Berry

Nearly complete returns from Prince Georges County's 34 precincts indicated early last night that Herbert R. O'Conor, victorious Democratic candidate for Governor, would amass a lead of at least 2,500 votes over Gov. Harry W. Nice in a total of 20,000 ballots.

With only one exception, every Democratic contender on the State and County slates seemed assured of a majority in Prince Georges.

Reputed home of many gambling establishments, the county gave a small majority in favor of the amendment to the State constitution that would legalize lotteries.

Senator Millard Tydings (Democrat) rolled up a 4-to-1 victory over Judge Oscar Leser in the Senatorial contest. The other Democratic State candidates, William C. Walsh, for attorney general; J. Millard Tawes, for comptroller; James A. Young, for clerk of the court of appeals, and Stephen W. Gambrill, running for re-election from the Fifth Congressional district, were all winners in the county as well as in the State. Tydings led the Democratic ticket and Nice ran ahead on the losing side.

James Berry, present member of the county board of commissioners and Democratic nominee for register of wills, was the only Democrat on the county slate to suffer defeat. The incumbent, William T. Davis, now serving his sixteenth year in the post, appeared to be the winner.

In a hard-fought contest for State's attorney, H. Winship Wheatley nosed out the Republican, George Burroughs. William E. Clifton, Democrat, gained a commanding lead over Andrew F. Gasch for sheriff, after early returns had indicated a close race.

McNamee Wins Easily

An overwhelming majority was piled up for Harry W. McNamee, Democratic candidate for county treasurer, over his two opponents, Capt. Vinton Cockey, Independent, and William A. Duval, Republican. Duval, whose name had been stricken from the ballot a few days before election because he had not filed notice of his candidacy in time, received a surprisingly large write-in vote.

The county favored a graduated income-tax amendment and an amendment creating a new judicial district in the second circuit. An overwhelming vote of approval was registered in the referendum on the 1937 law requiring a lapse of 48 hours between issuance of a marriage license and the wedding ceremony.

2 War Veterans, Brothers, Slain

Los Angeles, Nov. 9 (AP).—Two war veterans were found shot to death today in their home, where a radio still blared out election returns.

Deputy Sheriff Joe Wellever said Frank Siegler, 48, suffering from a recurrent heart ailment, apparently had been shot by his brother John, 45, who then turned the gun on himself.

This Kettle Calls Teapot 'Steamer'

A new wrinkle for prompting a player in her lines was developed when Helen Broderick continued to get mixed up in her dialogue for "Stand Up and Fight." Speaking about the new steam railroad to Robert Taylor and Florence Rice, Miss Broderick was supposed to refer to the engine as a "tea kettle on wheels." After she had referred to it as a "steam kettle" three times Director W. S. Van Dyke had a tea kettle hung underneath the camera as a reminder.
